roads of the United States in efficiency on this point. Reports received yesterday morning by J. F. Grodzki of the safety bureau showed no reportable accidents for the entire week and in the same period not a grade-crossing accident took place. This is a record unprecedented in railroad annals among roads of similar size and importance. During the corresponding week of 1918 there were 476 injuries were reported on all lines during no-accident week, a reduction of 480 casualties on the 62 railroads represented. A report of the United States tailroad administration for the first quarter of 1918, as against the first quarter of 1918 shows the following figure for railroad properties under federal confrom the sky until long after it had railroad properties under federal conset cars hauled all they could carry to trol:
