PRINCESS DENIES STORY

HIPPODROME DANCER TELLS OF FLIGHT FROM PORTLAND.

Husband Is Real Indian and Did Not Evade Draft, Declares Actress.

"Propaganda" is the name given by Princess White Elk to the stories that followed the Indian dancer and her husband, Chief White Elk, from town to town, when they were campaigning in the west for the victory. The princess is here again in a Hippodrome act, and Saturday gave out an explanation of the heavy and rather sensational departure the couple made from the city last April.

The chief, who was singing at the Portland hotel in behalf of the foot at the time, purported to be a prominent Carlisle football player and hero of the Olympic games. He showed scars, which he said were from a fight with the Antillas was torpedoed October 17, 1917, on the way to France. Rumors reached the west to the effect that he was not an Indian, had never attended Carlisle and was wanted as a draft deserter. When these were made known the couple departed on the second night of their stay in Portland.

The stories about us started in Salt Lake City," said Princess White Elk last night. "The newspapers there refused to publish recruiting news, so when the chief came to town and was put on an army truck to help recruiting he came out and said something about the papers' refusal to aid enlistments. That started the propaganda machine, which followed us from town to town, and reached Portland the day after we came and made my husband discouraged. He didn't sing the second night and we left as quickly as we could. That looked rather bad for us, but the truth of the matter was we were short of funds."

Princess White Elk says she and her husband campaigned through all of the west fund raising and in the end he is in Canada. He is a Cherokee Indian from Oklahoma, while she is of the Klamaths of Northern California.

police department by the nature of his work, and it was largely due to his efforts that several gangs of automobile thieves were brought to justice. While in charge of this work in Portland he located many stolen machines and returned them to their owners. Previous to taking a position with the Portland association, Mr. Hayden was employed as special agent on the Spokane, Portland & Seattle railway a number of years and was well known in Portland.

Pomona College Cadet Makes High Score at Presidio—Elimination Shoot is Next.

PRESIDIO, San Francisco, July 20.—(Special.)—With a score of 145 out of a possible 150, Cadet Felton Taylor from Pomona college made the highest individual score on the rifle range Friday at the close of the shooting schedule of the reserve officers' training corps. Company E, composed of college men, 15 of them from Oregon Agricultural college, carried off first honors with an average score of 119.26 against 117.72 made by company B, composed of southern California high school boys.

A. Christiansen, from Oregon Agricultural college, made 11th high individual score with 125 out of a possible 150. K. C. McCarter, Los Angeles high school, was second highest individual record with 146; third place going to G. W. Hansen from Whitman college. LIQUOR OPINION IS GIVEN

POWER TO DESTROY GOODS RESTS WITH COURT.

Mayor of Seattle Gets Advice on Legal Procedure Over Confiscated Intoxicants.

SEATTLE, Wash., July 20.—(Special.)—When it comes to the destruction of seized liquor, the legal method to be pursued is at the discretion of the court under whose jurisdiction the liquor is brought, according to an opinion given to Mayor Hanson today by the city attorney, Patrick Tammany of the corporation counsel's department.

Mayor Hanson requested the corporation counsel to advise "the exact legal method that should be followed in the destruction of certain intoxicating liquor in the vault at the police station. The opinion passes only on such liquor as may be lawfully in the possession of the chief of police, pursuant to lawful seizure under the search warrant or by reason of the lawful order of a court having jurisdiction of the liquor and competent to make such order.

The exact method of destruction, the opinion says, is not specified in the ordinance nor is the person designated who should carry out the order, but as the ordinance and state statute provide that the peace officer serving the search warrant shall seize and destroy the liquor and safely keep the same, such officer would presumably be the one to carry out the order of destruction in the absence of an order from the court designating some other proper officer subject to its jurisdiction to carry out the destruction.

OREGON CLUBS MAY CLOSE

Sailor on George Washington Says Funds Are Running Short.

In a letter received from Glenn Morgan of the U. S. S. George Washington, written in the clubrooms of Oregon headquarters in New York City, Saturday, it is asserted that the club, cordially appreciated for its hospitality and homelike atmosphere, must be discontinued August 1 for lack of funds. No official report of such lack has reached this city so far as is known by F. W. Mulkey, chairman of the soldiers' and sailors' commission, which is endeavoring to defray expenses of the headquarters about 10 days ago. At that time $2500 was asked, it being represented that there were numerous out-of-pocket bills, and the $1500 was expected to run the headquarters beyond August 1, and no report of any expenditures from that amount have yet been made to the commission.

"PRIVATE PEAT" WRITING

FAMOUS SOLDIER HAS ANOTHER STORY UNDER WAY.

Author Believes That Some Way Is About to Be Found to Cure World Attack of Bolshevism.

"My first book evidently was a home run, the other two were considered about singles and my latest writing will go sailing over the plate," so said Harold R. Peat, soldier, writer and lecturer, who is here on the Ellsion-White Chautauque circuit. Mr. Peat, better known as Private Peat, although he has been a lieutenant more than three years, has just completed a new novel, "The Smelter of God," which is to be published in the fall. Its setting is in northwestern Canada, the land where his author passed the earlier part of his life. His story concerns Eskimos, mounted police and priests, ringed in the spread of bolshevism in its primal stages. In the story Mr. Peat tries to prove that bolshevism is in every undeveloped mind and even in nature.

"I have found that I have brought up from the seed of greed and laziness," he said yesterday. "I don't say that condition can be bettered in the world. There is something wrong with them, but we can't cure our ills over night as the bolsheviks seem to think. No more can we kill bolshevism by shooting its advocates full of holes over night. There is somewhere a happy medium and we're stumbling along toward it somehow."

Private Peat was overseas with the Canadians and early in the war was severely wounded. It was while recovering that he wrote his first book, giving it his own name. The two which followed it were "Silhouettes of War" and "Mrs. Private Peat."

Since he has been on the Chautauque circuit he has traveled through nearly every town in the southwest since April 16. Working across California, he drove an automobile to Reno, Nev., where he is to get a divorce from his wife. From there he came to British Columbia and Montana, completing the circuit August 28. He will then take a "U. S. host" a few Canadian cities and a "ping-pong" writing again.

FARMER GAINS 13 POUNDS AT AGE 75

J. W. Sayers Says Tanlac Relieved Trouble of 25 Years' Standing.

"Tanlac has not only relieved me of trouble, but it has been good to me down for twenty-five long years, but has added thirteen pounds to my weight," said J. W. Sayers, a well-known orchard grower from the town of Dayton, Washington, while in the Owl Drug Store in Portland a few days ago.

"When a man reaches the age of seventy-five years and is in a badly run-down condition," continued Mr. Sayers, "takes a real medicine to put him on his feet and make him feel like a young man again. Now that is just what Tanlac has done for me. And, more than that, you rarely ever hear of a man of that age gaining as much as thirteen pounds in weight. My stomach had been in bad condition for many years and on many occasions I would suffer like blazes afterwards. Gas would form and I would be terribly bloated up for hours at a time. I was busy during the whole time, too, and would often have the worst kind of headaches. I felt tired and worn out all the time and, if I exerted myself the least, but I would be completely exhausted. Then I got to where I never slept well, and would often get through the whole night without getting an hour sleep. The different medicines I took didn't seem to do me any good at all, and when I commenced taking Tanlac, I was just about down and out so far as health and strength goes."

"One day I met an old friend of mine that I had not seen in a long time and I was surprised to see him looking so well, and when I remarked about how well he looked, he said: 'Why, I have been taking this Tanlac for some time, and it has built me up so that I feel better than I have in many years.' Well, sir, you just ought to have seen me hurrying to the drug store to get a bottle of Tanlac after I left this friend. I have taken three bottles of Tanlac so far, and the way I have improved is simply wonderful. Why, I feel many years younger, and I have a fine appetite and enjoy every bite I eat. I never have the slightest sign of stomach trouble now, and have been completely relieved of constipation and headaches. I just feel so strong and well all the time now, and am as happy over what Tanlac has done for me as anybody I meet about it, and am mighty glad I met up with you here, for I would like to spread the word as far as possible and help other who are suffering as I did."

to Cascade Locks or to cross the Columbia and take the North Bank road to the west. The garage men are eager to get definite information as to when the road will be blocked, if at all, and when the contractors expect to complete the 22 miles of paving.

Rumors have been current that the paving between Cascade Locks and this city will be completed before next spring. The best information obtainable from headquarters of the local engineers of the state highway commission and offices of contractors is that it will be three or four weeks before construction work will interfere materially with traffic. The cutting of a new grade between here and the top of Rubiton hill may at any time temporarily block traffic over the route. No inconvenience, however, will result, for watchmen will at once be stationed at intersections to divert traffic through the Belmont and Frankton districts.
