EDUCATORS CONFER ON-SOLDIER TRAINING

2-Mill Tax in Oregon Held Inadequate to Provide Funds.

MANY APPLY FOR COURSES

Status of Private Schools Under Classification of Institutions of Learning Is in Doubt.

That a sum of money equal to twotenths of a mill tax on all assessable property in Oregon will not be sufficient to meet the expense of accommodating applicants for training under the terms of the soldiers, sailors and marines educational aid bill, approved at the last session of the state legislature,
was the consensus of opinion expressed at the conference of educators held at the capitol today under the direction of the state department.

Definition of an institution of learning, which was passed up to the conference in a recent legal opinion by the attorney-general, was an important feature of the discussion. While it was agreed that all state colleges and universities come under the classification of institutions of learning, as set out in the legislative act, some doubt was expressed as to the status of private schools. SALEM, Or., July 22 .- (Special.)-

Schools to Make Showing.

In the absence of any fast rule re-garding the qualifications and stand-ards of these institutions it was decided that it was up to the individual heads of these schools to make a showing satisfactory to the secretary of state, with whom all applications for training must be filed. As fast as these private schools make a report of their facilities they will be referred to the attorney-general for investigation and approval. The matter of providing funds to pay the costs of administering the act pendreferred to the attorney-general for legal opinion.

Heads of practically all educational institutions represented at the meeting reported that they had received many inquiries from prospective applicants, and it was the belief of the educators that not a few discharged soldiers, saliors and marines are planning to take advantage of the benefits offered under the lew

Two Men Offer to Sell for $700 Car Purchased Day Before With

"Pardon us a moment, while we run down to our garage and get a new spare tire to throw in on this deal." requested H. A. Wrightsman, aged 43, as he and Peurl M. McBride, aged 29, were about to receive a check for $700 for a shiny new automobile from an east side automobile firm yesterday. One member of the firm was writing the check, the other was looking up the automobile number in his records to determine whether the two persons owned the machine they were selling. It was the activity of the man who was looking up the number which precipitated the hurried departure. The sheriff's office was telephoned and Deputy Sheriff Schirmer started. He located the automobile by number outside a second-hand dealer's shop at Fifteenth and Alder street. The men were standing near it.

"Nice machine, that," the sheriff commented, casually.

"Yeah," was the non-committal reply.

"Own it."

"Like to sell it."

"Praps."
"How much?"

"Whad you mean?"
"C'mno slong and ask the judge."
Threatigation after the men were lodged in the county jail on a larceny charge developed that the automobile had been purchased the day prior from a shop at Broadway and Couch street,
and that $400 had been paid down on it,
a note being given for $700 remaining
