KATHARINE LAIDLAW STAR

Millie Schlotth and Four Young Mermaids Also Share in Entertainment at Corbett's.

The spacious grounds of the Henry L. Corbett country home at Dunthorpe yesterday proved the mecca to which journeyed over two hundred Portland devotees of art to witness an afternoon programme of interpretative dance given by Miss Katharine Laidlaw.

The huge sunken marble swimming pool in the Corbett grounds, and the green lawn rimmed in by magnificent trees and shrubbery, provided a perfect and natural setting for Miss Laidlaw's dancing and for Miss Schlotth's aquatic exhibition.

An awning-covered amphitheater commanded a splendid view of the sunken pool and the woodland space where Miss Laidlaw's dances were given.

Miss Laidlaw's series of interpretative dance creations, for their suitability to her own personal graces and understanding of dance, for the consummate artists with which she selected them, and for the sheer beauty of their expression brought demonstrations of approval from an exacting and sophisticated audience.

Her next dance exposition was an exquisite Grecian study, simple in treatment but potentially poetic. A beautiful Grecian urn set beside the shimmering pool gave further artistic significance to this lovely dance.

The next number was an Oriental fantasy, "The Nautch Girl of Benares," a vivid, colorful frenzy of dance, spirit and passion. "Bluettes" was a charming, quaint conceit in which Miss Laidlaw expressed the soul of a saucy coquette.

"Primaavera" her closing number, proved to be an instant hit with her audience, and the eventual dance programme reached its artistic apex.

The dance program was interspersed by aquatic diversions, in which Miss Schlotth, who is instructor of swimming in Portland's public schools, presented four of her youngest girls.

Scientific diving in its varied developments, a fine and fascinating demonstration of different strokes and exhibition swimming was given by Bertha Grover, Ada Stark, Loreta Beaudette and Elizabeth Christman, the oldest of whom is 11 and the youngest 7.

BIBLE REWRITTEN BY AD MAN, FORD'S PLAN

Manufacturer Hoped to Have Holy Writ Modernized.

PLAIN ENGLISH HIS DESIRE

Millionaire Motor Maker Asserts He Can Read but Dislikes to Do So Out Loud.

MOUNT CLEMENS, Mich., July 22.—That at one time he had considered having his advertising manager rewrite the Bible into plain modern English, Henry Ford admitted today in the course of his examination on the witness stand by counsel for the Chicago Tribune.

The disclosure was made by Mr. Ford in answering a question involving Charles Brown, in charge of the Ford advertising activities. The plan, however, was not carried out.

Mr. Stevenson, counsel for the Tribune, in concluding his examination of Mr. Ford asked the witness if he was opposed to higher education. He denied that he was.

"After some hesitation, and in justice to yourself, Mr. Ford, I feel that it is best to ask you if you can read. The impression has gone out here, by your repeated declarations to read from important papers, that you cannot read can you?"

"Yes, but I read slowly and am bothered by hay fever, which makes it unpleasant for me to read out loud. I don't like to do it for that reason."

Ford Lawyer Takes Witness. After six days of examination by Elliott G. Stevenson, counsel for the Chicago Tribune, defendant in the $1,000,000 libel suit, Mr. Ford was interrogated today by his friend and personal attorney, Alfred Lucking.

Incidentally it became known Mr. Ford has not ceased his efforts to promote world peace. Edwin J. Pipp, manager of a news bureau established by Mr. Ford at the beginning of the suit, announced it was planned to send a newspaper correspondent with President Wilson to report the latter's speeches in support of the league of nations, and the bureau, it was said, will contribute the correspondent's stories to a list of papers which have been taking the report on the present suit.

Income Side Issue. It appeared that Mr. Ford pays little attention to his income or what is done with it. He was building the great Ford hospital in Detroit when the United States entered the war, and it is now operated by the government.

"What did that hospital cost you?" asked Mr. Lucking. "I don't know."

"It cost a couple of millions anyway, didn't it?" "Yes, more than that I think; three or four millions perhaps," said Mr. Ford.

He established a refuge for Belgians in England in 1914 and still maintains it, but said he did not know exactly what it was costing him.

Questioned as to war work in the Ford factory, he said he had all of them devoted to some form of war work. He added that he dropped everything else and gave his full time to supervising this work.

Too much Turkish or Just enough Turkish?

IN one way, at least, smoking is exactly like eating.

The more rich and delicious a certain food is, the more care people take to avoid eating too much of it—for instance, plum pudding or candy.

The same rule applies to smoking.

Cigar smokers, for example, are today more careful to avoid too many rich, heavy Havanas. (In fact, more and more cigar smokers now smoke cigarettes too, to help cut down the number of cigars.)

In the same way, cigarette smokers are learning that Turkish tobacco, delicious as it is, is so over-rich or heavy that a man can easily smoke too much of it.

But they are learning also that, instead of cutting down the number of cigarettes per day, they can cut down on the proportion of Turkish in each cigarette.

How to reduce on Turkish

THEY can do this by switching from straight Turkish to part Turkish, or "Turkish blend," cigarettes.

The first Turkish blend cigarette ever made—and the one which has always held first-rank importance—is Fatima.

Fatima contains more Turkish than does any other Turkish blend cigarette.

Perhaps this is the main reason why so many smokers of straight Turkish cigarettes keep switching to Fatimas.

Less worry about "too many"

ANOTHER reason undoubtedly is the fact that Fatimas treat smokers so kindly. The Turkish is so perfectly "balanced" by the other tobaccos in the blend that Fatima smokers never have any worry about smoking "too many."

At any rate, whatever the reason may be, Fatima keeps on attracting more and more of those smokers who, if they preferred the fancy, expensive, straight Turkish cigarettes, could easily afford them.

This is shown, of course, by Fatima's record in having won the top notch in sales at so many of the fashionable clubs and hotels and other prominent places all over the country (see below).

How much is "just enough"?

DOES not Fatima's record seem to prove that this is the one cigarette containing just enough Turkish? Not too much nor too little Turkish, but just enough. Make a test for yourself.
