EXODUS OF CROOKS NOTED

ACTION ATTRIBUTED TO MEETING OF SHERIFFS HERE.

Annual Convention of Oregon Association Opens at 10—Sheriff Hurlburt to Entertain.

Though no excursion rates were offered, police circles yesterday noted a great exodus of professional yeggs, pickpockets, gunmen, burglars and "vags" to say nothing of a couple of unemployed murderers. Most of the tickets purchased were for small towns and cities throughout the state, it is said.

INVESTORS TO TESTIFY IN TRIAL OF PUTER AND SONS.

Defendants Alleged to Have Taken Money by Fraud for Old S. P. Holdings.

MARSHFIELD, Or., Aug. 7.—(Special.)—To aid the government in the prosecution of S. A. D. Puter, his two sons and others alleged to have fraudulently obtained money from people about here on representation that persons who had applied unsuccessfully to the Southern Pacific for purchase, could present their indorsement and thus have first choice. The forfeiture bill was duly passed, but it had no effect in it for the persons who had invested. Rumors of the trials have been current for the past three years, but postponements were made from time to time, and it was recently announced the chief defendant, S. A. D. Puter, who was under bond, had been arrested in China and would be returned to California in season for the September trial.

HOOD RIVER-CASCADE LOCKS ROAD OPENING INDEFINITE.

Valley Highways Reported in Fair Condition—Many Motorists Go to Mountain.

HOOD RIVER, Or., Aug. 7.—(Special.)—Paving work between here and Cascade Locks on the Columbia river highway is progressing more slowly than had been anticipated, and plans for the opening of the route still remain indefinite. Assurance has been given by contractors, however, that the road will be open for traffic Sunday. A steam shovel, brought from the Hood river-Mosier link, is eating its way on a new grade between the city and Rutton hill. This two-mile stretch remains blocked, but a convenient detour is made through the Frankton and Belmont orchard districts. All valley highways are now in fair
