Torkelson and La Grand assert that police inspectors Kelleher, Snow and Tackaberry, who worked on the case and arrested the murderer, co-defend-ants in the suit, are not entitled to the reward, insisting that the entire amount should go to them because they found Liard's cap, necktle, letters, etc., the morning following the slaying, without which evidence they assert no arrest or conviction would have followed. Esther McFarland, landlady where Liard was caught, is another claimant, on the grounds of luring Liard to a trap set by the police officers in a room which had been occupied by a consort of Liard.

to subside today.

County Clerk Beveridge was rerestrained from obeying the peremp tory order of the county commissioners to give out warrants on the county treasurer for $332 in payment for gasoline and oll used in their privat. au-tomobiles, by an injunction granted by n: r come to issue, but if it does not it money will remain in the county tremaury. The county clerk and county tremaury have no personal interest in the payment of the commissioners' pri-vate debts with county funds and are not likely to press the case unless pre-valled upon by the commissioners, who are in danger of personal suit to collect the money for their gasoline books. "It is possible that the Standard Oil company and the Associated Oil com-pany may prefer to intervene as parties in the suit and demand a showdown, to find out if they can ever expect their money from the county or whether it money from the county or whether it will be necessary to collect their bills from the commissioners personally."

19 SOLDIERS DUE TODAY Troop Movement Wanes, but Portland Will Entertain All.

Movements of troops from the east to Camp Lewis via Portland for disto Camp Lewis via Portland for dis-charge are becoming fewer and fewer, and within a short time it is expected that nearly all the northwest men who served during the war will be back in civil life. Portland continues to ex-tend a welcome to every group that ar-rives, however, and the Portland hos-pitality will be maintained until the last man is home. Today a contingent of 12 men will arrive in the city from Newport News. They are scheduled to reach here at noch and will be met by the welcome committee. No other troops are on their way west via Portland at pres-ent, according to information received at the Liberty temple.
