

KENDALL GETS ARENA FOR BOXING MATCHES

Milwaukie Promoter Signs Lease for Car Barns.

PLACE WILL SEAT 6000

Makeup of Opening Card Not Certain—Earl Baird May Meet Local Aspirant.

As a boxing center Milwaukie, Or., became a reality yesterday by the signing of a lease for one year between the Portland Railway, Light & Power company and Frank Kendall, matchmaker of the Milwaukie boxing commission, for the use of the old car barns of the company at Milwaukie as a boxing arena.

The building is 110 by 240 feet and will be remodeled so as to seat 6000 people. Work on the building will commence at once, according to Matchmaker Kendall, who hopes to be able to hold a card in the new Milwaukie county city some time this month.

The Portland Railway, Light & Power company was represented in the deal by E. J. Morgan of Portland. While Frank Kendall acted for the members of the Milwaukie sportsmen, it was at first planned to use the arena made famous by Bobby Burns, Frankie Gratton and Larry Sullivan, formerly known as the Friars' club, as an arena, but this plan was abandoned when it was learned that the car barns were available.

Frank Kendall, who will arrange the boxing programmes for the Milwaukie stadium, is a personal friend of Mike O'Dowd, middleweight champion of the world, and it is expected that he can prevail upon the champion to come west and appear in at least one bout some time this winter.

Since being appointed matchmaker at Milwaukie, Kendall has opened negotiations with some of the most prominent boxers in America. In the first card Earl Baird, former amateur featherweight champion of America, and later a lieutenant in the aviation corps, may be used with some good local boys. Kendall is of the opinion that as long as there are local boys who are capable of giving a good account of themselves they should be given the preference. The exact date of the show depends on how long it will take the contractor to complete the work on the arena.

Jack Grant last night signed Carl Martin and Jack Sheldon to appear in a four-round bout on the card of October 8 at the Heilig theater. Martin spent 22 months in France as a member of an engineering regiment and look part in 11 bouts while abroad, losing only one, that to the lightweight champion of France.

Sheldon is a recent arrival here and is said to be a good boy. He boxed several times in Seattle and Tacoma before coming here and according to reports from the Puget sound, can hold his own with the best of them at his weight.

"Kid" Exposito, who lost a six-round decision to Freddie Anderson at the last card here, bewails the fact that he was forced to break clean. The "Kid" had the following to say to the scribes in San Francisco upon his return: "When the referee told me we had to break clean, I knew I was beat," says Exposito. "You and every one who has seen me battle in the local ring know what a clean break means to me. I depend solely on my striking ability and mix-ups to win for me, so what chance did I have when I had to step back when in close?"

An English paper says that Joe Beckett has heavy shoulders and is very deep chested. That would indicate that if Beckett fights Jack Dempsey he will fall far forward.

Billy Nelson, Portland lightweight, who has been in San Francisco for several months, will meet a boy named Chris Derrick in the Seal Rocks city tonight. They will tangle in a preliminary bout.

Both Valley and Alex Trambitas will box in San Francisco at Dreamland rink tomorrow night. Valley will tangle with "Speedy" Murphy, while Alex tackles "Kid" Herman.

After his bout with Sammie Murphy will leave for Tacoma, where he is scheduled to box Frank Farmer on October 3.

PHESANT BAGS ARE SMALL

Few Hunters Find Birds Even After Braving Rains.

ALBANY, Or., Oct. 1.—(Special.)—Though wet, rainy weather yesterday and last night decreased the number of hunters materially, hundreds of men were in the fields of this section of the state today after China pheasants. The general report is that the birds are unusually scarce in most sections.

Many hunters from Portland and other Oregon cities hunted today in Linn county. Some fared well, but because of the general scarcity of the pheasants this year, more failed to get the limit.

Redmond Lad Wins Recognition in A. A. U. Games After Victories on Coast.

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene, Oct. 1.—(Special.)—Arthur Tuck, sensational Redmond, Or., athlete, who during the past summer won national fame under the colors of the Multnomah Athletic club of Portland, registered in the University of Oregon this morning. Tuck came into prominence during the state high school meet here last spring, when he won the state championship over a field of 150 schools. His work in the aprima, javelin and discus caused no end of comment.

In the meet here, held during the university junior week-end, he stood 35 points, taking seventh place. His time for the 100 yards was 18 seconds flat and his mark of 145 feet in the javelin event was better than that established during collegiate meets here.

During the summer Tuck appeared under the auspices of the Multnomah club, and besides taking part in several meets of the northwest he was sent east to represent the Portland organization in the A. A. U. meet in the east. He won first place in the javelin in the junior 30 U. meet and captured third in the senior meet.

Tuck probably will make his first appearance in a lemon-yellow suit this spring, when he is expected to be one of the mainstays of the freshman team. Tuck has been pledged to the Sigma Nu fraternity here on the campus.

Other schools of the state as well as eastern institutions have been invited to meet him in the fall.

Horse Notes.

Eighty years ago, when light harness racing was in its infancy, each course operated under its own code. This was continued until almost all of them were blended by the New York Trotting club. Its rules were used until the National Trotting association was organized in 1876. Since that date its code has been the basis of trotting rules all over the world, the only modification being in Russia, where horses are classified by their wingings.

From 1876 to 1914 horses were classified by records. In 1914 the trotter was adopted. Under it only the time made by winners of races is considered in determining eligibility.

The trotter with a winrace of 2:05 or better cannot get an engagement this year. Under the rules a winrace stands for life, while the time allowance is one second a year. In other words, the horses which the public want to see above all others are anchored. They were shackled by the records, which are strangling the business.

Today there is but three seconds between the limit of racing speed and the first-class race on a mile track programme, while the space between the time made by the winner of the fastest and slowest class race is from five to six seconds. With the trotters on the mile tracks the limit runs from 2:04 to 2:10 and with the pacers from 2:02 to 2:08. On the long half-mile tracks it runs from 2:10 to 2:18 for trotters and from 2:08 to 2:15 for pacers. This narrow margin makes a free-for-all trot impossible, while the number of front line pacers on the mile tracks is reduced to six or eight, providing they all meet at one point. When they separate all that can be given is specials.

Early progress in the tug was not so promising for the "frosh," for a few minutes after the start the upper classmen showed form by jerking their opponents to the very water's edge. Cold weather added to the energy with which the teams attempted to keep dry. Greater endurance, better coaching and extra weight won for the "frosh."
