Count Leopold von Berchtold, former Austrian foreign minister, is staying in Switzerland, according to a Daily News correspondent telegraph.

There was in fact, a report that such an attack had been made by Count von Berchtold, but I cannot now remember its source. In any case there was no reason to doubt it.

Joseph Not Consulted. Emperor Francis Joseph had left Vienna and I was unable to consult him, but I reported what had been done on the same day and no comment was made.

Clear Conscience asserted. It is stated that Germany was informed only 24 hours before the onset of the war.

This happened very recently. Deaver first learned of Holt's alleged intrusion when he received the following anonymous letter: "You are the biggest boob in this town. Do you know what your wife and Holt are pulling off? Say, man, you had better wake up and do a little night watching at home. The old man has tried to make a date with my wife lately and several others for that matter. He thinks he is a regular lady killer since your woman fell for him. He wanted to take mine for a joyride, or show, or supper—close up the store any old time—didn't give a hang about business. Now, when I don't run that out of town, why, I will see you people are the talk of South Alki. It is getting too raw for respectable people to stand much longer. Don't take my word, but watch and find out for yourself what's going on when you ain't around."

1500 Miles Covered With 50-Cent Expenditure.

High Cost of Traveling Means Nothing to One Oregon Woman.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 1.—The high cost of living—including the high cost of traveling—means nothing to Mrs. Adah Bradley, who has just arrived home with six children after traveling from Silver Lake, O.—a distance of 1500 miles—at a total financial expenditure of 50 cents.

Mrs. Bradley lived 18 years in Eastern Oregon, having gone there as a migrant for a hand in raising missionaries and remaining to marry a rancher and become the mother of six. More than a year ago she said, her husband and she had not seen him since. He left behind him an elderly horse and a two-wheeled carriage, minus a top, but equipped with loose spokes in the wheels.

Finally, in despair at her situation, Mrs. Bradley put her children, a frying pan and all the family clothing into the carriage, hitched the old horse to it and started for Los Angeles. She had just 50 cents in cash, but much courage.

The day of their departure was May 15, 1918. They made the trip in a little less than four months. The stopped at friendly farm houses and when they reached an orchard where the crop was being harvested, she went to work. Either her eldest child, 12 years old, helped her. Homer, 11, the only boy, did the same. Rose, 8, did what she could along the same line. Mary, 7, took care of Iris, 4, and Grace, 2, the baby.

"We had to suffer hardships, of course," said Mrs. Bradley, "but we found the hearts of all the people we met were big. Now that it is over, I think it was a wonderful experience. What we want now is a place to start life again."

TREATY VOTE UP IN SENATE TODAY

Friends Say 36 Fall Amendments Will Be Beaten.

REPUBLICANS CALL IT TEST

Both Parties Agree to 5-Minute Discussion Rule and Ballot Before Adjournment.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—The first vote on amendments to the German peace treaty will be taken in the senate tomorrow afternoon.

Formal agreement was reached late today by republican and democratic leaders to call up at 2 o'clock the 36 amendments proposed by Senator Fall, republican of New Mexico, adoption of which would eliminate the United States from representation on numerous foreign commissions created by the treaty. The agreement provides for discussion under the five-minute rule and a vote before adjournment tomorrow night.

Democratic leaders declared tonight that all of the amendments would be beaten. Some republicans admitted progress that this claim was correct, but emphasized that the vote would not be an accurate test of the lineup of the forces on the question of ratifying the treaty with the league of nations covenant. Indeed, some democratic spokesmen have stated that progress that this claim was correct, but emphasized that the vote would not be an accurate test of the lineup of the forces on the question of ratifying the treaty with the league of nations covenant.

Action Would Clear Way. Action by the senate upon the Fall amendments would clear the way for consideration of the pact and hasten its final disposition. The opinion was expressed today by a senator high in the councils of the majority party that treaty discussion might end in two weeks with a vote immediately thereafter.

This view was quite at variance, however, with that expressed by Senator Wolcott, democrat of Delaware, who, in the course of a 26,000-word speech, declared at the present rate of progress it would require two, if not four months, to hear all that may be said concerning ratification.

Senator Wolcott devoted the greater part of his address to the Irish question and declared the league of nations covenant supplied the method by which the cause of Ireland could be brought before an impartial tribunal for hearing.

In announcing that he would vote here to answer a charge of the Irish league "a chance to live and America a chance to fulfill her mission," Senator McLean said of the senate rejection of the treaty: "The entire volume of the authors in the hope that its reservations that would give the league a chance to live and America a chance to fulfill her mission."

will look for peace where peace may be found.

When debate was resumed today in the senate, Senator Wolcott, democrat of Delaware, charged that republican leaders had droppily fostered opposition to the league, tempting Irish sympathizers by making it appear that article X would require American soldiers to go to Ireland to put down a fight for independence.

"Any man who reads the article," he said, "will readily see that it imposes no such obligation on this country."

"If the United States, after adoption of this league of nations containing article X, after adoption, should desire at some future time to go to war with Great Britain in defense of Ireland, it should find a method of doing so without in any sense violating her obligation under article X."

The senator said he was venturing on ground not previously discussed in the senate in making the statement, and added that he did so "for the reason that I believe it to be true that sentiment in the United States in favor of conflict with England in behalf of Ireland is so strong in some places as to have effected desire to a certain extent at least, in this body, and for the further reason that it would be unfortunate for the covenant if, after adoption, it should continue to receive the ill will of a large body of our citizens because of a supposed injustice done by article X to the cause of Ireland."
