

PLUMB PLAN VOTE STARTS FORUM ROW

Resolution Deferred in Respect to Visiting Speaker.

C. C. DILL EXPLAINS PLAN

Boishevistic Tendency of Profit-Sharing Proposal Denied Because Violence Not Intended.

Consideration of the Plumb plan of railway control and operation, presented before members of the Portland Chamber of Commerce at the members' forum, nearly precipitated a riot in that staid body yesterday noon, when at the close of the address a member arose and moved that it be the sense of the gathering that the Plumb plan and any other "socialistic" plans be condemned utterly.

Clarence C. Dill, former representative of Spokane, now touring the country under the auspices of the "Plumb plan" league of Washington, had concluded his address upon the Plumb plan, and about half of those present had risen to their feet preparatory to adjournment, when C. W. Hodson raised his voice above the scraping of chairs to introduce a resolution couched in the following words:

Condemnation is Asked. "Resolved, That this assemblage recommend to the board of directors of the Portland Chamber of Commerce that the board place the chamber on record as condemning the Plumb plan or any other plan of railway operation based upon socialistic theories."

Amendment is Introduced. A motion was introduced amending the original motion and providing that the matter be laid on the table, and this was carried by a large majority.

Catastrophe is Foreseen. "Business should exist primarily to serve and not to profit," declared the speaker. "As combinations and monopoly have grown, the gulf between the proprietor and the worker has widened and widened until now the country is on the brink of catastrophe."
