Matches Afford Opportunity for Quick Advancement.

FARMER BOUT IMPORTANT

Victory Over Logger Would Place A. E. F. Mixer on Road to Fistic Prominence.

Within the next few days Leo Cross, Portland light-heavyweight boxer, will have the opportunity to jump from a now practically obscure position to the top rung on the heavyweight pugilistic ladder on the Pacific coast.

Next week Cross is billed to battle six rounds against Ole Anderson in Aberdeen. Anderson recently shaded Willie Meehan in a hard-fought contest in Seattle.

Joe Rivera, the Mexican battler, and his manager, Bob Laga, are due to arrive in Portland this morning from Los Angeles.

Heavyweights galore are breezing into San Francisco, and they now have enough to start an elimination tournament among themselves that would take all winter to decide.

Among those now thriving around the bay section are Jack Dempsey, Thompson, Bill Lauer, Willie Meehan, K. O. Kravosky, Al Norton, Roy McCormick, Willie Weis, Pinkie Lewis, Bob Grant, Jack Ryan, "Gunboat" Smith, Jim Johnson, "Goats" Levin, Carl Morris, and a host of others too numerous to mention.

Bobby Ward, the St. Paul lightweight, who arrived in Portland several days ago, will start training in a few days. He is ready for all comers. Jack Grant has promised Sol Cohen, who is looking after Ward's business, a main event at the first November card of the commission.

George Ingie, the Seattle lightweight, who has fought in Portland a number of times, is now in Manila and was forced to throw up the sponge in a fight against a boy named Iron Bux in Manila recently.

Ted Hayes, one-time lightweight fighter and now matchmaker for the Queen City Athletic club of Milwaukee is in San Francisco. His object of the trip is to sign Willie Meehan and Battling Oriega for a series of matches at his club.

Chaire Bromoo writes that he defeated "Kid" Marcus at Bakersfield, Cal., last Friday and Billy Alvarez at Teft, Cal., Monday night.

Sulky Lights.

McDONALD flattered up to the footlights for the first time this year during the Lexington meeting. On the opening day he won a division of the Walnut Hall cup with Baron Cegantle in 2:05 3/4.

After driving Molly Knight in the Kentucky Futurity under a handicap caused by his injuries sustained in an accident at Syracuse, Geers came back and won the Kentucky Stake with her from Abbie Putney in the mud in 2:07 3/4.

Fred Egan proved a double event winner at Lexington with John Quick in 2:08 and the 3-year-old Peter Volt in 2:11 1/4.

The members of the Fleming family, who have been in the American racing affairs from Hudson Bay to Texas, were very much in evidence at Lexington.

won a division of the Walnut Hall cup for Hillandale Farm with Selka in 2:05 3/4, and chased Edith Carter out in the Ashland purse with Nedda in 2:07 3/4.

McDevitt won his second Transylvania with Prince Loree in 2:05 3/4, his former being annexed with Joan in 1919. Royal Mack was the conceding horse and Prince Loree defeated him on account of the Royal McKinney gelding having considerable hand racing luck.

David M. Look, the owner of Castleton Farm, had two very enjoyable afternoons during the Lexington meeting.

NEW SERIES IS PLAN

McCREIDIE FOR POST-SEASON COMPETITION FOR MINORS.

Plan Calls for 21 Post-Season Games in South—Players to Draw Pay or Share Out.

Judge W. W. McCredie, owner of the Portland baseball club, has an idea of his own in regard to playing the minor league championship series in 1920.

McCredie would not only bring the American association pennant winners out to the coast, but also the international flag catchers. The plan, which is a very feasible one, follows:

In the first place, after the 1920 coast league race comes to an end and the championship has been decided, the four teams placing in the first division would be lined up and play a three weeks' series of 21 games, each team playing seven games, the contests to be played off in San Francisco and Los Angeles.

Thus the two high coast league teams and the two other class AA confalon winners would hook up in the 21-game series. In case only the American association champions accepted the invitation, then the three high coast league teams would be included.

The Judge would have the entire gate receipts pooled and the "kitty" divided up between the four teams competing, according to the way they finished—for instance, 40 per cent to the title winner, 30 per cent to the next best, 20 per cent to the third team and 10 per cent to the fourth club in the post-season play. All percentages would, of course, be deducted after the expense of running the series had been paid.

As to the players McCredie would give them the option of playing for the same salary as they got through the season or let them waive their salary and play for an appropriate cut of the receipts, which would have to be decided by them before the start of the games.

Judge McCredie is not certain that the Beavers will finish first next season, but he is certain in his own mind that they will not drop below second place.

President Hickey of the American association wants to sign up an agreement to send his pennant winners out to the coast for the next ten years. Just what the international league heads might have to say on the subject is not known.

Luzerne Blue, stellar Beaver first baseman, left for his home in Washington, D. C., yesterday, where he will spend the winter.

Irve Higginbotham, former star pitcher of the Portland club, blew in from Seattle yesterday and spent the day looking up his old pals. Higginbotham is now a farmer and owns a 200-acre ranch at Dallas, S. D.

Jack Quinn of the New York Yankees made one more start for the Vernon team to go back to the big league, but it will be a long time before he forgets his experience on the coast.

When Jack left big league scenes some years ago and drifted to the Pacific coast he was called upon to pitch a game at Salt Lake. Jack wasn't familiar with the high altitude in the Utah city and its effect on high scoring.

Before the game one of the players on the team asked: "How many runs do you want Jack?" Quinn replied: "Oh, get me about five and that will be all I need."

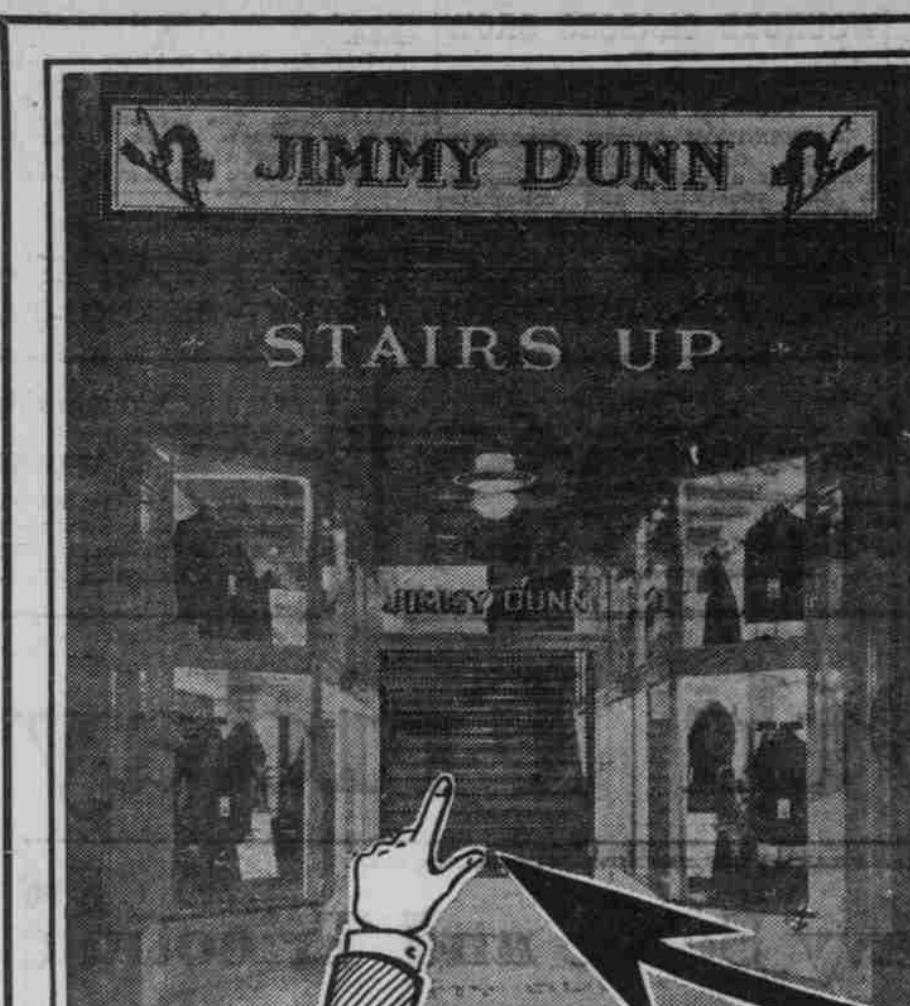

Every time Jack started a game in Salt Lake thereafter he put in an order for 25 bottles.

Harry Heilmann, former Beaver now with Detroit, arrives in Portland yesterday for a short visit.
