Proposed Route Covered.

The commissioners left New York on October 10 to cover the projected American route, to inspect landing fields and to secure the co-operation of local clubs and committees. Be-fore they have finished their journey, which circles the globe on the course that the derby will take, they will have traveled a distance of 32,000

The aerial derby, explained members of the commission, will be a touring contest in which any person may participate. They estimate that at least 100 American entrants will compete with airmen of other nations for the $1,000,000 in cash prizes that are contemplated. On the return of the commission from its world tour, with the data collected, the rules and regulations will be for-mulated and announced. The contestants may start from any point where there are referees, but they must girdle the globe to the point of

He characterized sales were ma Broomfield field as admirable and urged upon Oregon patrons of aviation the necessity for supporting the aerial derby project in every way. "The one great purpose of the aerial derby around the world is to open the world's airways," said Commodore Louis D. Beaumont, president of the commission. "It will be an historic event which will rank in importance with the discovery of America, the completion of the Panama canal and the marvelous flights across the At-

Mail Lines to Come.

"Today your participation in this event will give your city world-wide prominence, in the near future it will bring aerial mail lines and these will followed by aerial commerce and other important developments which will be valuable assets to your city." At the close of the session President Metzger of the Aero Club of Oregon, and Milton R. Klepper, past president, gave assurance in brie talks that hearty support of the local organization will be unhesitatingly given to the aerial world derby. Land of Strange Religious.

Syria, the land in which Christianity arose, is today the home of many faiths, ranging from peoples whose religion is little more than ancient of Mohammedanism, to the modern Bahaists, whose founder, Baha Ullah, lived here, where his son, Abbas Effendi, the present head of the cult, still makes his home. This article would be long and dull were it to attempt to catalogue all the faiths at present existing in Syria, with their variants and subdivisions. Of Christians there are many kinds, although the Protestants are few and
