VIEW OF UNIVERSITY OF OREGON CAMPUS IS TAKEN FROM AEROPLANE.

BIRDSEYE VIEW OF BUILDINGS.

EUGENE, Or., Oct. 25.—(Special.)—A remarkable photograph of the campus of the University of Oregon was taken from an airplane a few days ago by William B. Osborne of the forestry department in Portland.

Mr. Osborne spent several days here making daily flights in one of the forest patrol planes stationed here, photographing forest fires, mountain peaks and timber tracts. One day while flying low over the university campus he took a snap shot at it, being able to include all the buildings on the campus In the foreground is shown the foundation of the new women's building, in course of construction.

"I can't keep him," she said. "I make only $10 a week and it costs so terribly to live nowadays. I love him and God knows I want him, my little Robert, but I want him to have enough to eat and wear and be comfortable this winter. "Tve decided"

Word from state headquarters, sent to all county chairmen, and to captains of the many city divisions, is that today should be the last day of the drive, and that all campaign leaders and volunteer workers should report their tasks completed before 6 o'clock tonight. As the returns now stand, eight counties of Oregon have announced completed quotas, while Portland has $8750, or a little more than one-third of the Multnomah county quota of $21,000.
