

BAYONETS DICTATE ELECTION IN FUME

Annexationist Ticket Only One Not Excluded.

PEOPLE ARE INTIMIDATED

All Who Do Not Shout "Hurrah for D'Annunzio," Suspected. Military Coercion Evident.

FUME, Oct. 27.—(By the Associated Press.)—The result of the elections in Fume yesterday may easily be foreshadowed as a vote for the continuation of the national council controlled by the Italian annexationists. Only one ticket, that of the Unione Nazionale, or annexationist party, was in the field, with some candidates for the national council. No other party was allowed to conduct a campaign since the manifesto of D'Annunzio declaring Fume in a state of war.

The polls were guarded by Italian gendarmes and soldiers, and there was an extravagant display of military power which served to prevent disorder.

Practically every military conveyance was pressed into service to get out the vote, including girls and women, who went to the polls with shouts of joy at the novel experience.

Signs Placed on Streets. Walls and streets were placarded with slogans appealing to all citizens to vote as a patriotic duty and declaring that anyone not attending the polls will be a traitor and an enemy to an Italian Fume.

The towns now one great military stronghold. Everything, including pocketbooks and baggage, is most rigorously examined upon entrance.

Two American newspaper men were arrested and were roughly handled by gendarmes, who searched all their belongings, but set them at liberty later. The arrests were made, it was stated, on information of one Henry Purat, who claims to be an American with a home in New York and who handles D'Annunzio's foreign propaganda.

Military Coercion Prevails. The whole atmosphere of Fume is one of military coercion. The correspondent of the Associated Press was told by disinterested citizens that the only word was "Hurrah for D'Annunzio." Persons holding other views would be subject to suspicion.

"It is a terrible situation now," said a neutral to the correspondent of the Associated Press. "Whoever does not shout 'Hurrah for D'Annunzio' is watched. Nothing is impossible in Fume today, which is ruled by 9000 bayonets. They speak of elections—yes, elections at the point of a revolver.

"Are you for Italy? If not, with you?"

SOLUTION EFFORTS RENUEVED

Italo-American Difficulties Absorb France and England.

PARIS, Oct. 28.—(Havas.)—Efforts of France and England again are being brought into play to bring about a solution of the Italo-American difficulties over the recent report of the Fume problem, according to the Liberte today.

The paper reports that the American opposition to the modified Italian proposals is unchanged and that the response of State Lansing is in the negative.

WILSON VETO OVERRIDDEN

Beer and Liquor Taxation

So drastic is the enforcement act that a man, for instance, may be fined or put in jail for displaying a picture of a brewery on a keg, but his right to store liquor in his own home for his own use stood up against all attacks in committee and in both houses of congress.

Warning went tonight to dealers selling 25 per cent beer, without apparent risk because of the new law fixed one-half of 1 per cent as the legal limit of alcoholic content.

CALIFORNIA BREWERS SCORE

Demurrer to Federal Grand Jury Information Sustained.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 28.—An order sustaining the demurrer to the federal grand jury information filed against Rudolf Samet, president, and Louis Heinrich, secretary of the Rainier Brewing company, on charges of violating the prohibition act, was issued by the United States circuit court of appeals here today.

The demurrer was entered after a stipulation by Frank M. Silva, assistant United States district attorney, that as the word "intoxicating" was not mentioned in the information in relation to the defendants' output, the action should be dismissed.

BREWERS TO TEST MEASURE

Exemptions of Home Drinks Held in Interest of Farmers.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—Pointing out that the law describes as intoxicating any beverage containing as much as one-half of 1 per cent of alcohol by volume, Hugh F. Fox, secretary of the United States Brewers' association, in a statement tonight, declared that a large number of root beers and other recognized "soft drinks" contain or will develop more than this amount, unless harmful preservatives are used.

He says that exemption of home drinks in the bill was made to keep the farmer from "rising on his heels" if his hard cider or home-made wine should be interfered with.

"There remains nothing for the brewers and the trade generally to do except to comply with the Volstead bill until it is set aside," William T. Hirst, attorney for the New York State Brewers' association, said. He announced that a test of the new act will be made at once.

Phone your want ads to the Oregonian. Main 7070. A 6095.

AMERICAN CONSUL KIDNAPED FOR SECOND TIME BY MEXICAN BANDITS, WHOSE RELEASE WAS OBTAINED BY PAYMENT OF $150,000 RANSOM.

WILLIAM O. JENKINS.

William O. Jenkins, American consul agent at Puebla, Mexico, who was freed Sunday by the Mexican bandits upon payment by friends of $150,000 in gold, was kidnaped from his home at Puebla after being robbed of $30,000.

This was not Mr. Jenkins' first experience at the hands of Mexican bandits. Previously he was abducted from his ranch near Puebla, his ranch foreman was killed, some of his stock stolen and Jenkins himself was held until a ransom of $25,000 had been paid to the abductors.

The real facts, declared Mr. Barnes, "are that export permits have facilitated the export of wheat and wheat flour to the extent of 77,000,000 bushels in three and one-half months, an amount that has been exceeded only twice in our history."

Mr. Barnes admitted that the control which the grain corporation had exercised during the two years of the war emergency should be removed in the very near future, but he urged that steps to consummate this should be expedited as soon as possible.

One of the first steps, he stated, would be the elimination of export and import restrictions authorized under the wheat guarantee act. He recommended to the president the removal of the embargo restrictions on June 30, he added, but for fear that the removal of these restrictions might lead to advancing bread prices, action was deferred.

OIL BILL CHANGE FAILS

Raker's Amendment in Interests of Stockholders Defeated.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—Unsuccessful effort was made today by Representative Raker, Democrat of California, to obtain consideration for the house of an amendment to the oil leasing bill so as to prevent stockholders in an oil company from transferring their trust dissolution decrees or with the purpose of escaping anti-trust proceedings from owning stock in more than one oil company.

The proposed amendment, which is similar to that written in the bill by the senate, is in the hands of the committee, which was held to be out of order by Representative Madden, republican, Illinois, presiding temporarily as speaker.

Before the amendment of Representative Raker was offered, the bill was returned to eliminate a provision of the bill retaining for the states their taxing power over mineral lands leased by the government.

PRESIDENT STILL GAINS

Bill Giving Mrs. Roosevelt Franking Privilege Signed.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—President Wilson continued to show progress, said a bulletin today by his physicians. The bulletin follows: "There is no special change in the president's condition. His progress continues. He takes his luncheon and dinner in a semireclining position, which adds greatly to the enjoyment of his food and causes no fatigue."

The president signed the bill extending the postal franking privilege to Mrs. Roosevelt, widow of the former president, yesterday. The bill, anniversary of the birth of her distinguished husband.

Five wounded soldiers from Walter Reed hospital called at the White House today to present to the president a large basket of white chrysanthemums and American Beauty roses. They were received by Mrs. Wilson.

DEMOCRACY GREETES KING

Occupants Helped out when the senatorial approbation was weak.

While admiration for the king was apparent on every hand, Queen Elizabeth, with her gracious smile, was the target of more eyes at all times and the queen demonstrated to the satisfaction of at least one little American girl that being lady was not deprived her of any of her motherly affection and admiration for children outside the royal circle.

The incident occurred one moment after King Albert had concluded his address in the house. Representative

2 MUNICH ASSASSINS DIE IN INCREASED HIS PAY $2.00 A DAY

Markle Can Do More Work Than Ever Since Taking Tanlac.

Youths Meet Ghastly Fate During Revolution.

TWO ASSASSINS TRIED

Party, Under Military Conduct, Mistaken for Spartacists—Cell Is Turned to Room of Death.

(Copyright by the New York World. Published by the New York World.) LONDON, Oct. 28.—(Special Cable.)—A trial in Munich has just disclosed details of what is perhaps the most ghastly episode in the German revolution, according to a dispatch to the Daily Telegraph.

On the night of May 8 when the last sparks of the bolshevik resistance were being stamped out in the streets of Munich, it was reported to Captain von Stutterheim of the first company of the Alexander regiment that an illegal meeting was being held in a house in the district for which he was responsible. He gave orders that those at the gathering be taken into custody.

A squad of soldiers was dispatched to the scene. With leveled revolvers and shouts of "Death to the traitors!" they burst into a room in which 26 young men had assembled. The young men were surprised at this sudden and violent intrusion. They explained that they were members of the St. Joseph's Catholic Recreation club and that only the most innocent forms of amusement had brought them together.

Youths Shot by Crowds. All their protests were in vain. Stutterheim gave orders that they be delivered into the cellar of St. George's palace which had been set apart as a temporary jail.

The sight of a party of civilians under escort through the streets by soldiers and a non-commissioned officer roused the natural assumption that the prisoners were Spartacists and that they were being taken to the execution ground.

As they were led within the courtyard a large portion of the crowd surged through the gates. Shots at once began to pour upon the helpless club members. The escort tried to shield the captives from the assault, but their efforts were not successful, for seven of the prisoners were left dead in the courtyard with the bulk of the party got down into the cellar.

Assaults Put on Trial. Among the soldiers who joined the convoy as it passed through the streets were Jacob Muller, a young butcher who belonged to the Hayruth volunteers and a non-commissioned officer named Mackowski. They were the two chief defendants at the trial.

It was stated that the two men had the assault Muller was to some extent under the influence of liquor, as was Muller, who had received a liberal ration of wine with their evening meal. Mackowski placed himself at the entrance to the vaults and struck the captives as they passed down the stairs. Then Muller, Mackowski and another man plunged into the cell with their faces downward.

Mackowski ordered the 19 surviving members of the club to lie on the floor with their faces downward. The wretched men obeyed. Hardly had they done so when the soldiers began to empty their revolvers into them. Those of the prisoners who were not killed or incapacitated by the first volley jumped to their feet and screamed for mercy. Their appeals fell on muffled and deafened ears.

Fury Maddens Slayer. Muller, in particular, behaved with demagogic fury. He drew his sword and slashed about bodily with it at both living and dead. When he had blunted his edge with this work he snatched away the bayonet of one of his comrades and laid on with that.

As soon as none of the victims could remain longer on his feet the soldiers pounced about on the prostrate bodies, stamping on hands and faces and plunging their bayonets into those who still showed signs of life. Then they executed a wild dance of triumph over the bodies.

Five prisoners in all survived the massacre. One was saved by soldiers who accidentally recognized him as an acquaintance. The other four were either rendered unconscious by their wounds or had presence of mind enough to rattle their lives depended on their remaining absolutely motionless.

Reclamation Delegates Named. SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 28.—Governor Hart has named 12 Washington men as delegates to a reclamation conference to be held at Salt Lake Novem-

INCREASED HIS PAY $2.00 A DAY

Markle Can Do More Work Than Ever Since Taking Tanlac.

YOUTH MEET GHASTLY FATE DURING REVOLUTION.

TWO ASSASSINS TRIED

PARTY, UNDER MILITARY CONDUCT, MISTAKEN FOR SPARTACISTS—CELL IS TURNED TO ROOM OF DEATH.

(Copyright by the New York World. Published by the New York World.) LONDON, Oct. 28.—(Special Cable.)—A trial in Munich has just disclosed details of what is perhaps the most ghastly episode in the German revolution, according to a dispatch to the Daily Telegraph.

On the night of May 8 when the last sparks of the bolshevik resistance were being stamped out in the streets of Munich, it was reported to Captain von Stutterheim of the first company of the Alexander regiment that an illegal meeting was being held in a house in the district for which he was responsible. He gave orders that those at the gathering be taken into custody.

A squad of soldiers was dispatched to the scene. With leveled revolvers and shouts of "Death to the traitors!" they burst into a room in which 26 young men had assembled. The young men were surprised at this sudden and violent intrusion. They explained that they were members of the St. Joseph's Catholic Recreation club and that only the most innocent forms of amusement had brought them together.

Youths Shot by Crowds. All their protests were in vain. Stutterheim gave orders that they be delivered into the cellar of St. George's palace which had been set apart as a temporary jail.

The sight of a party of civilians under escort through the streets by soldiers and a non-commissioned officer roused the natural assumption that the prisoners were Spartacists and that they were being taken to the execution ground.

As they were led within the courtyard a large portion of the crowd surged through the gates. Shots at once began to pour upon the helpless club members. The escort tried to shield the captives from the assault, but their efforts were not successful, for seven of the prisoners were left dead in the courtyard with the bulk of the party got down into the cellar.

Assaults Put on Trial. Among the soldiers who joined the convoy as it passed through the streets were Jacob Muller, a young butcher who belonged to the Hayruth volunteers and a non-commissioned officer named Mackowski. They were the two chief defendants at the trial.

It was stated that the two men had the assault Muller was to some extent under the influence of liquor, as was Muller, who had received a liberal ration of wine with their evening meal. Mackowski placed himself at the entrance to the vaults and struck the captives as they passed down the stairs. Then Muller, Mackowski and another man plunged into the cell with their faces downward.

Mackowski ordered the 19 surviving members of the club to lie on the floor with their faces downward. The wretched men obeyed. Hardly had they done so when the soldiers began to empty their revolvers into them. Those of the prisoners who were not killed or incapacitated by the first volley jumped to their feet and screamed for mercy. Their appeals fell on muffled and deafened ears.

Fury Maddens Slayer. Muller, in particular, behaved with demagogic fury. He drew his sword and slashed about bodily with it at both living and dead. When he had blunted his edge with this work he snatched away the bayonet of one of his comrades and laid on with that.

As soon as none of the victims could remain longer on his feet the soldiers pounced about on the prostrate bodies, stamping on hands and faces and plunging their bayonets into those who still showed signs of life. Then they executed a wild dance of triumph over the bodies.

Five prisoners in all survived the massacre. One was saved by soldiers who accidentally recognized him as an acquaintance. The other four were either rendered unconscious by their wounds or had presence of mind enough to rattle their lives depended on their remaining absolutely motionless.

Reclamation Delegates Named. SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 28.—Governor Hart has named 12 Washington men as delegates to a reclamation conference to be held at Salt Lake Novem-

Our Inspiration that this season's business would be a top-notch; and our ample provision for it, has wrought infinite benefit to our customers and ourselves. Increased business justifies our forethought. Increased customer-satisfaction justifies our generous provision. Suits and Overcoats For all well dressed men $25 to $80

Mathis MEN'S WEAR Corbett Bldg., Fifth and Morrison. $7.50 to $15 Silk Pajamas

Why don't they put Ruts in a Race Track? Ruts that can be seen are never allowed. They spoil smooth running and speed. We've detected a rut in over 300,000 offices. It's no ones fault; it's hard to see but watch results when its smoothed out. Stenographers read notes at the side. Thousands of unnecessary motions tire them. Looking back and forth from notes to letter sheet disturbs thought. It makes concentration difficult. Eyes are out of focus. That twisted slump of the body breeds fatigue. Headaches develop—energy goes—mistakes creep in. There's no denying this practice is a RUT when the Line-a-Time System of Transcribing places the note book directly back of the typewriter. One thought at a time is exposed automatically and the stenographer sits upright. She's more alert and keen at the end of the day. She's better fitted for her next day's work. Do as more than 50,000 others have done. Put the Line-a-Time in on trial. No expense—No obligation. The Line-a-Time Mfg. Co. Main Office: Rochester, N. Y. Portland Office No. 617 Corbett Bldg. Phone—Marshall 125. Branches in 22 Cities. This is the seventh ad in a NEW series. The Butterick—Publisher The Delineator Everybody's Magazine Two dollars the year, each.

SHIPPING MAN IS TARGET

J. H. ROSSETER CHARGED WITH SHOWING FAVORITISM.

New Yorker Accuses Marine Official of Assigning Vessels to Further Private Interests.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—Charges that the shipping board had allocated government-owned ships to private corporations in which J. H. Rosseter, director of operations for the board, has an interest, were made today before the house merchant marine committee by Philip Mason, president of a New York steamship company. Mr. Mason said he had brought the matter to the attention of the department yesterday.

Mr. Mason said 48 ships had been assigned to the Pacific Mail Steamship company and W. H. Grace & Co., in which he asserted Rosseter is interested, and that 75 others had been allocated to the International Mercantile Marine, which he said was closely identified with those two companies.

R. L. Dean, attorney for the shipping board, told the committee that Rosseter "personally took no part in the allocations of the ships to these companies."

FEAST OR FAMINE

Theatrical advertising is often used as an example of a feast or famine business that falls outside the prosaic rules.

It is pointed out that with the show a great success, advertising is unnecessary; and with a failure, the more advertising the sooner the demise.

In the main, of course, this is true—advertising, like heat, intensifies action. And if a play or a cook-stove is unsatisfactory, the least said is the soonest mended.

However, there may be secured from seasonal successes a certain permanent asset.

Take Belasco, for example, has he not secured from his past triumphs a tangible asset in a favorable pre-emption for his new productions?

If you make silks or art creations that are ephemeral, some part of the season's triumph can be and should be retained as a permanent asset to your line.

For an industry of spasmodic successes, advertising acts as a great conserving balance-wheel.

Advertising space in the Butterick publications is for sale by accredited advertising agencies.

Butterick—Publisher The Delineator Everybody's Magazine Two dollars the year, each.

Only One "BROMO QUININE" To get the genuine, ask for full name LAXATIVE BROMO QUININE Tablets. Look for the name of Dr. W. G. WELLS on the wrapper. Sold in One Day. 30c—Adv.

Phone your want ads to the Oregonian. Main 7070. A 6095.