Two Classes in Every Community

the savers and the non-savers. The savers are sacrificing now, perhaps. The non-savers are going on in their happy-go-lucky way, spending every cent they earn.

It does not take much of a prophet to tell which class of people will be in the more comfortable circumstances ten or twenty years from now. You may be enjoying yourself now, but suppose that you were sick for several months. Would your family be able to live and pay the bills without charity, or getting hopelessly into debt?
