Said Finds Favor With Dr. Hondley. UNIVERSITY PARK, Or., Nov. 4 the taxpayers are willing to pay this actual cost of the auditorium and not permit the inpocent bondsmen to be forced into bankruptcy.

Existing conditions made it impossible for the contractor to make a just estimate of the price of work and material. Some people ciaim it was his lack of judgment and experience. Technically, of course, he should stand the loss. But since he cannot meet it, the debt fails to the bondsmen. As a taxpayer of this city, I am not in favor of seeing these bondsmen forced into bankruptcy. It is a serious matter to them and their families. We should not ask them to sacrifice all they have for the benefit of the entire citizenship of Portland. It would not be just for us to profit at their expense, which will be the case if they pay the bill for the material and work furnished the city in the completion of the auditorium.
