EVIL PROPAGANDA PUSHED

Assistant Secretary of State Tells of Revolutionary Activities and Explains Government Policy.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—The Russian bolshevik "have availed themselves of every opportunity to initiate in the United States a propaganda aimed to bring about the forcible overthrow of our present form of government." Chairman Wadsworth of the senate military committee has been informed by Assistant Secretary Phillips in a letter made public today at the state department.

The bolshevik, Mr. Phillips said, have at their disposal large quantities of gold, partly revenue of the former Russian government and partly a reserve belonging to the Roumanian government, and it is considered important not to give them means through commercial transactions to bring this gold into the United States where it could be used to sustain their propaganda of "violence and unreason."

Mr. Phillips said that while there was no blockade of Petrograd, so far as the United States was concerned, no licenses for the shipment of goods to bolshevik Russia were being issued. This policy of non-intercourse, he added, could not be continued after the proclamation of peace without additional legislation.

New Legislation Needed.
Mr. Phillips wrote in reply to Senator Wadsworth, who had asked why the administration had adopted a policy of non-intercourse with that part of Russia controlled by the bolshevik. His letter follows:

"In reply to your letter of October 20, 1918, concerning the so-called blockade of Petrograd, I beg to inform you that so far as the United States is concerned no blockade exists. It is the present policy of this government, however, to refuse export licenses for shipments to Russian territory under bolshevik control and to refuse clearance papers to American vessels seeking to depart for Petrograd, the only remaining bolshevik port. As you are aware these measures cannot be continued after the ratification of peace, unless there is new legislation.

"The policy of non-intercourse with territory under bolshevik control is based chiefly on two considerations. It is the declared purpose of the bolshevik in Russia to carry revolution throughout the world. They have availed themselves of every opportunity to initiate in the United States propaganda aimed to bring about the forcible overthrow of our present form of government.

Reds' Gold Not Wanted.
They have at their disposition in Russia a large quantity of gold, being partly a reserve of gold belonging to the Roumanian government which was stored in Moscow for safe keeping at the time of the German advance into Roumania. It is considered important that the bolshevik should not be given means through commercial transactions to bring this gold into the United States, where it could be used to sustain their propaganda of violence and unreason.

"The second consideration relates to the control which the bolshevik exercise over the distribution of necessities. All foreign trade has been nationalized. This means that there can be no dealing except with the bolshevik authorities. Moreover, since the fall of 1918, the bolshevik have maintained a system of discrimination in the distribution of food. The population is divided into categories along occupational and class lines, and receives food, so far as food may be available, in accordance with a scale which is adjusted to the maintenance of the bolshevik in power and the fulfillment of their programme for the extinction of the middle classes.

"The rations given to members of the Red army is estimated, in the official Bolshevik Gazette of February 6, 1919, to be three times the average for the several categories of the civil population. It has seemed altogether inadmissible that food and other necessities of American origin should be allowed to become the means of sustaining such a programme of political oppression.

Neutral Commission Fails.
The government has not been unmindful of the material distress for many innocent people within the bolshevik lines. An attempt was made last spring to provide for the release of these people through the cooperation of a neutral commission to be headed by Dr. Nansen. The project failed because the bolshevik decline to agree to the cessation of hostilities, which was considered an indispensable prerequisite. The department of state has subsequently studied other means by which necessities might be provided for these people of central Russia without being used for purposes of political constraint, and also to deceive. No feasible project has yet been found, but the problem continues to receive attention.

"In the meantime provision has been made for the immediate relief of the people in any areas which may be freed from bolshevik control as a result of current military operations. Stores of food estimated to be adequate for the relief of Petrograd for nearly one month were delivered to Russians by the American relief administration and are now at Viborg, Finland, whence they can be transported to Petrograd whenever that city may come under the control of authorities who will cooperate to deal. Definite arrangements have, moreover, been made with the United States grain administration to provide further shipments of flour for this region in the event of its liberation and for the people in the north of Russia, which is under the control of a democratic government."

government last September regarding conditions in Siberia, has expressed a willingness to co-operate with the American authorities, both military and civil, in that country. This announcement was made today at the state department, but the text of the Japanese reply was withheld. What plans were suggested either by the American or the Japanese government was not disclosed, nor was there any announcement as to whether the negotiations had been concluded.

The note sent by the United States to Tokio in September has never been made public by the state department, but dispatches from Tokio a month ago said the United States had pointed out that Japanese troops in Siberia had failed to protect the lives and property of the American railroad engineers, and had failed to co-operate with them in the broad spirit of conducting the railroad in the interest of the Russian people by permitting the transportation of food supplies, so necessary to the Russians.

New Constitution to Be Patterned After England's.

BERLIN, Nov. 4.—(By the Associated Press.)—A special dispatch to the Vossische Zeitung from Budapest reports that the crisis in regard to the formation of a government had been overcome by a compromise between royalists and republicans, which eventually will bring the son of the former emperor and king, Charles, to the throne of Hungary. Charles will be asked to make a new and formal declaration, renouncing his rights to the iron crown of Hungary, it is said.

His oldest son, Franz, according to the dispatch, will then be brought to Budapest, where he will be thoroughly tutored in Magyar traditions, the state council in the meantime assuming power under a sort of regency. The new constitution will be patterned after the English model.

OLD MINER LOSES HOME

Neglect to Patent Rights Leads to Loss of 300-Acre Diggings.

MARSHFIELD, Or., Nov. 4.—(Special.)—Down in Curry county, near the town of Curry, Cyrus Madden, who nearly 50 years ago started mining, has lost the last right to the 300 acre he operated on in his various mining ventures, and he had claimed for more than 40 years. In the early days Mr. Madden filed on and bought rights on other claims to aggregate 800 acres. The consolidated claims were held by him for a number of years. Farmers began to covet the property which he had not patented.

The result of his neglect in obtaining lasting rights was that piece by piece he lost the property and a recent decision of the government land office took the last acre, the site of his home for the past 40 years and until lately his residence. But Cyrus Martin has grown old and at 87 he is past the ability to provide for himself. With the loss of his remaining few acres he becomes a public charge.

CLEMENCEAU MAKES PLEA FOR INDUSTRY

French Premier Says Work Will Solve World Problem.

PRODUCTION NEED SHOWN

Treaty of Versailles Is Received in Farewell Address Delivered at Strasbourg, Alsace.

STRASBOURG, Alsace, Nov. 4.—(By the Associated Press.)—The solution of the many problems of the world is now facing may be summarized in the single word, "work." Premier Clemenceau declared in his keynote speech for the government party in the parliamentary elections campaign, delivered here today.

The speech also was his farewell message on the eve of retirement from political life, which he contemplated. His address, he declared, was not a message meant for France alone, but was an appeal to the entire world to renew its labors as they had been performed before the war and produce for the world's needs.

Brushing aside M. Millerand and others, he said, the 75-year-old premier mingled with the crowds of Alsatians who had broken through the cordon formed by the police, who were not too indiscreet in keeping them back. Pretty girls virtually mobbed the "grand old man" of France, who gave every appearance of enjoying the experience immensely. The girls and women welcomed him in the Alsatian dialect, which the premier does not understand, but their resounding kisses on his weather-beaten cheeks needed no interpreter.

This is the statement made by Dr. A. L. Dean, president of the College of Hawaii, and Dr. Harry T. Hollman, ex-physician at the Kailhi hospital.

CHALMOOGRA oil has been used for several years in Hawaii in treating leprosy, Dr. Dean said, but recently, he added, he had been able to separate the fatty acids from the oil and in its refined form it has been very successful.

"Our statistics have shown," Dr. Dean asserted, "that after the treatment no leprosy bacteria existed."

Dr. W. B. Hinson, of the East Side Baptist church, Portland, spoke "Roosevelt Day," Bruce Evans, evangelist, also spoke.
