the temper of the public is no longer to be trifled.

When a squad of L. W. W. prisoners were set to the task of digging a grave for Wesley Everest, the self-brought participant in the Armistice day assault and accused slayer of Dale Hubbard, they made no protest. Without a word they dug the trench and lowered the pine box in which rested the battered body of Everest.

"They were good dogs that," said one of those who saw the burial party at its work.

Driver Recently Tried in Connection With Death of Mrs. Nina Smith Placed Under Bail.

N. P. Sorenson, wealthy Portland timberman and president of the Bear Creek Logging company, was served with two warrants by the traffic department of the police bureau yesterday, charging him with reckless driving and with failing to report an accident which he is said to have had four automobile accidents in less than an hour Thursday night.

Mr. Sorenson put up $1000 bail and will appear to answer to the charges in municipal court today.

Street Car Is Hit.

According to charges made by the police, Sorenson drove his car into the rear end of a street car at Broadway and Nineteenth street Thursday evening at 5:15 o'clock. He is then said to have turned around, and driving down the wrong side of the street, collided head on with another street car.

It was but 45 minutes following this second accident, according to charges made against Sorenson, that he cut a corner at Twenty-third and Hoyt streets which resulted in his crashing into an auto belonging to the Seelye-Dresser company and driven by Carl Tuma, 927 East Tibbetts street. His career of collisions, however, was brought to an end just around the corner on Hoyt street, where he is said to have driven down the side of the street and collided with a machine driven by Mrs. Walter Honeyman, damaging Mrs. Honeyman's car and tearing a wheel from his own.

The traffic department declared yesterday that they had evidence that the car was driven by Sorenson at the time of the accident at Broadway and Nineteenth.

At Mr. Sorenson's home it was reported yesterday morning that he had been in a hurry to get home when he was picked up going 30 miles an hour down Milwaukee street. He said he had been up the valley for ten days. He was released.

Dr. William House, who was in a hurry to get home and get something to eat, was also released by the judge.

Other speeders fined were: W. Freese, $10; H. W. Hansen, $10; E. Hoecker, $12.50; J. Gray, $10; C. J. Clear, $10; C. T. Corbett, $17.50; R. L. Heister, $15; and Fred Miller, $20.

Punishments for violating the traffic ordinance included: George W. C. Low, $2.50; E. Gordon, $2.50; Thomas Bacon, $2.50; Hugh Colson, $5; T. Reeves, $2.50; C. W. Gleason, $2.50; J. Sumner, $2.50; D. L. Patro, $10; P. Z. Henderson, $2.50; W. A. Burlington, $2.50; A. J. Barton, $2.50; and W. Wood, $2.50.

Other fines levied were: A. E. Smith, for jockeying on a bridge, $4; V. F. Chunch, deflating muffler, $10; A. C. Bursarero, glaring headlights, $4.

FIGHT ON REDS RECALLED

PORTLAND MAN TELLS HOW UNIONS OUSTED RADICALS.

"U. S. Must Be Made Safe for Democracy," E. B. Fish Asserts Before Seattle Chamber.

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 14.—(Special.)—The story of an American union man's fight against reds and radicals in his own union and home country on Monday and Tuesday nights, and are supplied with radical books, which they take home. The story was told by E. B. Fish, Portland union man, told in simple and impressive language of his stand for Americanism when his fellow workers were being imbued with vagrancy and how his success in his own plant led him to enter the wider field against foes of the constitution and government. Mr. Fish said the problem has two phases: one the fight to Americanize laws, and the other to organize and unorganize who are discontented and unsettled; and the other to subdue red radicals who consider it martyrdom to have their lives in the murder of Americans. James E. Rogers, national director of the National Education Association, declared that community and civic work offer the best way to combat the danger that the new term for this work was not citizenship building.

ROBBERS LOOT POOLROOM

Craft walked up the stairway and entered the poolroom for a friendly game. The guard at the door at them inside, then covered them with a revolver and ordered them to hold up their hands.

The new arrivals thought the whole affair was a joke until the robber thrust the weapon against the man's chest and threatened to shoot. Then they submitted to search and began their game as soon as the robbers departed.

CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—An unidentified man, posing as a postal inspector who visited August Thummel in connection with the Pan Motor company trial, was accompanied with operations of the postal department. Mr. Thummel testified today in the trial of 12 officials of the Pan company accused of using the mails to defraud.

He referred to some blanks which he had received from the postoffice department and wanted to know why I had not filled them out and sent them in," said the witness.

This testimony followed charges that secret operatives have been annoyed by the family and slouches here were shadowing attorneys in the case. The charges were made against both Pandolfo and the prosecution.

Felix Wood bought stock in the Pan company before it was organized, he said. He is a rancher and bank president whose home at present is Durand, New Mexico.

"I had known Pandolfo since 1903 and though I would not make the business a success," he said.

W. H. Patten, a grocer of Denver, Colo., a stockholder, said that a postal inspector had told him "Pandolfo is one of the slickest crooks that the postoffice department has come in since the service of the mail was established, according to the witness, that Pandolfo was getting 50 per cent of the money coming in on the sale of stocks."

Henry Clark of Wheatland, Wyo., bought stock in 1916. He said that when he visited the Pan plant at St. Cloud, Minn., he found conditions as good as had been represented "only on paper."

"I expected no dividends before this time," said R. H. Hutchinson, an attorney of Spokane, Wash. "No one with any sense would believe it would take about a year to get the company into production."

Clark also attempted to influence the jury and the activity of detectives in following the defendants and the lawyers in the case also were made today during the hearing.

"When a woman all but embraces the jury and has to be kicked out of the courtroom, the matter is serious one for the men who send her and for the counsel connected with the men," said Judge Landis.

"I'll tell you gentlemen efforts have been made to engraft things in this case that would have disgraced the old north side state criminal court."

Augustus Thummel, a wealthy farmer of Parnell, Mo., told of a mysterious stranger who said he was a postal inspector, who had visited him.

Postal inspectors were questioned by the court, but denied having visited Missouri in connection with the case.
