ROELFS' ESTATE TO GO TO 242 HEIRS

Seven Years of Litigation Draws to Close.

TAZWELL INHERITS CASE

Special Act of Legislature in 1913 Passed to Facilitate Distribution of $100,000.

After more than seven years in litigation, traveling half a dozen times from county to circuit court and twice to the supreme court, and requiring a special law from the legislature of 1913 to facilitate its handling, the Mary Roelfs estate was virtually settled by Circuit Judge Tazwell yesterday at the close of a three weeks' hearing and the $100,000 property equitably distributed among 242 heirs.

Entering of the final order in what was generally conceded to be the most complicated case ever handled in Multnomah county, was postponed one month to permit two very distant heirs to submit proofs, but the main work was concluded yesterday. Mrs. Roelfs was an eccentric woman who died at St. Vincent hospital March 1, 1912, leaving an estate, chiefly in cash, valued at more than $100,000. Most of her property was inherited from her second husband, Thomas Jackson, her third husband, Fred Roelfs, is still living, his home being at Long Beach, Wash. The woman was 78 at the time of her death, and her closest relatives had died long before.

Courts Decide Division. Roelfs was bequeathed the income on $100,000 for the remainder of his life. There were other small bequests but the most of the estate was left equally between his cousins and the sisters of my deceased husband, Thomas Jackson. On the construction of that phrase, and particularly the meaning of the word "between" the matter went to the supreme court of Oregon which decided that Mrs. Roelfs intended to divide one-half her property between the sisters of her dead husband and the other half between her cousins.

All the cousins and sisters had long since died and the great task was tracing the family tree and determining the heirs of the great majority of whom never heard of the old woman. There was one contest of the will and numerous hearings on various phases. At one time there were 84 attorneys interested in the case for different reasons. After seven years of litigation there are but two attorneys so interested, F. P. Winter representing the sisters-in-law heirs and H. B. Adams representing the cousins.

More than three years were consumed in securing affidavits, E. P. Murphy, executor of the will, making one trip to Europe and C. T. Haas, attorney for the estate, making several transcontinental trips.

Former County Judge Gleason, who passed the case on to his successor, County Judge Tazwell, now Circuit Judge Tazwell declared yesterday for the cousins and the new name of "Plain Mary" promises to break the world's butterfat record for Jersey herds in Oregon. Mr. Doerfler and his family arrived from Oregon a few days ago and the new manager of the Ayerdale herd is already on the job. One of the cows under his management, known by the homey name of "Plain Mary," promises to break the world's butterfat record for Jersey herds in Oregon. One of the cows under his management, known by the homey name of "Plain Mary," promises to break the world's butterfat record for Jersey herds in Oregon.

Mr. Doerfler will continue to operate his Jersey farm in Oregon, having left his herd in charge of Karl Hanneman, who has been his herdsman for the past year.

These two levies were made for the purpose of covering an additional $2500 spent in developing the Braden-McClure ditch and power site, owned by the city, for future wants of the city. The diverting works, spillways and 1500 feet of canal of this waterway were rebuilt by the Gold Hill Irrigation district last season and are owned jointly by the city and district.

The city's lease on the local power plant, used for pumping purposes and owned by the Irrigation & Power company, successor to the defunct Rogue River Public Service corporation, has been extended for a period of two years, or until such time as the expenses of the city during the coming year at $52,693. This is an increase of almost $3000 over last year's budget but since the city valuation has been increased the levy will be approximately 13.5 mills for this year.

From all indications, however, the local school district will be unable to make the same showing as the city and an increased school levy is in prospect.

Formation was given out at the headquarters of the Co-Operative association here yesterday.
