BATTLE ROYAL FORECAST

Possibility of Three-Cornered Tie for Pennant Is Seen in Interscholastic Series.

Interscholastic Football League Standings.

Will the race for the 1919 championship of the interscholastic football league end in a three-cornered tie?

This is the question uppermost in the minds of high school football followers who have been watching closely the contents of the season's hearing.

Pep Rallies Held. If school spirit, football anything, the contest today will be a battle royal from the first kickoff to the final whistle.

At Washington the slogan is "Get 'em," and at Jefferson the slogan is "Get 'em," and at Jefferson the slogan is "Get 'em."

Tomorrow afternoon James John and Franklin meet, while Benson and Commerce play on Friday afternoon.

Three more games are scheduled for next week, which is the closing one in the 1919 interscholastic football season.

Both fighters live in St. Paul and are training here. Sport writers declare that Gibbons is not showing his old-time form, whereas O'Dowd's workouts have been reported to be the reason for the shift in the betting odds.

BOYS GO AT GOOD CLIP

George Brandon Wins Bout by Game Exhibition Against Neal Zimmerman, Who Wins Bout.

RESULTS OF LAST NIGHT'S BOXING MATCHES.

Joe Gorman of Oakland vs. Frankie Malone of Oakland; draw; 10 rounds, 125 pounds.

Bobby Ward of St. Paul vs. Murr Brown of San Francisco; draw; 8 rounds, 125 pounds.

Weldon Wing of Portland vs. Joe Coffey of San Francisco; draw; 10 rounds, 125 pounds.

George Brandon of Portland vs. Neal Zimmerman of Portland; Zimmerman won decision, 4 rounds, 120 pounds.

Bernie Dillon of Seattle vs. Mike De Pinto of Portland, draw.

Spurred on by the talk that they were roommates, Frankie Malone, Oakland featherweight, and Joe Gorman, formerly of Oakland but late of Portland, battled to a fast 10-round draw in the main event of last night's fight card staged under the auspices of the Portland boxing commission at the arena.

Referee Jack Day's decision did not meet the approval of those present, many of the customers thinking Malone should have had the decision for outboxing and outpunching Gorman.

Others voiced their approval when he raised the hand of the victor at the end of the 10th canto of milling. The shaggy little Spaniard made a whirlwind finish. Malone might have had a double, but it was a very small shade.

Gorman ripped in many a lusty punch and was willing to battle at all times. Malone started off well, stepping around Joe and darting in and out with a snappy left. Up to the sixth round he did not find a great deal of trouble in taking the fight by his boxing ability and caught Gorman some nasty wallops with a half open hand downward swing.

Gorman flinched. Hearing his bearings and began to reach Malone, who was firing slightly from his efforts. The last four sessions found the former Oakland featherweight slashing right and left, trying hard to land and keep on top of the San Francisco fighter.

They, as well as everyone present, received the surprise of their lives when suddenly in the fourth round, both the two were mixing toe to toe. Referee Day stepped in and told both to fight or he would stop the bout. He claimed both were pulling their punches.

Day's action upset both men and it took several rounds for the two to recover from the shock. Ward took the first two rounds puzzling Muff with his Gibbons' style of boxing, while the two were mixing toe to toe. The other other secured getting home and the rest of the mill was a slambang affair.

The Portland lightweight made a big hit but slacked up after the sixth round was past under the fusillade of Bronson's steady blows. The Portland lightweight has seldom looked better than he did tonight at the end of last night's match and is once again in strong in this neck of the woods.

The greatest fight of the night was the six-round setto between George Brandon, recently returned from two years' service in the navy, and Neal Zimmerman, the fast-moving local featherweight. Zimmerman won the decision and deserved it, but never felt that the Portland fighter was being treated to a greater exhibition of gameness than Brandon put up last night in the game with University of Oregon last Saturday.

RIDLEY MAY MEET ERTL

Fred Winsor Receives Offer from Seattle Man.

Kruvosky and Whills Scheduled to Fight in San Francisco Tomorrow Night—Benjamin Is Ill.

Fred Winsor, former manager of Jack Dempsey, heavyweight champion of the world, and a number of other leading fighters, who is interested in piloting Bud Ridley, the classy Seattle bantamweight, to the top of the class, is offering an offer to Clay Hite, Seattle promoter, yesterday for Ridley to meet Mike Ertle of St. Paul in the main event of one of the Milwaukee Athletic club's shows next month.

Hite is planning on booking Ertle and will begin training tomorrow on the coast against the much-touted brother of Johnny Ertle, the Denver bantam, in three rounds. Winsor is more than willing to let Ridley meet Ertle and if he can get the fight, he will let his protégé take on the St. Paul boxer.

Ridley arrived in Portland yesterday and will begin training tomorrow for his six-round match in Milwaukee on November 25. His opponent is yet to be selected by Matchmaker Frank Kendall, who has several good mixers in view.

K. O. Kruvosky will meet Harry Whills, the formidable negro heavyweight, in San Francisco tomorrow night. The promoter has granted that Whills will score a victory over Kruvosky and already has signed him to box Ole Anderson, the Tacoma heavyweight, in San Francisco, December 4.

Joe Benjamin is ill with a severe cold and probably will not box in the east this week. After several more matches Benjamin plans on returning to his home here for a short visit and while here may take part in several matches if the inducements are enough.

AGGIE-COUGAR TILT VITAL

Mathematical Experts Agree Oregon and Washington State Are Tied for Grid Honors.

WASHINGTON STATE COLLEGE, Pullman, Nov. 18.—(Special.)—Because of the championship muddle now existing on account of the Cougars' defeat at the hands of the University of Washington last Saturday, the importance of this week's contest between the Oregon Aggies and Washington State takes on a championship hue.

Although the Aggies have failed to negotiate a win this season, a victory by them over the Cougars will mean that, reckoned on a percentage basis, they will have relegated the hopes of Washington State for a championship to the discard.

Figured on a percentage basis, the University of Oregon and Washington State are now tied for first place honors, with two victories and one defeat each. The University of Washington, having lost to Oregon and won over Washington State, has a percentage of 500. Likewise, the California Bears, who were defeated by the Cougars, but defeated the Oregon Aggies, have reached the halfway mark on the percentage table.

It is generally believed here that California should win from Stanford Saturday at Berkeley, but that the Bears will lose to the superior offense of the University of Washington. The only hope of any conference team tying for the percentage is the California Bears, who were defeated by the Cougars, but defeated the Oregon Aggies, have reached the halfway mark on the percentage table.
