Keep the Home Baking Safeguarded

Housekeepers who have always used Royal Baking Powder with utmost satisfaction are sometimes importuned by canvassers to try other baking powders because they are cheaper or under the false pretense that they have been especially selected for Government use.

The Government is now using Royal Baking Powder and has used it continuously for forty years.

Be on your guard against cheap baking powders as they invariably contain alum which is derived from mineral sources.

The label on the can will show whether the baking powder you now use, or any brand new or old that may be offered, contains alum.

Royal Baking Powder is made from cream of tartar which is derived from grapes. It contains no alum, leaves no bitter taste and is absolutely pure.

"We always use Royal Baking Powder because we know when we use it we are not using anything injurious." — [From an unclassified letter. Name of writer given on request.]
