

SEATTLE WOULD GIVE MEET TO PORTLAND

Northern City Thinks Housing of Democrats Too Costly.

DR. MORROW GETS WORD

Oregon Committeeman Deems City Too Crowded in June to Care for Party Members.

If Portland wants to have the democratic national convention, A. R. Tillow national committeeman for Washington, is willing to help Dr. J. W. Morrow, Oregon national committeeman, fight for it.

It appears that Mr. Tillow wanted the convention held in Seattle and put the proposition to the city, but Seattle folk decided that there was a shortage of hotel accommodations and no hall big enough for the gathering.

Dr. Morrow sees drawback. "We could take care of the convention," admits Dr. Morrow, "for the stock show building is large enough for convention purposes, and I guess we could find room and board for all the delegates, alternates, candidates and visitors, but there is another drawback. The convention would be held probably in June, and Portland is well stocked with big gatherings for that month. We have the Rose Festival and immediately following the festival will be the Imperial Council of the Shrine, which will bring about 75,000 persons into Portland.

A considerable sum of money has to be raised by Portland to finance the Rose Festival and the Shrine convention, so that Portland should not be called on to host a national political convention. The latter comes at the wrong time of year for us to do so.

Compromise is suggested. "However, I'm willing to help Mr. Tillow and other western committeemen ask for the convention. We're entitled to some consideration and if we say we want the convention we may be able to compromise on counting a western democratic headquarters. It is my earnest desire to see a western headquarters located in Portland for the coming year and that is what I intend fighting for. Mr. Tillow should be able to aid us in this matter. Oregon went republican in 1916 and Washington went democratic so there is need for more democratic work in Oregon than in Washington or other western states. Establishment of a headquarters here would undoubtedly help materially.

Mr. Morrow is preparing to go to Washington, D. C., to attend the meeting of the democratic national committee, December 8, which is two days before the date of the republican national committee for its meeting. At both of these meetings the time and place for holding the national convention will be designated. Dr. Morrow and R. E. Williams, the respective republican and republican committeemen will be on hand.

Active Participation Planned. While it is customary for Mr. Williams to attend the meetings, in the past the democratic national committeeman from Oregon has been in the habit of attending his province to someone and consequently Oregon has not received much consideration in the arrangement of sub-committees. Mr. Morrow, by constant attendance and committee of arrangements, Dr. Morrow, who inherited the position of committeeman last summer, intends taking an active part in the meetings by being on the job in person.

Mr. Tillow is the man who, in the 1908 convention at Denver, opposed the fight to have a plank in the democratic platform that year recommending that the navy of the United States be divided between the Atlantic and Pacific waters. It required a long time, 11 years in fact, but Mr. Tillow has seen his wish materialize.

CALIFORNIA TRAVEL HEAVY

Persons Seeking Mild Climate Crowd Trains for South.

California travel is very heavy and indications are that the winter movement will eclipse previous records. All trains for the south are loaded and the California people are on most of them to accommodate persons seeking mild climate for the winter. The Canadian travel to the south for the winter is the heaviest it has been since before the war.

All of the railroads, both steam and electric lines, are making preparations for Thanksgiving trips and there will be the usual holiday journeys of students. The public has become educated on the new requirement of payment for holiday trips, and apparently the plan does not reduce the volume of business.

SCHOOL STRIKE WANES

Parents Assist in Returning Pupils to Vernon.

The dove of peace is smoothing its feathers and gradually settling back on its roost in the loft of Vernon school. The first student strike ever attempted here is adjusting itself with the aid of some of the parents in the neighborhood and yesterday there were but a few more than the ordinary number of vacant seats in the building.
