

SECTIONAL LINES TO CUT LITTLE FIGURE

Coming Washington Primary Simple Affair.

CANDIDATES SOLE ISSUE

Republicans Will Go Into Contest With Flock of Aspirants Representing West Side.

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 25.—(Special.)—With the republicans likely to go into the next primary campaign with a flock of west side candidates for the gubernatorial nomination and the democrats not even speculating about the availability of anybody who lives in eastern Washington, politicians are calling attention to the fact that geographical lines cut very little figure in the fight for first place on the ticket.

In the coming gubernatorial fight it is predicted by those politicians who have business which carries them up and down the state that issues and the man will loom much larger than the question of which side of the Cascades happens to afford an abiding place for a candidate.

This is especially true in view of the fact that the politicians cannot blame their tickets under the direct primary system.

"Thus far there has been no candidate suggested for gubernatorial nomination who is not known throughout the state and whose public record is not pretty well understood. At the same time a very large percentage of the voters know a great deal about the prospective candidates but could not tell, off-hand, where they reside."

East Side Not United.

The campaigns of each probably will be directed from Seattle and Spokane, in any event, and this sort of organization would tend to overshadow the location of a candidate's voting precinct.

Of recent years eastern Washington has raised no sectional issue that has been strong enough to unite the people of that section of the state. For that matter, the east side did not unite even when the anti-railroad issue overshadowed all other political considerations.

There would never have been any regulatory railroad legislation had the issue depended upon the east side, for if one wants to go back to the McGraw administration, it was McGraw himself, jammed through the Anderson freight-rate bill, in the first Rogers administration the fusion organization between democrats, populists and silver republicans was hopelessly entangled, and in the second Rogers administration the anti-railroad fight was led by Lieutenant-Governor Henry McBride as present, and later as acting governor, and Harold Weston, a King county senator, with W. Tolman, Spokane democratic senator, ranking third in the field.

Patrols Is Lucky.

Finally, a railroad commission was provided, the man who led the fight was Harry Fairchild of Bellingham. Fairchild made his fight when the railroads had grown weary of the eternal squabble was a bit of luck for him and in no wise detracts from the fact that the east side finally got its legislation through western Washington leadership.

Factionous politicians summarize the situation by declaring that when the east side enters into politics it specializes on the "State vs. Dorr" rather than "governors of the nine men sent to the United States senate six were elected from eastern Washington. The only three from the west side were Watson C. Squire of King, Addison G. Foster of Pierce and Samuel H. Piles of Snohomish. The east side contributed John E. Beiler of Walla Walla, John L. Wilson of Spokane, George Turner of Spokane, Levi Akeley of Walla Walla, W. L. Jones of Yakima and Miles Pinderster of Spokane. During two intervals both senators lived in eastern Washington.

CLARKE PAVING STOPPED

Pacific Highway to Be Made Passable for Winter Travel.

VANCOUVER, Wash., Nov. 25.—(Special.)—All of the paving of roads in Clarke county has been stopped for the winter, according to E. E. Doyman, county engineer. Work will start as early in the spring as possible.

The road between Vancouver and Orchard, six miles, is completed, but there is a short distance inside of the city limits to be paved. The Pioneer-Ridgefield road is completed and all but a mile of the Sara-Ridgefield road. That part of the Pacific highway, which was torn up for paving, will be made passable and probably some of the worst places will be planked and thrown open to the public December 4, or a little later.

VIENNA CONSERVES COAL

Dining Hours Regulated With View to Saving Fuel.

VIENNA, Nov. 12.—As a further economy in coal the city government has altered Vienna's age-old custom of the midday meal hour. Households in even-numbered houses must dine at 11:30 and those in odd numbers at 12:30 P. M.

As most of the houses are very dark at this season, even at midday, lighting is necessary, and it is hoped by this measure to avoid excessive pressure on the power plants between 12 and 1 o'clock.

Prompt Interference by Allies is Deemed Necessary if Hostilities Are to Be Averted.

WAR OVER ADRIATIC SITUATION APPEARS IMMINENT.

BEGRADO, Serbia, Nov. 25.—Two prominent Jugo-Slavs have been arrested and held as hostages by the Italian forces in Dalmatia, according to reports received from Sebenico, 30 miles southeast of Zara. The arrests add that Sebenico is taking measures to guard against a descent of D'Annunzio's army.

GENEVA, Monday, Nov. 24.—Telegrams received by the Serbian bureau at Berne from Belgrade, Zara and Spalato convey the impression that only prompt interference by the allies can prevent war over the Adriatic situation as the Jugo-Slavs are said to have lost patience and to be ready to fight the Italians.

One newspaper accuses Italy of desiring to blockade Jugo-Slavia's exports and imports and thus "strangle her." Another repeats recent reports that a reign of terror prevails in Zara, that everybody must wear a brassard inscribed "Italy or Death," or be badly treated, and that Slavs are afraid to leave their houses.

PARIS, Monday, Nov. 24.—The Jugo-Slav bureau here says the Jugo-Slav government has asked its ministers at Paris, London and Washington to draw the attention of governments to the dangerous situation arising from D'Annunzio raids.

ROME, Monday, Nov. 24.—Peter A. Jay, American charge d'affaires, had a long interview with the premier today. Neither the premier nor the American embassy would make a statement relative to the subject discussed, but it was indicated Mr. Jay received a favorable impression from the Italian situation. After his talk with Mr. Jay, the premier had an hour's audience with King Victor Emmanuel.

It seems that the only really painful thorn in the side of the government in the Adriatic question and efforts are being made to gain American support of proposals looking to a settlement of this matter.
