FIVE SUSPECTS INNOCENT

POLICE IN PLAIN CLOTHES MAKE ARREST.
Search for Holdup Men Results in Explanations in Court Satisfactory to Judge Rossman.

When Police Officers McCutcheon and Schaffer went out in plain clothes Monday night looking for holdup men they struck what looked to be a warm trail in the vicinity of Thirteenth and Mill streets. Three suspicious looking individuals were seen walking down the street and the officers immediately began to follow.

The three men, constituting the "chase," apparently became disconcerted as the result of being followed and one of the three took to his heels. This made the officers still more certain that they had "flushed" some holdup men who passed the chase, overraking the two in front of the home of John D. Mann, United States deputy marshal.

About this time the two men who had been overtaken were re-enforced by three more "hard looking" individuals who were seen walking down the B'nal B'rich clubhouse and the officers and the suspects eyed one another like strange bulldogs. One of the suspects had his hand in his overcoat pocket and, suspecting gun play, the officers told him to remove it. That started the argument.

When the excitement was at its height John M. Mann noticed the wrangle in front of his house and, taking the police officers for holdup men, rushed to the rescue.

Officers McCutcheon and Schaffer finally rounded up Jacob Gurian, Henry Pander, Meyer Tubinsky, Abe Goldstone and Sam Tessier and took them to the police station charged with disorderly conduct.

"We didn't know they were police," they told Judge Rossman yesterday. "We thought they were holdup men, there has been so much of that in that vicinity lately."

"I don't think you boys are holdup men or want to cause any trouble," said Judge Rossman to the five charged with disorderly conduct. "I have seen you go by every evening on the way to the B'nal B'rich clubhouse." They were discharged.

ORPHEUM SHOWS TODAY

THREE STAR PERFORMANCES TO CLOSE WITH MATINEE.

Hyams and McIntyre Topliners on Bill—Pretty Swanson Sisters Sing and Dance.

The Orpheum's three-star show will close its Portland engagement with the matinee today. This show will go to San Francisco in entirety and open there next Sunday in conjunction with the "Overcast Revue," which was the headline attraction here last week.

John Hyams and Lella McIntyre, who are the stars of the big-time vaudeville, are the topliners of the current show in "Maybloom," a play which has been classed as one of the bright little gems of the American stage. Comedy predominates in this act and Miss McIntyre's portrayal of a prim maiden in an artist's studio is so artistic that newspaper reviewers have praised her as being "as delightful as a roadbird."

The extra added attraction of the show is the act of Charles and Henry Ripetto, who are a show in themselves in presenting magic, jugglery, singing and dancing, posing and acrobatics. They are assisted by the Swanson sisters, two pretty girls, who sing and dance.

The third big-type feature is the offering of Charles Carmel and Laura Harris, who have a brand-new act called "Golfing With Cupid," in which they enact the principal entertainment, interspersed with bright comedy.

Another hit of this show is James H. Cullen, the perennial Orpheum favorite, who is making his eighteenth tour of the Orpheum circuit, with a monologue that is keenly humorous. Mr. Cullen is obliged to respond to several encores at every show.

Other acts are George Watts and Belle Hawley in "Laughs Coated With Melodex"; Fox and Ward, the record minstrel and vaudeville team of the world, these entertainers having been on the stage together for more than 22 years; and the Ven Cellos in amazing foot-juggling.
