PLOT 'TO PUT PAC' ACROSS'S CHARGED

Powerful Financiers Back Treaty, Declares Borah.

GREAT POWER WIELDED

Idaho Senator Avers Wall Street Is Behind Move to Sacrifice U. S. to Private Interests.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—Powerful financial interests are endeavoring for selfish reasons to "put across" the German peace treaty through a senate compromise, Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, charged in a statement issued tonight.

Urging that congress investigate alleged efforts of J. P. Morgan & Co. and other financial concerns to bring about the treaty's ratification, Senator Borah also asserted that these interests through "the most gigantic propaganda" proposed possible means to prevent the American people from considering the treaty and the league of nations in the presidential elections next November.

The financial interests, Senator Borah charged, are at work on a scheme which he outlined as having the following objects: "First—Through some compromise or trade secure changes in the reservations so as to get enough votes to put it through regardless of whether American interests are protected or not."

"Second—Having put it through in this way, the same forces hope through their great influence with the leaders of both political parties and their control over campaign subscriptions to keep the people out of the campaign of 1920—so that the people will never have a chance to pass upon the question."

"In the language of one of the leaders," Senator Borah's statement asserted, "the thing to do is to fix up a compromise which will give us what we want, then bring the treaty into the senate with the rule establishing cloture, cut off debate and rush it through."

"Then if they can further keep it out of the platform and out of the campaign by reason of their prominence in the party they have accomplished their entire purpose. Men have been in Washington during the week working on this plan and they feel rather hopeful of the outlook."

"The people of this country who wish to retain our political independence and to keep ourselves free from the turmoils and conflicts of the old world should not lose sight of the fact that there has always been back of this scheme a most vicious influence. I know that many good people have sincerely advocated it, but there is an influence back of it which has been the source of the most gigantic propaganda of any kind in the history of this country."

"Some of these institutions, one in particular, made millions out of this war, a large part of which is represented in European securities. They also have plans for future exploitations of Europe. They are interested in having the United States underwrite these securities and stand back of these exploitations, and to our boys they offer the unstable governments whose securities they hold."

"I am in favor when congress returns after the holidays of starting to look up court reporting and to share the entire profits of these concerns, which are now spending vast sums of money to put this thing across."

"Lobbying in Full Sway. "Find out what securities they have placed among the boys now. It will be recalled that long before the United States or the people of this country were permitted to have a copy of this treaty, the firm of Morgan & Co had it and were studying it, as one of the firm said, for the purpose of finding out what effect it would have upon their financial schemes."

CONGRESS WANTS HOLIDAY

DRIVE TO DISPOSE OF PRESSING MATTERS.

Adjournment for Two Weeks May Be Taken Saturday; Treaty Maneuvers Are Feared.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 14.—Congress tomorrow begins a drive to clean up pressing affairs so as to adjourn Saturday for a two weeks' holiday recess. The outcome of the programme for the week, however, depends on the attitude of the senate.

If the Cummins railroad bill is not passed by Saturday, republican leaders have served notice that the recess must be held in abeyance. The senate will resume its work on the railroad measure tomorrow with night sessions planned.

Before the recess leaders hope to enact the McNary sugar relief bill, which will be taken up by the house early this week, and the Edge bill authorizing foreign financing corporations.
