NEW YORK, Jan. 6 .- Rhode Island's ratification of the federal women's suffrage amendment today brings the more than 1000 dead, according to number of states which have accepted IMPORTANT PAPERS SEIZED official reports given out here tonight it to 24. Ratification by 12 more states by presidential military headquarters is necessary before the amendment becomes effective and officers of the association today declared they would killed or injured. The dead numbered conduct an active campaign to obtain the necessary 36 ratifications before the presidential primaries in April.

Women of 24 statese, including Rhode Island, will enjoy presidential suffrage this year, regardless of whether the amendment becomes effective before the presidential primaries, according to suffrage asse ciation officials. These are Rhode Island, Indiana. Iowa, Maine, Minnesota, Missouri, Wisconsin, Ohio, Illi nois, North Dakota, Nebraska, Ver-mont, Tennessee, Michigan, Kansas, New York, Montana, Utah, California, Kentucky, South Dakota and Colorado. Of these Indiana, Vermont and Tennessee have not yet ratified the of justice agents on the offices of the federal amendments.

States which have ratified the amendment and in which presidential women's suffrage this year is contingent upon adoption are Pennsylvania, New Hampshire, Arkansas and Texas. The suffrage of women in Arkansas and Texas is limited to state primaries. Special legislative sessions to take action on the amendment have been called for Oregon and Idaho. Arizona, Nevada, Oklahoma, Washington and Wyoming, whose legislatures do not meet this year, also are expected to call special sessions Other states in which the amendment probably will be taken up in regular sessions this year are Mississippi, Louisiana, Virginia, Georgia,

South Carolina and New Jersey. FRANKFORT, Ky., Jan. 6 .- Ratifition of the federal woman suffrage was completed by the Kentucky legislature late today.
