SOLVING A TROUBLESOME QUESTION. The Oregonian is unable to see how two commissions will solve the difficulties and meet the wants of the sportsmen.

ONE BOARD SHALL HAVE CONTROL OVER ALL GAME INTERESTS. The one board shall have control over all game interests, and the one board after the commercial fishermen.

Let us take Rogue river. From the reaches of the upper Rogue comes a most insistent demand that there be two commissions, and that the sportsmen have complete control of that stream.

Let us not say that the anglers of the Rogue have no deserts. Undoubtedly they have. But the idea that a great fishing industry must be exterminated to give the sportsman his holiday is a monstrous idea.

The case of the packers and fishermen on the Columbia and other streams of Oregon is a matter of proper and appreciative understanding and action.

The packers are engaged in a legitimate occupation, contributing their share to the state's prosperity by considerable sums.

The plan for two commissions is fatally weak in the following respects. In view of the fact that the legislature will be in session after propagation has been carefully and successfully fostered through many industries.

The workers at the Bethlehem steel works who have been laid off because they find that they can maintain a higher standard of living than suits them.

Selection of Underwood would thus be broken breaking away from the general state of control by the federal government.

year to produce a railroad car, in 1918 it took 41.5 men, working at 300 per cent of the former wage, to produce a car.

IMPORTANT, IT IS TRUE. If we were to offer a guess as to what will be the "important conclusion" of the subject, it would be that the sportsmen will send to the democrats at their celebration of the memory of the immortal Jackson.

We are encouraged to make a third guess that the assembling of a certain kind of voters are to stand in the coming campaign.

We venture nothing at all when we formulate another guess that he will continue to stand in the senate.

We guess our guesses now when the guessing is good. We guess because we know what the sportsmen know (except himself) what is in the presidential mind.

THE REVOLUTIONIST IN THE SENATE. The paper famine may have some good results after all.

But it was reserved for Senator Thomas to make a genuinely revolutionary suggestion. He said: "The war is a great idea to get printing the Record together."

His objection to the Jones scheme was that the secrecy seemed to affect only the legitimate press, that the front desk of the newspaper publications, some of which have hourly editions, and that the "scarcity of print paper is largely due to the fact that so much of it is consumed in propaganda against the government."

The senate must have been horrified at the thought of suspending the Record until it realized that Mr. Underwood's scheme was not what he went on to announce that he wished to have published a number of letters from coal operators allying their grievances against the railroad administration.

THE STRUGGLE BEHIND THE SCENES. While a struggle goes on before the scenes to win over enough democratic votes to carry the election, the German treaty with reservations, another struggle goes on behind the scenes which will decide whether the democratic senators must under the law in due time become citizens.

The packers are engaged in a legitimate occupation, contributing their share to the state's prosperity by considerable sums. The propagation and accepting of gifts, charging the responsibilities and duties of citizenship.

in a form so modified as to remove any objection from that quarter which would deprive Mr. Wilson of any valid reason for refusal to accept them.

Those who keep alive discord between employer and workman propagate the idea that there is some magic in industry by which great fortunes are made by men who do no work.

THE DESTRUCTIVE PROPENSITY. A valuable aid to extension of Portland commerce with Japan is a special export section of the Oregon News.

Waik through Grand street from Third avenue to Clinton street, which is not a long distance, and you have the types of the whole world before you.

TWO FOR THEIR HOME PAPER. Corvallis Opinion in the League of Nations.

CORVALLIS, Or., Jan. 5.—(To the Editor.)—We notice that the prolife writer, "Reader," very complacently hands The Oregonian the decision in its favor.

Some One Must Control. Baker Herald. For Finley to continue in office as a free body is a violation of the commission.

No Confidence in Commission. Baker Herald. The outstanding question is whether the state game commission has our hearty approval.

Both Right. The Cottage Grove Sentinel. The way it appears to us is that the commission had all the grounds and the game.

Mr. Finley Not Indispensable. La Grande Observer. If he were a man who could show how to raise more wheat per acre, or how to turn more trees into lumber.

Wants New Game Warden. Oakland Tribune. While the kitten is good, why not get a new state game warden?
