

MEXICO REDS ADDED BY U. S. S. CHARGE

"Wilson Seems Hypnotized by Carranza," Senate Hears.

RADICALS' POWER WIDE

Bolshevik Forces Supported by Regime Which Is Recognized by Americans Is Assertion.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Jan. 15.—Propagandists of bolshevism have spread their doctrine of radicalism from Sonora to the isthmus of Tehuantepec within a year, the senate sub-committee investigating the Mexican situation was told today by an American traveling salesman.

The witness was heard in executive session in order that he might be guarded to that extent against possible reprisals by Carranza. He begged that his name be not used because he expects to return to Mexico.

Wilson Declared Hypnotized.

After commenting that "Mr. Wilson seemed to be hypnotized by Mr. Carranza," he added:

"If the American government should cease to support Carranza he would not last 30 days. The merchants and business men of Mexico want law and order, but they cannot hope for such while the bolshevik gang is upheld by the American government."

Matthew Warner, a veteran of the civil war of San Antonio, gave the history of the Adzeador colony, which he founded during the rule of Porfirio Diaz near Tampico. It was received by farmers from Nebraska, Illinois, Iowa and Texas. He said the account included reference to the murder of A. Burl, and the serious injury of his father, but that the daughters of Matthew Gould were attacked by Mexicans, who fired rockets at their father in such a manner that he might witness their acts.

Carranza Aid to Reds Cited.

It was in August of 1919, he said, that Carranza upheld the militant radicals in Toluca. Mr. Green, who, the witness said, was a descendant of an American, had declared himself elected governor. He asserted that Carranza had the local army and retained his power until the appearance of a federal force, commanded by General Bertani, who, after listening to the complaints of merchants and landowners who alleged reprisals by Green, overpowered the local army.

"Green's troops were called the 'reds' and the 'bolsheviks' by the people in that state," said the witness.

"It seems Bertani made a mistake in disarming these troops," he said, "because Carranza called him to account for it and brought him to Mexico City, lectured him and restored Carranza to power with army support. Carranza wanted the will of the people. Ever since that time, however, Carranza has had two governors, one the people want and one that Carranza wants."

Dramatic Testimony Given.

Dramatic accounts of their experiences were given by Mrs. Wright, Mrs. Joseph C. Bailey, the husband of Mrs. Wright disappeared while trying to get her out of the country. It is assumed by her that he is dead. The husband of Mrs. Wright died as a result of hardships. Mrs. Wright and the committee how she and her daughters hid for weeks in a cabin near to escape the revolutionists, described their efforts to climb to their farm at San Luis Potosi and finally their flight to the United States when word reached them that the state department had advised Americans to leave Mexico.

NEW BILLS AT THE THEATERS

Hippodrome. MORE than usual interest centers in the appearance of Margaret Fallentus, headliner on the current bill at the Hippodrome, inasmuch as Miss Fallentus is a Portland girl. She is the only daughter of Mrs. Edith Fallentus, who is recognized as one of the finest pipe organists on the Pacific coast and is particularly well known in Portland. For nine years Mrs. Fallentus was organist at the Christian Science church and for 13 years was organist at the Unitarian church and also played at Trinity. She and her daughter Margaret left three years ago for Palo Alto, where Mrs. Fallentus is still active in musical circles as organist and choir director and teacher.

Margaret attended private schools in Portland and Miss Harker's school in California, specializing in music. She studied with Henry L. Bettman and later went east to take up a stage career. She has appeared in productions in the east and in vaudeville. In her present offering she is the principal member of "The Cameos," an artistic and thoroughly charming offering. Miss Fallentus plays the violin and has wizard fingers. Her bewitching playing held the audience enraptured. Her highest and most pretentious solo is Hubay's "Hejrekati," which was a signal triumph and a pleasant and memorable event. Miss Fallentus has an excellent singing voice, too, and is heard with the other members of the Cameos group in songs written especially for them.

Further interest attaches to this young Portlander's work in that she produced the act and is its director and manager. She is arranging to go into the producing end of the theatrical business, and has a number of series of acts on the road, directing and staging them herself. The present act embraces a novel idea and shows the five girls in snowy white relief against a coral pink background, quite an unusual idea. They wear white and white and powdered wigs. The charming soprano voice of Beatrice Brader adds interest. For the second half of the act the girls change to colorful attire, with the exception of Miss Fallentus, who is busy playing her violin that she retains her picturesque white satin and frills. No jazz is introduced, but certain melodious popular airs are brought out in song and by Miss Fallentus' violin in the last act, which is a Corot painting, with a beautiful forest background.

Miss Fallentus is the niece of Mrs. William Thurf Pangle and a niece also of Mrs. Kate Schulz, the latter of whom is well known here and who lives in Palo Alto. During her brief stay in Portland Miss Fallentus will be the recipient of social attention in the city.

Others on the Hippodrome bill include La Fleur, Melroy Sisters, Bill and Bob, and the musical comedy, "The Prince and Betty."

WOMEN, PERSHING TO DINE

ADMISSION OF FAIR SEX IS ALLOWED BY CHAMBER.

Original Plans to Seat Only Men Are Revised—Banquet Will Be on Sunday Night.

Women have won two big victories within a few days in Oregon, first in the legislature when suffrage was ratified and again yesterday when the Portland Chamber of Commerce capitulated and said it would permit the fair sex to sit at banquet with General John J. Pershing on Sunday night.

"We simply had to yield to the insistent demands of the women," said P. Hetherington, assistant secretary and member of the Pershing committee, "and permit them to attend the banquet. At first it was decided by the committee to limit banquet seats to men. In the past few days, however, there had been so many expressions of disappointment over this ruling that it has been decided to withdraw it so that women may attend this feature of the general's visit to Portland, after all."

Many for the banquet were booked at the Chamber of Commerce yesterday and Mr. Hetherington said last night that only a few remain. The banquet will be held early at 6 o'clock Sunday night at the Chamber of Commerce and those attending will receive tickets entitling them to places on the platform at the public auditorium that night when General Pershing will deliver his address.

General Pershing will reach the union depot at 12:30 Sunday noon and will speak in the public auditorium after the afternoon he will speak to service men only, at his own request, in the armory. No civilians, either men or women, will be permitted at this meeting, on account of lack of room.

A 8:15 o'clock Sunday night the general will speak in the public auditorium, the doors of which will be open to the public at 5:30 o'clock. The main body of the auditorium, the committee having decided to make of it a first-come, first-served affair. On the platform will be reserved seats for members of the general's staff and representatives of various civic and military organizations in addition to those who attend the Chamber of Commerce banquet.

There will be no elaborate parade, but a guard of honor such as will befit the rank of General Pershing has been arranged and all due military honors will be paid the general.
