GENERAL INSPECTS POST

PERSHING PAYS FLYING VISIT TO VANCOUVER BARRACKS.

Vigorous Exercise Taken on Hike About Grounds; Auto Accompanied by Police Escort.

General John J. Pershing, comnander of the American forces in France, paid his first visit to the Vancouver barracks yesterday afternoon, when he made a hurrled trip to the historic post with Colonel F. J. Koester, commanding officer there. The visit was not for inspection pur-poses, however, but was entirely to give the general an opportunity for an hour of the hearty exercise which he is used to, but which he has dif-ficulty in getting during his rapid tour of the army posts throughout

Leaving the armory, where he had made a short talk to the national guard and American Legion boys, General Pershing went to the Multnomah hotel, where headquarters had been established, for a brief rest, and then, dismissing his staff, he proceedwill begin tomorrow at 8 P. M. in the naval recruiting staation office in Colonel Koester, Colonel John G. the Couch building, Lieutenant John Quekemeyer, aide-de-camp, and Captain Paul Hathaway, alde to Colone

Koester.

The trip to Vancouver proved uneventful, as residents along the route were not expecting the general to pass that way. In fact, the visit to the post had not been on the pro-gramme as announced for the day, but was arranged at the request of General Pershing himself after his arrival here. Everywhere along the route, however, those upon the streets that a ship would be sent here soon for the training of the 4000 men in this district. Before the arrival of the training ship, however, the officers will divide the men into instruction classes.

For an hour General Pershing, accompanied by the three officers, tramped the fields extending to the northeast of the fort buildings, the general taking the exercise which he requires to keep himself in the perfect physical condition which was evident in every movement yesterday. The visit to the fort was not the occasion of a demonstration of any kind, and few of the soldiers who were on duty or loitering around the post even knew that the great Amercan leader had been there.
