

MORE FOOD CREDITS FAVORED IN HOUSE

Additional $50,000,000 to Be Urged by Committee.

FINAL REPORT DUE TODAY

Some Republicans on Steering Organization Also Reported in Favor of Legislation.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—Republican members of the house ways and means committee in conference late today informally agreed to favor legislation authorizing the treasury to extend additional credits of $50,000,000 to certain European countries for food relief.

The specific countries to benefit by the food credits will be decided upon at a later meeting of the majority members of the committee. Poland, Armenia and Austria were included in the original proposal of Secretary Glavin, but the committee's letter from President Wilson, for credits of $150,000,000, later reduced to $125,000,000 by Mr. Cass.

Committee Meeting Called.
After the informal agreement had been reached Chairman Fordney called a meeting for tomorrow of the full committee to consider final action. Leading democratic committee members, including Representatives Kitchen, North, Carolina, and Garner of Texas, who were among the first to suggest the $50,000,000 as a maximum authorization, are counted on by the republican members to support the $50,000,000, which also has the approval of some members of the republican legislative steering committee.

Confidential information received by the committee through official channels was understood to be to the effect that European countries, including France and England, are not expected to contribute to a relief fund for Austria, their inclination being to aid Poland in its fight against the Russian bolshevik government.

Extended Aid Is Opposed.
Objection to extended aid by the United States was made by committee members on the ground that the Polish army is now more than 100 miles beyond the Russian eastern frontier. However, the $50,000,000 fund is expected to afford some relief for Poland, it being pointed out by those who advocate limiting the relief to certain countries that the requirements for Austria amount to $30,000,000; for Budapest $5,000,000 and Armenia $1,500,000 a month.

Besides finally deciding on the amount of the loan, the committee tomorrow must determine the method of administration, the general opinion being that it would be through the United States grain corporation, which would be authorized to use its funds for buying food in this country.

TREATY Baffles DOCTORS

(Continued From First Page.)

sons for refusing to compromise on article 10 and the Monroe doctrine. "Speaking for myself alone," said the statement, "I was unable to agree to any change in reservations 2 and 5, dealing with article 10 and the Monroe doctrine. In my opinion, reservation No. 2, which provides that we shall assume no obligation of any kind under article 10 except the one mentioned in the treaty, that we should ourselves respect the boundaries of other nations, cannot possibly permit of changes.

Monroe Doctrine Issue Vital.
"The change proposed in reservation No. 5 in regard to the Monroe doctrine was an absolutely vital one because it was asserted as an official interpretation by the representatives of Great Britain that the Monroe doctrine under the treaty was to be interpreted by the league. To this, I, for one, could never assent, and in view of the statement made in Paris by the British delegation, to which I have referred, I regard the line which it was proposed to strike out as absolutely necessary.

"The United States has always interpreted the Monroe doctrine as it is in our policy. No one else has ever attempted to interpret it and it is something in my judgment which ought never to be permitted even by the most remote implication. If we should strike out that phrase now after it had been accepted by the senate it would lead to a direct inference that we left that question open. The right to interpret the Monroe doctrine, pertaining to the United States alone, must never be open to question.

Right Sentiment Undecided.
The proposed change referred to by the senator was a suggestion by the democrats to strike out the words "the Monroe doctrine" and insert "the Monroe doctrine as it is interpreted by the United States alone."

On the question of bringing the treaty into the senate, it was apparent that sentiment was in an indecisive state. There have been some indications that there might not be undivided democratic support for the move, but some of the mild reservation republicans and some senators of the irreconcilable group have looked with favor upon it. Senator Hitchcock said he did not know whether a majority favored it, but believed such was the case. He added he would confer with various democrats and republicans before he made his motion.

Committee Work Reviewed.
Senator Lodge's statement reviewing the work of the bi-partisan committee said:

"For the past two weeks nine senators, five democrats and four republicans, have been meeting to consider the question of changes in the reservations adopted by the senate before the adjournment of the last session of congress, commonly known as the Lodge reservations. The senators who thus met did not constitute a committee. The meetings were entirely informal and it was understood at the outset that they had no power or authority whatever to bind any one. Their only purpose was to see whether there were any changes which they would be willing to lay before all the other members of the senate for their consideration. No final agreement to submit any changes to the other members of the senate was reached. Some tentative agreements were obtained. Reservations 2, 8, 12 and 13 were tentatively accepted by all without change. It was tentatively agreed to submit the following changes to the other senators for their consideration."

Preamble Changes Discussed.
The statement then reviewed the changes accepted in the preamble and the reservations affecting domestic questions, Shantung, appointment of league representatives and armaments. These changes already have been published. No decision was

SOVIET FIGHT WITH DEATH IS REVEALED

Ludwig Martens Declines to Answer Committee Queries.

AMERICAN AID SHOWN

Contracts for $25,000,000 Worth
of Food, Clothing and Machinery
Submitted.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—How the couriers of soviet Russia, carrying funds to finance its propaganda in America, ran the gauntlet of death and imprisonment in the surrounding states of Europe was a story half told, then abandoned, today by Ludwig C. Martens, soviet agent in the United States, before the senate foreign relations sub-committee investigating Russian propaganda.

Martens flatly declined to answer further questions of the committee on the subject of the couriers and left it to the committee whether or not his plea of "diplomatic immunity" from further examination should be allowed, while he went on to recount his personal activities in endeavoring to get his government recognized by the state department and in placing provisions for the relief of the famine-stricken people of Russia.

SUIT AWAITS MOVE STAR
SALEM FIRM WOULD SERVE
GLORIA SWANSON.

Portland Newspaper Clipping Sent to Deputy Sheriff as Means of Identification.

Fame is a fleeting, ephemeral thing—as Gloria Swanson, star of the silver screen, the most handsomely gifted woman on the silent stage, if press agents are to be believed, must perforce admit. Unless, of course, she is less than that of Sarah Bernhardt, Mary Pickford or "Dough" Fairbanks, who are not expected to penetrate to Salem.

Martin Pratt, chief deputy in the office of Sheriff Hurlburt, received the following epistle yesterday from a reputable firm of attorneys in Salem, names being deleted by the writer:

Salem, Jan. 29, 1920.—Dear Sir: The writer was in your office yesterday relative to the case of Gloria Swanson, which is pending in the circuit court of your county, wherein she seeks to obtain a divorce from her husband, Charles H. Swanson, in this suit brought to our office this morning by the firm of attorneys in Salem, names being deleted by the writer.

Will you kindly ascertain if service can be secured upon her and advise me. We are enclosing the clipping mentioned here. Very truly yours, S. & S.

There was no reading of the matter under the newspaper picture except the following: "Gloria Swanson, who has one of the leading roles in De Mille's 'Male and Female' at the Columbia."

HARDWARE MEN ELECT

FOURTEENTH ANNUAL CON-VENTION IS CLOSED.

Committee Reports on Legislation,
Membership and Community Development Heard.

Re-election of officers who held office during 1919 occupied the last hours of the 14th annual convention of the Oregon Retail Hardware and Implement Dealers' association, which closed yesterday. A. L. Jameson of McMinnville, Ore., was elected president; E. E. Lucas of Spokane, president-elect; and G. W. Hyatt, A. C. Hubbard, George T. Baldwin and Robert J. Ivie members of the executive committee.

J. E. Lewin of Coos Bay was elected vice-president to succeed Charles E. Archer of Salem, Ore., and George T. Baldwin will succeed G. W. Hyatt as chairman of the executive committee. Reports of committees on resolutions, legislation, membership, community development and special subjects were heard and unfinished business was concluded. Addresses by W. B. Gleason, manager of the Oregon Hardware company, and W. W. Cooley, western advertising representative of the Burroughs Adding Machine company, were given.

The four-day convention, held at the Imperial hotel, brought together delegates from the states of Oregon, Washington and Idaho and the province of British Columbia.

LAD UNDER COAL SAVED

HUNDREDS OF NEW YORK PU-BLS CHEER RESCUERS.

Boy, 6, Is Buried by Avalanche
Eight Minutes Until Janitor and Policemen Reach Scene.

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—(Special.)—While hundreds of pupils of public school No. 10, One Hundred and Seventy-second street and St. Nicholas avenue, looked on and cheered the rescuers, Carl Sieman, a six-year-old pupil of the school, was saved from suffocation when he slid down an open coal chute and was buried by an avalanche of soft coal.

About five tons of soft coal were on the sidewalk ready to be placed in the cellar of the school when the children came out for their noon recess. As Carl started to run across the pile the coal started to slide and he disappeared.

SOVIET FIGHT WITH DEATH IS REVEALED

Ludwig Martens Declines to Answer Committee Queries.

AMERICAN AID SHOWN

Contracts for $25,000,000 Worth
of Food, Clothing and Machinery
Submitted.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—How the couriers of soviet Russia, carrying funds to finance its propaganda in America, ran the gauntlet of death and imprisonment in the surrounding states of Europe was a story half told, then abandoned, today by Ludwig C. Martens, soviet agent in the United States, before the senate foreign relations sub-committee investigating Russian propaganda.

Martens flatly declined to answer further questions of the committee on the subject of the couriers and left it to the committee whether or not his plea of "diplomatic immunity" from further examination should be allowed, while he went on to recount his personal activities in endeavoring to get his government recognized by the state department and in placing provisions for the relief of the famine-stricken people of Russia.

Seven Go Through Barriers.

Out of 20 of the mysterious messengers who started during the last year from Moscow with funds and letters to him, Martens said, seven had got through the barriers or frontiers and international frontiers. Several had been shot summarily in Finland—"three that I know about," Martens said casually, of ten who tried to get through Germany, nine were caught and jailed. The first man to reach him, however, carried $100,000 and his credentials as soviet ambassador to the United States. Here he began to evade, though Senator Moses of New Hampshire, chairman of the committee, and Senator Brandegee, Connecticut, were prodigious in their questions as to messengers' routes and methods of travel and disguises.

"I decline to answer," he stated finally, when asked to name one of the couriers, and repeated his words quietly when the topic was pushed further. He too, had sent James E. Fenton from their cases, and that he denied the possibility of their engaging counsel who had had experience in cases of like nature, or who would be satisfactory to the defendants, due to widespread prejudice against the U. S. W. and the large number of pending cases in the northwest.

List of Contracts Submitted.
A list of contracts for goods entered into by Martens was submitted to the committee with the explanation that the firms named had agreed to furnish goods only upon the condition that they were given licenses by the state department to export the products to soviet Russia.

Only $10,000 had been paid on the contracts, Martens said, and none of the goods had been shipped. "You depended on the relations opened with American business concerns to help you get recognition?"

"Yes," Martens replied, adding that he knew of many letters and representations made by Americans friendly to the soviet government to American officials and of "at least two" which went to President Wilson from individuals, who, he intimated, would likely secure a hearing.

FARMERS' UNREST VITAL

(Continued From First Page.)

showed the trend of thought among at least a considerable proportion of the farmers of New England, the middle western states, Georgia and the eastern agricultural section.

Curialism Is Threatened.
"The time is very near," wrote a farmer at East Chatham, N. Y., "when we farmers will have to curial production and raise only what we need for our own use and let the other fellows look out for themselves. Labor unions are more to blame for the high prices than any one else. People are trying to get pay for what they don't earn."

Onus Placed on Middle Man.
Declaring that the whole onus of the high cost of living rests with the middle man, a Missouri producer advocated the establishment of municipal markets to be served by parcel post.

"I sell butter to the dealer for 45 cents a pound," his letter said, "and the same butter sells to the consumer for 60 cents a pound. In the distribution we lose nearly half, and we lose money on the butter at the first price. Such conditions are causing farmers to leave the farm by thousands. We have reached a crisis. You may ask what we would do with the middle man."

"I will suggest that it be arranged for them to go on the farm and help produce things. I understand that they might not relish working 14 hours a day, but if we get by the near future they will have to be some useful work done by every one."

Cut City Wages, Is Plea.
Declaring that he works a 250-acre farm without help and that hundreds of other farmers are doing the same, a Revere, Missouri, man declared that the "place to start to lower the cost of living is to cut the wages in the city, which have called our farm help there."

His return for last year averaged

SOVIET FIGHT WITH DEATH IS REVEALED

Ludwig Martens Declines to Answer Committee Queries.

AMERICAN AID SHOWN

Contracts for $25,000,000 Worth
of Food, Clothing and Machinery
Submitted.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—How the couriers of soviet Russia, carrying funds to finance its propaganda in America, ran the gauntlet of death and imprisonment in the surrounding states of Europe was a story half told, then abandoned, today by Ludwig C. Martens, soviet agent in the United States, before the senate foreign relations sub-committee investigating Russian propaganda.

Martens flatly declined to answer further questions of the committee on the subject of the couriers and left it to the committee whether or not his plea of "diplomatic immunity" from further examination should be allowed, while he went on to recount his personal activities in endeavoring to get his government recognized by the state department and in placing provisions for the relief of the famine-stricken people of Russia.

Seven Go Through Barriers.

Out of 20 of the mysterious messengers who started during the last year from Moscow with funds and letters to him, Martens said, seven had got through the barriers or frontiers and international frontiers. Several had been shot summarily in Finland—"three that I know about," Martens said casually, of ten who tried to get through Germany, nine were caught and jailed. The first man to reach him, however, carried $100,000 and his credentials as soviet ambassador to the United States. Here he began to evade, though Senator Moses of New Hampshire, chairman of the committee, and Senator Brandegee, Connecticut, were prodigious in their questions as to messengers' routes and methods of travel and disguises.

"I decline to answer," he stated finally, when asked to name one of the couriers, and repeated his words quietly when the topic was pushed further. He too, had sent James E. Fenton from their cases, and that he denied the possibility of their engaging counsel who had had experience in cases of like nature, or who would be satisfactory to the defendants, due to widespread prejudice against the U. S. W. and the large number of pending cases in the northwest.

List of Contracts Submitted.
A list of contracts for goods entered into by Martens was submitted to the committee with the explanation that the firms named had agreed to furnish goods only upon the condition that they were given licenses by the state department to export the products to soviet Russia.

Only $10,000 had been paid on the contracts, Martens said, and none of the goods had been shipped. "You depended on the relations opened with American business concerns to help you get recognition?"

"Yes," Martens replied, adding that he knew of many letters and representations made by Americans friendly to the soviet government to American officials and of "at least two" which went to President Wilson from individuals, who, he intimated, would likely secure a hearing.

FARMERS' UNREST VITAL

(Continued From First Page.)

showed the trend of thought among at least a considerable proportion of the farmers of New England, the middle western states, Georgia and the eastern agricultural section.

Curialism Is Threatened.
"The time is very near," wrote a farmer at East Chatham, N. Y., "when we farmers will have to curial production and raise only what we need for our own use and let the other fellows look out for themselves. Labor unions are more to blame for the high prices than any one else. People are trying to get pay for what they don't earn."

Onus Placed on Middle Man.
Declaring that the whole onus of the high cost of living rests with the middle man, a Missouri producer advocated the establishment of municipal markets to be served by parcel post.

"I sell butter to the dealer for 45 cents a pound," his letter said, "and the same butter sells to the consumer for 60 cents a pound. In the distribution we lose nearly half, and we lose money on the butter at the first price. Such conditions are causing farmers to leave the farm by thousands. We have reached a crisis. You may ask what we would do with the middle man."

"I will suggest that it be arranged for them to go on the farm and help produce things. I understand that they might not relish working 14 hours a day, but if we get by the near future they will have to be some useful work done by every one."

Cut City Wages, Is Plea.
Declaring that he works a 250-acre farm without help and that hundreds of other farmers are doing the same, a Revere, Missouri, man declared that the "place to start to lower the cost of living is to cut the wages in the city, which have called our farm help there."

His return for last year averaged

SOVIET FIGHT WITH DEATH IS REVEALED

Ludwig Martens Declines to Answer Committee Queries.

AMERICAN AID SHOWN

Contracts for $25,000,000 Worth
of Food, Clothing and Machinery
Submitted.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—How the couriers of soviet Russia, carrying funds to finance its propaganda in America, ran the gauntlet of death and imprisonment in the surrounding states of Europe was a story half told, then abandoned, today by Ludwig C. Martens, soviet agent in the United States, before the senate foreign relations sub-committee investigating Russian propaganda.

Martens flatly declined to answer further questions of the committee on the subject of the couriers and left it to the committee whether or not his plea of "diplomatic immunity" from further examination should be allowed, while he went on to recount his personal activities in endeavoring to get his government recognized by the state department and in placing provisions for the relief of the famine-stricken people of Russia.

Seven Go Through Barriers.

Out of 20 of the mysterious messengers who started during the last year from Moscow with funds and letters to him, Martens said, seven had got through the barriers or frontiers and international frontiers. Several had been shot summarily in Finland—"three that I know about," Martens said casually, of ten who tried to get through Germany, nine were caught and jailed. The first man to reach him, however, carried $100,000 and his credentials as soviet ambassador to the United States. Here he began to evade, though Senator Moses of New Hampshire, chairman of the committee, and Senator Brandegee, Connecticut, were prodigious in their questions as to messengers' routes and methods of travel and disguises.

"I decline to answer," he stated finally, when asked to name one of the couriers, and repeated his words quietly when the topic was pushed further. He too, had sent James E. Fenton from their cases, and that he denied the possibility of their engaging counsel who had had experience in cases of like nature, or who would be satisfactory to the defendants, due to widespread prejudice against the U. S. W. and the large number of pending cases in the northwest.

List of Contracts Submitted.
A list of contracts for goods entered into by Martens was submitted to the committee with the explanation that the firms named had agreed to furnish goods only upon the condition that they were given licenses by the state department to export the products to soviet Russia.

Only $10,000 had been paid on the contracts, Martens said, and none of the goods had been shipped. "You depended on the relations opened with American business concerns to help you get recognition?"

"Yes," Martens replied, adding that he knew of many letters and representations made by Americans friendly to the soviet government to American officials and of "at least two" which went to President Wilson from individuals, who, he intimated, would likely secure a hearing.

FARMERS' UNREST VITAL

(Continued From First Page.)

showed the trend of thought among at least a considerable proportion of the farmers of New England, the middle western states, Georgia and the eastern agricultural section.

Curialism Is Threatened.
"The time is very near," wrote a farmer at East Chatham, N. Y., "when we farmers will have to curial production and raise only what we need for our own use and let the other fellows look out for themselves. Labor unions are more to blame for the high prices than any one else. People are trying to get pay for what they don't earn."

Onus Placed on Middle Man.
Declaring that the whole onus of the high cost of living rests with the middle man, a Missouri producer advocated the establishment of municipal markets to be served by parcel post.

"I sell butter to the dealer for 45 cents a pound," his letter said, "and the same butter sells to the consumer for 60 cents a pound. In the distribution we lose nearly half, and we lose money on the butter at the first price. Such conditions are causing farmers to leave the farm by thousands. We have reached a crisis. You may ask what we would do with the middle man."

"I will suggest that it be arranged for them to go on the farm and help produce things. I understand that they might not relish working 14 hours a day, but if we get by the near future they will have to be some useful work done by every one."

Cut City Wages, Is Plea.
Declaring that he works a 250-acre farm without help and that hundreds of other farmers are doing the same, a Revere, Missouri, man declared that the "place to start to lower the cost of living is to cut the wages in the city, which have called our farm help there."

His return for last year averaged

SOVIET FIGHT WITH DEATH IS REVEALED

Ludwig Martens Declines to Answer Committee Queries.

AMERICAN AID SHOWN

Contracts for $25,000,000 Worth
of Food, Clothing and Machinery
Submitted.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—How the couriers of soviet Russia, carrying funds to finance its propaganda in America, ran the gauntlet of death and imprisonment in the surrounding states of Europe was a story half told, then abandoned, today by Ludwig C. Martens, soviet agent in the United States, before the senate foreign relations sub-committee investigating Russian propaganda.

Martens flatly declined to answer further questions of the committee on the subject of the couriers and left it to the committee whether or not his plea of "diplomatic immunity" from further examination should be allowed, while he went on to recount his personal activities in endeavoring to get his government recognized by the state department and in placing provisions for the relief of the famine-stricken people of Russia.

Seven Go Through Barriers.

Out of 20 of the mysterious messengers who started during the last year from Moscow with funds and letters to him, Martens said, seven had got through the barriers or frontiers and international frontiers. Several had been shot summarily in Finland—"three that I know about," Martens said casually, of ten who tried to get through Germany, nine were caught and jailed. The first man to reach him, however, carried $100,000 and his credentials as soviet ambassador to the United States. Here he began to evade, though Senator Moses of New Hampshire, chairman of the committee, and Senator Brandegee, Connecticut, were prodigious in their questions as to messengers' routes and methods of travel and disguises.

"I decline to answer," he stated finally, when asked to name one of the couriers, and repeated his words quietly when the topic was pushed further. He too, had sent James E. Fenton from their cases, and that he denied the possibility of their engaging counsel who had had experience in cases of like nature, or who would be satisfactory to the defendants, due to widespread prejudice against the U. S. W. and the large number of pending cases in the northwest.

List of Contracts Submitted.
A list of contracts for goods entered into by Martens was submitted to the committee with the explanation that the firms named had agreed to furnish goods only upon the condition that they were given licenses by the state department to export the products to soviet Russia.

Only $10,000 had been paid on the contracts, Martens said, and none of the goods had been shipped. "You depended on the relations opened with American business concerns to help you get recognition?"

"Yes," Martens replied, adding that he knew of many letters and representations made by Americans friendly to the soviet government to American officials and of "at least two" which went to President Wilson from individuals, who, he intimated, would likely secure a hearing.

FARMERS' UNREST VITAL

(Continued From First Page.)

showed the trend of thought among at least a considerable proportion of the farmers of New England, the middle western states, Georgia and the eastern agricultural section.

Curialism Is Threatened.
"The time is very near," wrote a farmer at East Chatham, N. Y., "when we farmers will have to curial production and raise only what we need for our own use and let the other fellows look out for themselves. Labor unions are more to blame for the high prices than any one else. People are trying to get pay for what they don't earn."

Onus Placed on Middle Man.
Declaring that the whole onus of the high cost of living rests with the middle man, a Missouri producer advocated the establishment of municipal markets to be served by parcel post.

"I sell butter to the dealer for 45 cents a pound," his letter said, "and the same butter sells to the consumer for 60 cents a pound. In the distribution we lose nearly half, and we lose money on the butter at the first price. Such conditions are causing farmers to leave the farm by thousands. We have reached a crisis. You may ask what we would do with the middle man."

"I will suggest that it be arranged for them to go on the farm and help produce things. I understand that they might not relish working 14 hours a day, but if we get by the near future they will have to be some useful work done by every one."

Cut City Wages, Is Plea.
Declaring that he works a 250-acre farm without help and that hundreds of other farmers are doing the same, a Revere, Missouri, man declared that the "place to start to lower the cost of living is to cut the wages in the city, which have called our farm help there."

His return for last year averaged

Out to-day

New Victor Records for February

The list of new Victor offerings is the acknowledged index of what is going on in the world of music. When a new artist of exceptional ability rises before the public, when a famous artist is making a success of some particular selection, when you want to hear the latest popular song hits or enjoy the newest and liveliest dance music, you'll find them on Victor Records. And you can hear any of these new numbers at any Victor dealer's.

The Bells of St. Mary's	Viola	Frances Alda	Number	Size	Price
Vieni sul mar (Over the Sea)	Violin	Enrico Caruso	87305	10	1.00
Romance (From Concerto in D Minor) (Wieniawski)	Violin	Jascha Heifetz	74600	12	1.50
Messiah—Oh Thou That Telles	Violin	Louise Homer	88514	12	1.50
Her Bright Smile Haunts Me Still	Violin	Edward Johnson	64839	10	1.00
Pagliacci—Vesti la giubba (On With the Play)	Violin	Edward Johnson	64840	10	1.00
Menuett (Handel)	Violoncello	Hans Kindler	64841	10	1.00
La Gitana (The Gypsy)	Violin	Fritz Kreisler	64842	10	1.00
Thy Beaming Eyes	Violin	Ernestine Schumann-Heink	87288	10	1.00
Dreaming Alone in the Twilight	Violin	Reinold Werrenrath	64843	10	1.00
On Miami Shore—Waltz	Violin	Joseph C. Smith's Orchestra	18632	10	.85
Peggy—Medley Fox Trot	Violin	Joseph C. Smith's Orchestra	18633	10	.85
Dardanella—Fox Trot	Violin	Selvin's Novelty Orchestra	18633	10	.85
My Life of Golden Dreams—Medley Waltz	Violin	Selvin's Novelty Orchestra	18633	10	.85
Would Be Surprised	Violin	Billy Murray	18634	10	.85
Freckles					