AT LIBERTY TEMPLE;

Main 313.

For an Interesting mixture of romance, pathos, comedy and drama, any hour of any day, the writer recommends Cartain Conville's office at Liberty Temple. All day long he sits there listening to the testimony and experiences of exsoldiers and sailors—men who have fought the good fight—men who effered all, if need be, for freedom and democracy—men who are now out of work—men who are qualified for nearly every kind of activity, as indicated in the appended list of classifications—men who are race and MUST have work—men who are tachelors, and accordingly a little n ore independent—men who are ambitious to get a place at a bare living ware, provioing there is a chance to work up into the business—men who are inclined to change from here to there—men who left three, five and ten thousand dollar jobs to enlist—men who prefer to work by the day on a different kind of job each day for the very love of variety—but all of them patriots, sincere and conscientious, and whose records are underwritten by the American Legion. Each ons is examined before he can be registered and qualify for aid through this bureau—and it is not difficult to imagine that Captain Conville's feelings run the gamut of life's experience every day; yet this man continues month giter month to handle this job with consideration and justice to the men and to employers; and apparently allows nothing to bias his mind or warp his better judgment, As areault he is, with the support of every patriotic employer, slowly but surely whittling down the number of unemployed ex-service men. But the end is not yet in sight; 573 still are out of employment.

The Chamber of Commerce is helping: the end is not yet in sight; 573 still are out of employers to wake up and fully appreciate what it means to allow these men to continue idie. And it is to those employers that this appeal is especially made—men who have not yet gone the extreme limit in readjusting their payrolls to make room for one or more of these worky men who have not yet gon
