LONDON, Feb. 8 .- The British par-Hament will reassemble on Tuesday with several of the weightiest prob-lems of reconstruction still hanging over its head. The financial situation, the question of nationalization of mines and rallroads and the Irish problem are three of the most important subjects with which the accession is expected to grapple.

PARIS, Feb. 8.—(Special Cable.)— A charge of plagiarism has been made Medford Is Church Headquarters. A charge of plagiarism has been made against the well-known author Pierre Benolt, whose book, "Atlantide," was crowned by the Academy. Rider Haggard's "She" is regarded here as being made the filmsy foundation. M. Benolt says he never read "She," that he does not read English, and that the book has never been translated into French. He gives a long list of scientific and travel authorities on which he worked to provide the basis for his romance, and the suggestion seems reasonable that Haggard used the churches of Jackson, Josephine and Douglas counties.

Benoit's book in its own way is quite as brilliant as Haggard's, especially its descriptions of savage life and manners; and he works up the element of the mysterious in connection with the Touaregs to a distinctly more thrilling effect. The case will in due course be investigated by the Academy to decide whether.
