

LINCOLN EULOGIZED BY WAR VETERANS

Civil War Survivors Pay Tribute to "Railsplitter."

FEDERAL BUDGET FAVORED

Yesterday Was Emancipator's Birthday and Members of His Old Army Did Him Honor.

Stirring and troublesome days of the civil war, during which time Abraham Lincoln courageously steered events that finally brought about the union of the north and the south, insuring the very life of the nation, were brought vividly to the minds of 500 silver-haired members of "Lincoln's army," who gathered yesterday afternoon at central library to attend the memorial exercises of the Lincoln Memorial society.

The majority of those who attended the meeting were veterans of the civil war, some of whom had met President Lincoln, and all were intimately acquainted with the remarkable achievements of the martyred president.

Charles F. Beebe, president of the Lincoln Memorial association, who presided at the meeting yesterday, eulogized Abraham Lincoln, referring to him as the greatest statesman America has ever had.

Lincoln's Record Reviewed
C. G. Burton, past state commander of the Grand Army of the Republic, was the principal speaker of the day. Mr. Burton eloquently visualized the life of Lincoln from the time of his birth until he occupied the White House.

"The first lesson that we learn from the life, achievements and history of Abraham Lincoln," said Mr. Burton, "is that ours is the land of opportunity. Born in a log cabin in comparative poverty, yet the last four years of his life were spent in the White House at Washington. His boyhood was spent in toil and poverty. His schooling was less than nine months' duration, but yet he acquired, through careful study and perseverance, an education which enabled him to meet every obligation which confronted him during his lifetime."

He Was Not an Egotist.
"Although a man who was always self-reliant, yet Abraham Lincoln was not an egotist. This was proven shortly after the outbreak of the civil war when he chose as his secretary of war, Edwin M. Stanton, who was a member of President Lincoln's opposition political faith. The chief characteristic of Abraham Lincoln as an American citizen was his respect and reverence of the law. It is a characteristic which we can all well bear in mind during the present era."

CLARKE REPUBLICANS MEET

When Guests Dropped in to Stay A Week or Two

WHAT a cheery bustle of coming and going there always was in the delightful Louisiana household where Aunt Jemima was cook! Such confusion in carrying all the carpet-bags and hat-boxes in and out! Such a pleasant flurry of excitement in greeting unexpected arrivals—such cordial last-minute efforts to urge the parting guest to stay a bit longer!

And yet there was never any commotion about caring for them all—though a whole family might "happen in" for a lengthy visit. There were plenty of extra rooms in the big pillared mansion—plenty of chickens and butter and eggs and rice and other good things to serve any number at any time! And always, at a moment's notice, Aunt Jemima could whisk up a batch of her famous pancakes—the like of which you'd never taste in all the old South!

How Aunt Jemima's cakes did taste! So rich-flavored, so fragrant! And how light they were, with the most delicate curly edges! No wonder the great piles of the tender hot cakes set before Col. Higbee and his guests would disappear in no time!

The housewife of 1920 finds that her guests, too, will go away singing the praises of her breakfasts if she gives them Aunt Jemima's Pancakes. For nowadays Aunt Jemima's own pancake recipe is prepared for distribution in packaged form. Specially ground flours, baking-powder—even milk in powdered form—come mixed in just the right proportions. Any grocer can supply you with Aunt Jemima Pancake Flour—and with it you cannot fail to make pancakes as rich and light as those that made Colonel Higbee's plantation home the haunt of all the Southern epicures!

Aunt Jemima Pancakes with syrup or sausage gravy! Nary a speck of precious sugar! What an easy and delicious solution of the sugar-saving problem!

Look on the top of the package and see how to get the jolly Aunt Jemima Rag Doll family.

Try it for muffins and waffles, too.

"Yas suh! yas suh—de Cuv'n' sho' do like lots of company"

"I 'se in town, honey!"

A delicious buckwheat cake flour is also made by the Aunt Jemima people. Ask for it.
