

BEAVER SENTENCED TO YEAR IN JAIL

Ex-Policeman Guilty of Moral Offense Against Girl.

HEAVY SENTENCE AVOIDED

Grand Jury Recommends Dismissal of Statutory Crimes and Misdemeanor Plea Is Accepted.

Charles W. Beaver, 18-year-old ex-member of the moral squad of the Portland police force, was sentenced by Judge Jacob Kanzier of the court of domestic relations yesterday to serve one year in the county jail for contributing to the delinquency of 15-year-old Evelyn Mack on a plea of guilty in the first proceeding of the kind to come before the court.

Beaver was permitted to plead guilty to the misdemeanor instead of the statutory crime for which he was indicted on a recommendation of the county grand jury, submitted with his indictment. This recommendation was to the effect that, due to his youth, his honorable service overseas and the fact that it was a first offense, Beaver be permitted to plead guilty to contributing to the delinquency of the minor, the indictment was to be tried for criminal assault, G. L. Ross, A. W. Molin, A. R. Trumm, W. H. Kane, S. C. Molinar and B. J. Berger were the grand jurors making the recommendation.

Heavy Sentence Avoided.
The indictment carried a possible penalty of 24 years imprisonment in the penitentiary and a misdemeanor charge a maximum of a year in jail and fine of $1000.

Beaver admitted registering with Evelyn Mack, who is also known as Evelyn Rice, at the Leux hotel on November 21, 1919, as "Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Brown, Seattle," and staying with her that night. The fact that he was in the police department on moral squad duty and at a time the police were looking for a runaway from home, Deputy District Attorney George Mowry and Miss Martha Randall of the women's protective division, who in a case report related the circumstances to the judge.

Speaking in defense of the young man, Attorney Tom Garland asked for leniency on the ground that the boy was not of age, should not have been on the police force, that he had served honorably in forces of the United States overseas, that the crime charged was as old as the pyramids and that the girl had been in similar trouble before. Beaver was said to have had about his age to get on the force. The authorities had no evidence of other delinquencies of the girl, except her own admission of misconduct in the hotel. She told Beaver she was married and had a husband in Seattle who had deserted her, said the defendant. She appeared much more than 12 years of age, said his attorney.

Judge Dislikes Duty.
After commenting on the distasteful nature of his duty in sentencing the boy, as society demanded, and asking him to take the judgment like a soldier, Judge Kanzier fixed the penalty at one year.

"You were supposed to have been the guardian of the morals of the community," he said to the accused. "If anything, you were on duty to prevent this sort of thing. That you were not in uniform when it happened is an extenuating circumstance, but it is not enough. You knew you were doing wrong and now you know you must face punishment."

The boy's mother was asked by Judge Kanzier if she had anything to say before sentence was passed, but she replied that she simply could not understand how it had all happened, as he had always been an upright lad. She lost one son in the war in a German prison camp.

The law establishing the court of domestic relations provides that it will have sole jurisdiction in cases of contributing to the delinquency of minors, instead of the circuit court. Beaver was indicted January 22.

MOONSHINE AUTO SEIZED

Authorities Take Machine From Convicted Bootlegger.

For the first time in the history of federal moonshine prosecutions in this state, the government today will file a libel against an automobile which was used in the transportation of moonshine whisky from an illicit still to another part of the city.

The libel papers will be filed by Assistant United States Attorney Roemer. Under the federal statutes an automobile which is used in transporting liquor from an illicit still can be confiscated by the government and sold, the money being turned over to the internal revenue department.

Vick Glover, who found guilty of moonshining by a federal jury Wednesday, admitted he had used an automobile in transporting his whisky from the still to his customers. Glover is now serving a six months' sentence in the Clackamas county jail.

VETERAN LECTURES BOYS

British Soldier Explains Danger of Juvenile Lawlessness.

EUGENE, Or., Feb. 19.—(Special.)—On a campaign of education against lawlessness in the way of breaking insulators on telegraph and trolley poles, J. G. McClelland, special agent of the S. P. and S. railway, has been speaking at rural schools up and down the valley along the right-of-way of the Oregon Electric railway during the past week or so. He was in Eugene yesterday. Mr. McClelland pointed out to the pupils of the schools the results of such lawlessness.

Mr. McClelland is a veteran of the British army, being a captain at the time England conquered Egypt and was present at the bombardment of Alexandria in 1882. He was wounded severely in a battle in the Sahara desert that year.

CITY ENGINEER TELLS PLANS AT LUNCHEON.

Development of Portland Water-front and Terminal Facilities Are Outlined.

Members of the Progressive Business Men's association, meeting for their regular weekly luncheon at the Benson hotel yesterday, took up the matter of improvement of the water-front and expansion of interurban railway terminal facilities along the lines suggested in the recent report of City Engineer Laurgaard. Upon the invitation of the club the city engineer explained his proposal in detail, using maps. The session was one of a half dozen or more planned by the club for the present year under the auspices of the committee on water-front improvement and industrial development.

Mr. Laurgaard, in explaining the proposed improvement, laid particular stress upon the fact that the plan as proposed can be done gradually, without a great burden of expense to taxpayers, and will do much to relieve the congestion of the downtown district. The sum necessary to purchase the property, build the concrete seawall and erect the market and terminal buildings proposed was estimated by him at $10,000,000. Under the present city charter the city government can issue bonds only up to 7 per cent of its assessed valuation, he stated. This limit would leave only $4,774,000 in bonds which could now legally be issued in addition to the existing $17,126,000 of bonds. The first step to take, according to the engineer, would be to amend the charter to allow for a greater bond issue.

At the close of the address members of the club expressed themselves as much interested in the proposed development and favorable to its being carried out as a necessary step in the growth of the city.

THRFT EDITOR TO SPEAK

Authority on Home Economics to Address O. A. C. Students.

OREGON AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE, Corvallis, Feb. 19.—(Special.)—Mrs. Alice P. Norton, editor of the Journal of Home Economics, will give a series of lectures during the second and third weeks of summer school this year. Mrs. Norton is considered one of the best authorities in home economics in the country. She is a pioneer in the work and studied with Mrs. Ellen H. Richards, the originator of the study of home economics. Mrs. Norton was appointed to the department of thrift in the treasury department in Washington, D. C., and divided the time following this appointment between the Journal of Home Economics, the food administration and the thrift campaign.
