GEORGE FOUTCH VICTIM

Roseburg Restaurant Owner Goes Violently Insane After Drinking Whisky.

ROSEBURG, Or., March 12.—(Special.)—George Foutch, local restaurant owner, died last night of an illness which began apparently as the result of his having drunk some whisky which contained poison in some form...

The whisky which resulted in Foutch's death was obtained about three weeks ago. He was with two companions for a time and the three engaged in a card game which ended in a fistful encounter...

A bottle of whisky taken from one of the drinkers was obtained by the police and an analysis made to determine if possible the nature of the poison. The examination developed in the finding of fusel oils, but no poisonous substance was found...

Mr. Foutch was 51 years old, a native of Kansas City. He came to Roseburg about four years ago and started a small restaurant near the depot. At the time of his death he was the owner of two large restaurants, one near the station and the other in the uptown district.
