LIQUOR SCHEME REVEALED

Fund of $1000 Contributed to Relieve Drought Without Result Is Disclosed.

Portland business men "having offices in the city's most prominent buildings" and being of a more or less thirty disposition contributed nearly $1000 toward a little fund given to Leon Camsusa, formerly of Victoria, B. C., to defray expenses he said would be involved in bringing from Canada "something with a kick in it" according to testimony of the prisoner yesterday. But they received no liquor and the chief instigator of the scheme landed in the net of Chief Immigration Inspector Bonham and is now in the county jail awaiting action on deportation proceedings.

That he had been assured "by a third party" he would be given liquor by Mayor Baker, United States Attorney Humphrey and District Attorney Evans of Multnomah county should he succeed in bringing in liquor to Portland was Camsusa's declaration when on the stand before Inspector Bonham when the deportation proceedings hearing on his case will be sent to Washington, D. C., with whatever recommendations Mr. Bonham may make and will be acted upon from there.

Questions Surprise Prisoner.

Inspector Bonham surprised Camsusa considerably yesterday by asking him direct questions concerning certain prominent business men of this city, as to whether they did or did not pay him sums of money for the purpose of getting intoxicants.

Mr. Bonham said last night that he has quite a list of names of local business men of prominence who "bit" at the bait offered by Camsusa, but he said he had not yet decided to make these public; whether he would is in the future.

Camsusa came to grief through a woman, name not announced by the officials, although, in fairness to him, it is said he had no part in her machinations, being only the victim. She tried to get to Portland to secure a passport, but her application was refused; her action was reported to the immigration authorities here, who set to work as long ago as last December to trace this feature and finally located Camsusa here, working for the Oregon Marine & Fisheries company.

Camsusa, it is said, was an "outside man," one of his duties being to meet certain boats—whether from Canada or not is not clear. He was registered at a prominent hotel and was considered quite a "good fellow," dressed well and was a "good spender" until the immigration men intervened.

When placed on the stand yesterday Camsusa, usually calm and cool under almost any circumstances, is said to have been embarrassed when asked by Mr. Bonham to explain why he took sums of money from local business men on promise of providing them with some of the Canadian brand of wet goods, and then failed to deliver. He got around it by maintaining that he had been advised by a number of the part of the officials named should he bring any bottled goods here, is about 42 years old and formerly was associated with a prominent Victoria ship chandler concern. He was married, but is divorced. His wife has been fixed at $1000, which he has thus far been unable to furnish.

French in Difficulties in Syria While Great Britain Is Having Trouble on Euphrates.

(Copyright by the New York World. Published by Arrangement.)

LONDON, March 16.—(Special cable.)—The diplomatic correspondent of the Daily Telegraph, referring to the discussion of the Turkish crisis by the supreme council, says the Greek premier offered the services of at least six infantry divisions and one of cavalry, 100,000 men in all. Venizelos is convinced that, given a free hand, this Greek army could eradicate the young Turk peril single handed, although he fully recognizes that an interallied force would be preferable to action by any single power.

Venizelos is very anxious on the demoralization of the Turk that had followed Lord Allenby's lightning and annihilating victories in Palestine and argued that it would probably require no very large or prolonged show of force to cow once more the Ottoman spirit.

This view was not, however, accepted without qualification by the other allied experts. The Italians from the base and 700 feet long. Instead of a road, this Greek army could eradicate the young Turk peril single handed, although he fully recognizes that an interallied force would be preferable to action by any single power.

Major-General Maurice writes in the Daily News: "We are sad to be on the verge of renewal of the war with Turkey. I was assured yesterday that the French were on the point of being driven from Syria and that we were in difficulties in Kurdistan and on the Euphrates."

ZONING ACTION UP TODAY

FINAL VOTE ON MEASURE MAY BE POSTPONED, HOWEVER.

Appropriation of $30,000 for Contagious Hospital Also to Go Before Council.

Zoning, consideration of the appropriation ordinance for the construction of a contagious hospital and selection of the motion picture censorship board are scheduled to come before the city council this morning. Final vote on the proposed zoning ordinance probably will be deferred, pending the completion of negotiations between members of the city planning commission and committees from the realty board and the Portland Chamber of Commerce. The ordinance has not been listed on the regular council calendar although it was agreed that it would lay on the table for only two weeks, in which the chief obstructor, has worked for more than a week in an endeavor to defeat the ordinance.

However, some hope for the passage of the ordinance is held out, as only three votes are necessary for passage. Mayor Baker, Commissioners Barbur, Pier and Mann have all pledged themselves to vote for the ordinance, with the two latter members reserving the right to break the pledge in the event that the ordinance is held out as only one whereby a hospital can be erected immediately by some agency other than the city.

The selection of two members of the new motion picture censorship board is not listed on the council calendar, but according to previous announcement by Mayor Baker, the council will be asked to make the selection of the two members today.

The council will also select one name from the list of three names presented by the motion picture interests.
