

Morning Oregonian

ESTABLISHED BY HENRY L. PITCOCK. Published by The Oregonian Publishing Co., 225 South Street, Portland, Oregon.

Subscription Rates—Invariably in Advance. Daily, Sunday included, one year $8.00. Daily, Sunday included, six months $4.50.

How to Remit—Send postage money order, express or personal check on local bank. If you are in Oregon, send to owner's risk. Give postoffice address in full, including zip.

THE SHIPPING BILL IS NEXT. Adoption of a shipping bill is next on the programme of congress, and appointment of a subcommittee by the senate merchant marine committee to draft a bill implies that debate in the senate will soon begin.

Over in South Dakota the other day Hiram prepared his alibi against probable results at the primary next week by charging that Wall street food was being poured into the state in a criminal effort to defeat the last surviving genuine, blown-in-the-bottle champion of the people—himself.

Let us be frank. Hiram is a machine, and its engineers and leaders are bosses. When it is for Hiram the machine is merely an organization that has been put together by engineers. How is one to know the difference? Easy, quite easy.

Let us be frank. Hiram is a machine, and its engineers and leaders are bosses. When it is for Hiram the machine is merely an organization that has been put together by engineers. How is one to know the difference? Easy, quite easy.

Let us be frank. Hiram is a machine, and its engineers and leaders are bosses. When it is for Hiram the machine is merely an organization that has been put together by engineers. How is one to know the difference? Easy, quite easy.

Let us be frank. Hiram is a machine, and its engineers and leaders are bosses. When it is for Hiram the machine is merely an organization that has been put together by engineers. How is one to know the difference? Easy, quite easy.

Let us be frank. Hiram is a machine, and its engineers and leaders are bosses. When it is for Hiram the machine is merely an organization that has been put together by engineers. How is one to know the difference? Easy, quite easy.

Let us be frank. Hiram is a machine, and its engineers and leaders are bosses. When it is for Hiram the machine is merely an organization that has been put together by engineers. How is one to know the difference? Easy, quite easy.

and Bremer, the committee recommended the need of an intermediate base, and the Columbia river's mouth is the logical place. The size of the first appropriation is immaterial; the point is to get the government committed to the site, and the committee's action is a long step toward gaining that point.

THE FRAUD ON HIRAM. Hiram Johnson gets all het up and raises his stentorian voice in an anguished cry of fraud over the Minnesota primary. It was to be expected. Any primary or convention or election which goes against Hiram is a fraudulent and wicked conspiracy to deprive the people of their right and duty of making Hiram governor or senator or president or something.

Over in South Dakota the other day Hiram prepared his alibi against probable results at the primary next week by charging that Wall street food was being poured into the state in a criminal effort to defeat the last surviving genuine, blown-in-the-bottle champion of the people—himself.

Let us be frank. Hiram is a machine, and its engineers and leaders are bosses. When it is for Hiram the machine is merely an organization that has been put together by engineers. How is one to know the difference? Easy, quite easy.

Let us be frank. Hiram is a machine, and its engineers and leaders are bosses. When it is for Hiram the machine is merely an organization that has been put together by engineers. How is one to know the difference? Easy, quite easy.

Let us be frank. Hiram is a machine, and its engineers and leaders are bosses. When it is for Hiram the machine is merely an organization that has been put together by engineers. How is one to know the difference? Easy, quite easy.

Let us be frank. Hiram is a machine, and its engineers and leaders are bosses. When it is for Hiram the machine is merely an organization that has been put together by engineers. How is one to know the difference? Easy, quite easy.

Let us be frank. Hiram is a machine, and its engineers and leaders are bosses. When it is for Hiram the machine is merely an organization that has been put together by engineers. How is one to know the difference? Easy, quite easy.

Let us be frank. Hiram is a machine, and its engineers and leaders are bosses. When it is for Hiram the machine is merely an organization that has been put together by engineers. How is one to know the difference? Easy, quite easy.

Let us be frank. Hiram is a machine, and its engineers and leaders are bosses. When it is for Hiram the machine is merely an organization that has been put together by engineers. How is one to know the difference? Easy, quite easy.

nitrogen, all in highly available form. All of the familiar arguments for alcohol as a theoretical substitute for gasoline as motor fuel are met by the exceedingly practical fact that it is not promised at a price that warrants necessary changes in motor construction. The potential sources of alcohol, as has been repeatedly shown, are almost unlimited; but there are many factors yet to be established before the product enters into general use.

THE FRAUD ON HIRAM. Hiram Johnson gets all het up and raises his stentorian voice in an anguished cry of fraud over the Minnesota primary. It was to be expected. Any primary or convention or election which goes against Hiram is a fraudulent and wicked conspiracy to deprive the people of their right and duty of making Hiram governor or senator or president or something.

Over in South Dakota the other day Hiram prepared his alibi against probable results at the primary next week by charging that Wall street food was being poured into the state in a criminal effort to defeat the last surviving genuine, blown-in-the-bottle champion of the people—himself.

Let us be frank. Hiram is a machine, and its engineers and leaders are bosses. When it is for Hiram the machine is merely an organization that has been put together by engineers. How is one to know the difference? Easy, quite easy.

Let us be frank. Hiram is a machine, and its engineers and leaders are bosses. When it is for Hiram the machine is merely an organization that has been put together by engineers. How is one to know the difference? Easy, quite easy.

Let us be frank. Hiram is a machine, and its engineers and leaders are bosses. When it is for Hiram the machine is merely an organization that has been put together by engineers. How is one to know the difference? Easy, quite easy.

Let us be frank. Hiram is a machine, and its engineers and leaders are bosses. When it is for Hiram the machine is merely an organization that has been put together by engineers. How is one to know the difference? Easy, quite easy.

Let us be frank. Hiram is a machine, and its engineers and leaders are bosses. When it is for Hiram the machine is merely an organization that has been put together by engineers. How is one to know the difference? Easy, quite easy.

Let us be frank. Hiram is a machine, and its engineers and leaders are bosses. When it is for Hiram the machine is merely an organization that has been put together by engineers. How is one to know the difference? Easy, quite easy.

Let us be frank. Hiram is a machine, and its engineers and leaders are bosses. When it is for Hiram the machine is merely an organization that has been put together by engineers. How is one to know the difference? Easy, quite easy.

Stars and Starmakers. By Leone Cass Bacr.

When Theda Bara opened in "The Blue Flame" in Boston last week it took dozens of policemen to hold the crowd in check. The mob jammed the alley where the stage door opens and Theda couldn't get out for her motor car.

Mexico is the last country which can still suggest a hope of a weak neighbor, for it has become the synonym for anarchy, with three or four revolutions in full swing at one time and with a central government in control of no more territory than its army occupies.

Mayo Methot celebrated her 17th birthday last week. Mayo is ingenious with the Baker Stock company, and according to statistics she is in stock in the United States. Mayo has a well developed sense of humor and she told me this story about another ingenious who is not as young as 17.

Princess Kia-Wi-na, Indian harpist and banjoist, sails this month for England, where she has been booked over the Moss time. The princess hails from Hamilton and eastern Oregon way points.

The out-of-board craze (that word is used thinking) has spread to vaudeville and two new acts using a out-of-board craze are an out-of-board craze. The new Zigzag roof show is to have a out-of-board craze.

Miss Joyce is to be married to James Regan Jr. after the Lenten season. Mr. Regan is the son of the proprietor of the Hotel Knickerbocker, New York.

Charles Garville died in London March 1. He was a well-known English writer, the author of many novels and one play, "The Fisherman's Daughter," which was produced.

Girls of thirteen who take rides with strange men out of the city need more than a mere talking to when they get back—if they get back more than a mere talking to.

George Arliss is due to open in New York in "Poidekin" by Booth Tarkenton. In less than a fortnight the date of opening is still doubtful, as the management is unable to secure a theater in New York City.

Those Who Come and Go.

Someone said that the world is a pretty small place. Mrs. Henry Martin, a French woman, married Mr. Martin, a "Yank" of the A. E. F. They arrived at the Hotel Portland yesterday. Something went wrong with the lock of the trunk and Mrs. Martin asked for the trunk to be examined.

With a silver and lead mine in the Coeur d'Alene district, Peter Bernier of Wallace, Idaho, is well satisfied with the advancing price of silver. He says that since the war the mining business has been constantly improving, as more men are entering the industry.

Princess Kia-Wi-na, Indian harpist and banjoist, sails this month for England, where she has been booked over the Moss time. The princess hails from Hamilton and eastern Oregon way points.

The out-of-board craze (that word is used thinking) has spread to vaudeville and two new acts using a out-of-board craze are an out-of-board craze. The new Zigzag roof show is to have a out-of-board craze.

Miss Joyce is to be married to James Regan Jr. after the Lenten season. Mr. Regan is the son of the proprietor of the Hotel Knickerbocker, New York.

Charles Garville died in London March 1. He was a well-known English writer, the author of many novels and one play, "The Fisherman's Daughter," which was produced.

Girls of thirteen who take rides with strange men out of the city need more than a mere talking to when they get back—if they get back more than a mere talking to.

George Arliss is due to open in New York in "Poidekin" by Booth Tarkenton. In less than a fortnight the date of opening is still doubtful, as the management is unable to secure a theater in New York City.

George Arliss is due to open in New York in "Poidekin" by Booth Tarkenton. In less than a fortnight the date of opening is still doubtful, as the management is unable to secure a theater in New York City.

FOREIGN TONGUES ARE OPPOSED. Use of English by All Papers Advocated by Correspondent.

PORTLAND, March 17.—(To the Editor.)—It may be that Americans are "ganz praklich" as a recent correspondent quotes with approval from the German. If to see through the little tricks of politicians and to be able to trace actions back to real motives be practical, a German intellectual would appreciate the "Superman," but to be called "Blattlinie" by the people who first in modern times used poison gas and liquid fire seems anomalous.

We are practical enough to properly place appeals to the goddess of liberty, etc. Reading English newspapers was also known to the list-too-common anti-proh and I. W. W. on up. Maybe we understand and sympathize with the old-fashioned, home-loving German, who are idealists enough to think he came here for reasons similar to those that brought Carl Schurz to our shores.

Most Americans believe in the right of private property, in the right of confiscation, the right to our beliefs without fear of persecution, the right to decently worship God, or not, as they please, and the right to be treated with their attendant rights and privileges and access to a little poetry, art and philosophy, we are willing to give up the majority of the English reading citizens of the United States on matters affecting the welfare of the community, retaining to ourselves the right to demand its reversal or modification. It seems unnecessary to accuse us of being Philistines or of dismantling the God of Liberty.

Let the editors and correspondents of foreign language papers write in their own language, and let the people all the time. A SUBSCRIBER.

Let the editors and correspondents of foreign language papers write in their own language, and let the people all the time. A SUBSCRIBER.

Let the editors and correspondents of foreign language papers write in their own language, and let the people all the time. A SUBSCRIBER.

Let the editors and correspondents of foreign language papers write in their own language, and let the people all the time. A SUBSCRIBER.

Let the editors and correspondents of foreign language papers write in their own language, and let the people all the time. A SUBSCRIBER.

Let the editors and correspondents of foreign language papers write in their own language, and let the people all the time. A SUBSCRIBER.

In Other Days.

Twenty-five Years Ago. From The Oregonian of March 18, 1895. The city treasurer has to date issued 149 warrants for dogs and Poundmaster Foster has since September 1 last given the happy dispatch to 870 dogs.

East side residents are pleased with the improvements that are being made on the Holiday park and hope to see the park well under way by the time the city's breathing spots of the city.

A pictorial novelty, in the shape of a golden calf, is to be seen at the downtown drug store. It was caught at Sanvies island.

Fifty Years Ago. From The Oregonian of March 18, 1870. The editor very rapidly disappeared yesterday. That by sundown the streets were quite bare.

One of our unimpeachable citizens has received a proposition from another of those swindling concerns which are so numerous in New York, offering to sell him a certain stock for $200 for $1000.

Helena, Mont.—The business men, except saloonkeepers, have all agreed to close their business places on Sunday.

WHO SHALL JUDGE THE LAW? Shall a Jury Return a Verdict According to Its Thinking? PORTLAND, March 17.—(To the Editor.)—Judge Wilson, presiding over the trial of the ten men accused of first-degree murder at Montezuma, asked, told the jury, after they had exercised their right to send their findings were contrary to the order of the court, and for them to go back in session and find a verdict other than that of the jury.

Let the editors and correspondents of foreign language papers write in their own language, and let the people all the time. A SUBSCRIBER.

Let the editors and correspondents of foreign language papers write in their own language, and let the people all the time. A SUBSCRIBER.