

FULL COURT ORDERED FOR TRIAL OF LAUNDRY Regular Panel Exhausted and Others Called.

FIRST WITNESS TESTIFIES Connection of Defendant With I. W. W. Proved by Membership Card and Dues Receipt.

Completion of the jury, opening statements by counsel for prosecution and defense and testimony by the first witness for the state were developments yesterday in the trial of Joe Laundry, I. W. W. and local "red" leader, for violation of the criminal syndicalism act, being held before Circuit Judge H. H. Belt. Thirty-eight prospective jurors were examined, 15 were excused for cause, five were challenged peremptorily by the defense and two were challenged by the state before a jury satisfactory to both sides was secured at 3:15 yesterday afternoon. The regular jury panel was exhausted and a special venire had to be called.

During a full in proceedings while attorneys were looking up the law to present to the court concerning the case of a special venire, a fair-haired baby girl played on the knees of Laundry, defendant. She laughed deliriously, "patty-eaked" and had an altogether delightful time. Occasionally Mrs. Laundry would lean over and kiss the child affectionately. The pretty domestic picture was in full view of the jurors. The baby was the daughter of a cousin of Laundry.

Vanderveer's Request Denied. After the opening statement to the jury by Earl F. Bernard, deputy district attorney, George F. Vanderveer for the defense asked to be permitted to reserve what he had to say until a later stage. He was informed, however, that the law in Oregon requires the statement for the defense to follow that of the prosecution.

Membership of Laundry in the I. W. W. was proved by the identification of a receipt paid by him and the production of his red membership card during the examination of the first witness for the state, Police Lieutenant Frank Egan, who participated in a raid on the radicals' hall, 123 1/2 Second street, on the evening of Nov. 11, 1920, when it was reported that a celebration of the armistice day massacre at Centralia was being held.

In the course of an objection Vanderveer admitted that his client was a member of the I. W. W., but challenged the state to prove that he joined in Multnomah county.

Stronous objection to the calling of a special venire of jurors when the available panel was exhausted was presented by Vanderveer shortly after noon. He protested that as long as there were jurors in other courtrooms, hearing other cases, the panel was not exhausted and the court had no right to send out the sheriff's men to round up further talemens.

"I know from experience how important it is for the defense to have laboring men on this jury," protested Vanderveer, "and I know that not one of the special venire will be laborers."

The attorney was wrong. The first two jurors of the special panel called were laborers and both were accepted by state and defense alike. They were R. D. Montague, timber cruiser, and S. M. Leonard, bridge worker.

List of Jurymen Accepted. The jury, accepted by state and defense at 3:15, is composed of the following: Alfred B. Horton, grocer; George E. Mizmer, watchman; Alex W. Robinson, machinist; Hugh Hayden, engineer; William Wemy, machinist; Elmer A. Miles, carman; E. W. Endicott, clerk; Patrick W. Reynolds, laborer; S. M. Leonard, bridge worker; Abe Rosenbaum, clothes; R. D. Montague, timber cruiser, and John Q. Adams, carman.

Frank L. Dumas, one of the jurors passed by both sides to the day before, sought excuse from jury duty on account of sickness yesterday. Otis Skipton was drawn in his place, but disqualified himself by stating his opinion concerning the I. W. W. Henry W. Powell, machinist, was the next to be selected. Though passed for cause, Vanderveer later accepted his fourth peremptory challenge against Powell. Frank P. Walker then was drawn and excused for cause.

F. S. Elward, former juror called to fill this vacancy. "Did you ever read any socialist literature?" Vanderveer asked him.

"Well, a socialist paper was left in my mail box one time and I looked over the headings and read a little of the reply. I was looking for some good reasons in it, but burned it up."

"I didn't find any good reasons," Elward was subsequently excused on the fifth peremptory challenge exercised by the defense.
