APPROVAL OF SWAN ISLAND PLAN ASKED

Formal Expression Desired by City Council.

HEARINGS TO BE HELD

All Citizens Will Be Given Opportunity to Discuss Port Scheme, According to Announcement.

Formal expression of approval of the Swan Island development project by the Port of Portland commission and the commission of public docks is sought by the city council in a reso-lution adopted yesterday by unani-

Informal approval of the plan has already been given by all members of the two commissions, but acting upon fifteen in its report, the city council desires to have such expression as a matter of record for future refer-

Resolution Is Pirst Step. The passage of the resolution yes-orday is the first step in the consideration of the report submitted by the committee of fifteen on the Swan Island project, and is to be followed by hearings at which all citizens will be invited to participate. Dates of such hearings will be announced later, according to Mayor Baker. F. C. Knapp, who with Frank M. Warren and J. B. Kerr, appeared be-fore the city council yesterday, rep-resenting the committee of fifteen. resenting the committee of litteen, outlined the development of the Port of Portland during the past few years and explained the attitude of the members of the committee of fifteen in regard to the development of the proposed plan.

"Ten years ago Portland had no shipping," said Mr. Knapp. "This was because of three obstructions—not sufficient depth of water at the mouth of the Columbia river, too many bridges in Portland, and two bad turns at Swan Island. The first obstacle was removed by the aid of the government largely, although the ort of Portland spent $400,000 in the

As time went on the people Portland awakened to the need port government and voted bond is-sues with which money might be procured for the proper development of the port. The commission of public docks did not have sufficient money to remove the bad turns at Swan sland and were powerless to remove After much study the commission decided to jump over the bridges and Swan Island, and go beled to estab-lish terminals to handle the shipping which was expected to enter Port-land following the war.

"The wisdom of this move is now apparent, for only men and material are now necessary to complete the project and aircady it is operating to complete capacity. With this project about completed, the next important move in Portland develop-ment was discussed by the committee committee of 15 that facilities to han-dle the business of the city of Port-land should be next considered. Other projects have been investigated, but with due respect to the mayor and city council, we ask that we be not oked out on these projects at this Portland's development as an industrial center and shipping point cannot be stopped, but it behooves all to do their share in hurrying this development and affording proper fa-cilities for the handling of the business of the city's port."

The suggestion offered by City Commissioner Barbur to transfer the power of authority for appointing members of the proposed consolidated port commission from the state legislature to the governor of the state was referred to City Attorney La-Roche for a study and recommenda-

Complication to Be Avoided. Constitutional law, well established, giving the port authority to levy taxes, a power derived from the legis-lature, led to the recommendation that the appointing power be invested in the hands of the legislature, acmember of the committee of 15.

Mr. Kerr contended that the trans-fer of such authority might result in casting doubt on the authority of the port commission to levy taxes, and it was the opinion of committee members that no complications of a legal nature should be invited. Fear of logrolling by members of the state legislature in connection with the appointment of future mem-bers of the port commission, should the proposed plan be approved by the voters, was given by Commis-sioner Barbur as his reason for suggesting a change. He contended that the port commission should be freed of political chains, and by delegating the authority of appointment to the governor, no great fear could be exercised that the port commission would divert into a political football.

No opposition to the plan was expressed at the preliminary meeting.

Mayor Baker extended an invitation to all who were present to speak.

The privilege of the floor was not accepted by any of the visitors. Mayor Baker then saked Alfred L. A. a, representing the Peninsula Development company, if he desired the floor, "I do not care to talk to the council at this time," explained Mr. Aya. This project is an important one, a big issue, your honor, and I am cer-tain that a great many people will like to be heard. I believe the de-velopment of Swan island is a step toward improved shipping facilities for Portland."

Lowden, Wood and Poindexter

Organizers Busy. MEDFORD, Or., March 26.—(Special.)—Politics are beginning to warm up in Medford. Following the visit here recently of George D.
