PRETTY CAROLYN THOMSON CAROLS HER WAY TO FAME

Golden-Haired Star of "Maytime" Has Ambitions Some Day to Play in Grand Opera and She Knows She Can Do It.

W HEN old Doc Stark brought a sat in conclave and named her Carolyn. When they gave her that name perfectly it would fit her when she grew up. By an easy misspelling it you can get Carolin'. That been exactly what the little Thomson girl has been doing all her life just carolin' songs.

She caroled even when a very little girl and since she had a background of aunties and an uncle or so and a JAPANESE WOMAN MISSING.—Kino the concert stage, in the village choirs akinada. Japanese woman, is read in their own social circles, the family wasn't at all surprised when the newest of their kin bobbed up with a voice.

Fargo, and the family moved to St. Paul and then as the young voice and its owner grew in ambitions they the voice and its owner and a per fectly charming mother of the lin' Carolyn went to New York. From then on it reads like a fairy tale, with none of the heartaches nor woes of distillusionment or fights with fate that usually attend on little maids with voices waiting recognition. One successful season after ansecond season of Maytime, an interesting role which requires her to be an actress quite as much as a singer In the first act she is a young maid Ottillie, deep in a romance with her gardener swain. For this role she wears her own youthful face, her own bronze gold hair done in curls and is just her own cheery charming self. Fifteen years later the second act transpires and in the meantime Miss Transpires and in the meantime Miss Mimi's sad enough, but at least she Thomson has subdued the hair by a doesn't kill herself, as the butterfly fied lack of color by careful makeup, and stepped into a stately crinoline.

When we next see her 25 years are supposed to have elapsed and she is a frail old yearleader.

She says she is going to carol her and are able to finance themselves of for a short course of instruction. It is a very fascinating and profitable gy toward it. This summer she is gogy toward it. This summer she is go-ing to coach in New York.

"I'm not alming at the big dramatic singing roles," she said. "I want first of all to do 'Mimi' in 'La Bo-hides her own hair, and a bloodless pallor creeps even to her hands. She seems to float, a fragile exquisite old lady, into the picture.

Then she reappears in the last act as the granddaughter of the aforementioned old lady, and this time she is a modern yound maid, coiffed, costill carolin'.

She says she is going to carol her the man dealy ages older.

"I think if a singer puts herself into a role with all sincerity an audience will feel it. It is all an atti-dience will feel it the necessary power if you believe you can. When the power and abili-ty arrive together, then you arrive. Results always follow concentration and work. Faith, self-confidence, perseverance and persistence count." > BI-LINGUAL LAW FOUGHT,-Application for a restraining order against the new bi-lingual newspaper law, which is to become effective April 20. 1920, was made yesterday by the Swedish Publishing & Printing com-pany of Portland in an action filed in federal court, versus George M. Brown, attorney-general, and Walter H Evans, district attorney. The pub-lishing company sets forth the asserion that its paper, the Oregon Posten, under the bi-lingual law, will be com-pelled to issue two editions—one in English and one in Swedish—and that such necessity would involve the loss of a $10,000 investment. Further the publishing company asserts that the bi-lingual law is in violation of the constutional guarantee of free speech.
