CHAPLIN'S MEMORY FAILS

L. W. W. Attorney Takes Stand to Supply Testimony; Prosecution Creates Surprise.

years of his connection with the headquarters of the I. W. W. at 104 West Madison street, Chicago, and the publication work of the organization, he had never known the I. W. W. to order any special pamphlets written. The I. W. W. publishing company printed only voluntary contributions thought by the organization to have merit, he said.

Attorney Alleges Trick

Mr. Bernard called his attention to three motions made during August of last year, in a record of L. W. W. headquarters ordering handbooks written, and Chaplin confessed he might have been mistaken. The editor further had testified that he received $25 a week from the I. W. W. and that that amount was the highest salary the organization ever paid anyone. In one of the official records quoted by Bernard, the motion to have a handbook written was accompanied with the recommendation that $25 a week be paid the writer, Chaplin then admitted that $25 did not always have been the top price.

"Who composed the Joe Hill edition of the I. W. W. songbook?"

"I did," said Chaplin.

"And after expurgated editions were the result of your censoring?"

"Yes, sir."

"No one else helped you?"

"Not that I remember."

"At this juncture Vanderveer sprang to his feet and asked the witness:

"This is dirty peddling," shouted the attorney. "The district attorney knows that I testified at Montezuma that I had censored that book and is trying to trap the witness."

"Exactly," smiled Bernard.

"I object to counsel's smirking and stirring up a fuss over this thing," went on Vanderveer. "Don't you remember, Ralph, when you got the proof sheets of that copy and I went over them with you?"

"Witness Then Recalls.

"Oh, yes," recalled the witness.

"I thought you would after Mr. Vanderveer had your chance to prompt you," commented Bernard. "That is all."

On direct examination Chaplin had testified that he joined the I. W. W. in West Virginia in 1913; that a strike there had inspired the poems in "When the Leaves Come Out" and caused him to join the I. W. W.; that before he joined he was a commercial artist; that sabotage meant withdrawal of efficiency from industry, not destruction; that no books on sabotage had been circulated by the I. W. W. to his knowledge since 1917; that the content of the songbook pamphlets published by the I. W. W. resulted in the taking of different sides on the same question in I. W. W. literature.

"I'll prove that the I. W. W. is the most non-resisting, pacific organization in the world," shouted Vanderveer to counsel and jury yesterday morning as he offered to show by witnesses from Montana and Arizona that the Industrial Workers of the World had been abused in countless ways during strikes, but never had retaliated in any way, though powder with which to blow up mines and other means were at hand to do incalculable damage to employers.

Reply Is Withheld.

Reply by the state to this challenge was withheld by the knowledge that to mention Centralia in the presence of the jurors in this case might have been reversible error. But a few moments later, before the jury returned from a recess and after Vanderveer had renewed his offer of proof to Judge Bell, Bernard found his opening.

"That the doctrine of class hatred taught by this organization results in cold-blooded murder is proved easily," he declared. "We need not go back to Butte nor to Blaine. We need go no further back than November of last year and no further away than a sister state. The world knows what the I. W. W. teaches from its action on November 11 in Washington."

The prosecution strongly resisted the introduction of testimony concerning the negative acts of the I. W. W., particularly in view of the fact that the court had ruled that the state could not submit evidence of specific acts of sabotage or violence practiced by the I. W. W.

Judge Sustains Logic.

"If we cannot show by specific, affirmative acts, the I. W. W. does, how can the defense show by negative testimony what the organization does not do?" asked Bernard. Judge Bell agreed with the logic, and defense will be limited to show how the I. W. W. stood on questions of violence, as an organization, by vote," ruled the judge. "If we undertake to try the Butte strike and other industrial troubles, we will never get through."

T. R. Speakman, secretary of the central propaganda committee at Seattle in 1919, but who is now being held in the county jail on a criminal syndicalism indictment, was called as a witness shortly before adjournment. He testified that he had distributed literature in Seattle during the last two years for the I. W. W. and that he never sold any books on sabotage or pamphlets appearing to advocate violence, such as the state produced in evidence on the testimony of former I. W. W. who had told of circulating them last year. He declared he had not seen any literature on sabotage in an I. W. W. hall since 1917.

Joe Shannon, a member of the I. W. W. since 1906, and participant in the Butte strike of mine workers in 1917 and 1918, was called by the defense to prove the alleged non-resisting character of the I. W. W. He said that meetings of the I. W. W. in Butte during the strike voted to keep the peace and commit no acts of violence.

On cross-examination, he admitted that the peace-preaching strike bulletins concerning which he had testified in his direct examination were not issued by the I. W. W., but by the mine workers' union, explaining, however, that most of the union members were I. W. W. He said he had been a witness for the defense in a syndicalism case in Seattle.

NEW BEAN WINS BUYER

Eastern Man Orders 500 Cases of Pack of Eugene Cannery.

EUGENE, Or., March 30.—(Special.)—So well pleased was one of the eastern buyers of products of the cannery of the Eugene Fruitgrowers' association with a sample of new canned beans which was sent him by J. O. Holt, manager of the association, that he placed an order for 5000 cases of the product. Mr. Holt says that this is equal to the entire season's pack of the ordinary beans and he is doubtful if such a large order of this variety can be filled.

Mr. Holt discovered this variety of bean last year and canned a few samples. It is a huge yellow bean and is named whole. He has been unable to learn the name of the variety though it has been grown in gardens here for many years.

DISTRICT PLANS UNION

Vote on Consolidation to Be Held Next Two Weeks.

YANCOUVER, Wash., March 30.—(Special.)—The movement toward consolidating country schools will receive an impetus April 3, and Saturday, April 10, when five present districts will be voted into two districts. If the election carries, Next Saturday La Center and Fairview will hold an election to consolidate, and April 10 Hockinson and Salmon Falls and Mountain View will vote on the same issue.

The purpose is to secure more efficient teachers, as it is conceded that better teaching can be done in larger schools with a smaller number of grades under each teacher.

Base Will Cost Less Than Estimated, Declares Astoria Man.

ASTORIA, Or., March 30.—(Special.)—"The prices which the people will be compelled to pay for the site of the proposed naval base will be less than the committee anticipated," said B. F. Stone today.

Mr. Stone returned last night from Portland, where he met G. B. McLeod of the Hammond Lumber company. Mr. Stone said the figure submitted for the Hammond tract was a reasonable one. Mr. Stone, however, said he did not feel like making the figures public until after he had submitted them to the chamber of commerce committee appointed to assess the
