

FULTON FATTENS GUNNER IN SECOND

FARMER BEATS WALKER

Bronson Draws With Mandot, Mascot Defeats Edwards and Martin Wins Decision.

Fight Results. Fred Fulton knocked out Gunboat Smith in second round of ten-round bout; heavy-weight.

Frank Farmer won ten-round decision over Hugh Walker; light heavy-weight.

Joe Mandot and Muff Bronson fought six rounds to a draw; lightweights.

Billy Mascot won ten-round decision over Danny Edwards; bantamweights.

Bill Martin won ten-round decision over Freddie Lough; featherweights.

BY RICHARD R. SHARP.

Fred Fulton, massive Minnesota heavyweight and challenger for Jack Dempsey's title is right on the heavy already as far as Gunboat Smith is concerned.

Fulton knocked Smith out in the second round of their scheduled 10-round match in the main event of Wednesday night's fistic card at the Milwaukee arena, a left jab and a terrific right cross to the chin putting the Gunner down for the count.

Smith went down twice in the first round, but it did not look as though he was hit very hard.

The Gunner was scared stiff and Fulton pawed him around like a baby.

They had been boxing about 20 seconds in the first round when Fred lapped him on the chin with a straight left and Smith went down for the count of nine.

The crowd got it at once that he was trying to "give" and started to boo and hiss.

Refered Deverer Ed Martin did not say anything the first time and just tolled off the count.

Smith got up at nine and covered up. Fulton mauled him around for a few more seconds and then copped him with another left jab and Gunboat sank again.

This time the fans were thoroughly aroused and so was referee Martin.

Smith got up and covered up the count of four and was at once told to get in and fight or he would be thrown out of the ring.

The round ended with Smith trying to land on Fulton, with the latter taking it easy and smiling complacently.

Smith Is Warned.

During the match Smith went over to Smith's corner and gave him a good talking, but the gunner claimed that he had really been hit and put on the "dazed" act.

Smith made a rush at Fulton at the start of the second round and landed an overhand right swing on the side of Fulton's face.

Fred did not even turn a hair and kept up his cool, aggressive attack.

Smith suddenly sent out a left jab and followed it up with a smashing right cross, which drove Smith to the "dazed" act.

At the count of five he grasped the lower rope and started to pull himself up.

When Fulton reached the rope eight Smith had hold of the top rope and was vainly trying to rise.

As he lost his footing he fell back to the floor and over on his stomach and was still trying to pull himself to his knees when the fatal blow came.

Fulton picked him up by the arm and helped him over to his corner.

Without a word the referee Fred Fulton is one of the greatest of living heavyweights and perhaps without an equal in the world.

Jack Dempsey. In the short glimpse that the fans had of him last night he showed signs of being a real fighter should possess.

Exceptionally endowed by nature, Fulton is a superman of cup and weight.

He could have stopped Smith at any time after the tap of the gong, and Gunboat only hunted for a soft spot in the initial onslaught.

Fulton's crushing wallop. Smith landed two punches and both were right swinges.

The rest of the card was a collection of mighty classy mills.

Farmer Defeats Walker.

The big surprise of the evening was recorded when Frank Farmer, the veteran Tacoma light heavyweight, won a ten-round decision over Hugh Walker of Kansas City, beating Walker in nearly every round.

The ancient Tacoma longshoreman, in the best shape of his career, looked to be in the rough and ready Kansas City battler.

A real fight. He seemed to have fought his way through the fight and everything he started with almost unanny regularity.

He outfigured Walker at every turn in the ring, ways inside his rugged opponent's punches, taking them around the neck and on the arm.

Farmer got off to a great start in the first round and opened a deep cut over one of Walker's eyes, which bled profusely throughout the fight.

In the fifth round Farmer cut Walker's head in some way or other and started more blood.

The second and third rounds were Walker's best and he had even a slight shade of these. He simply punched Walker to a fare-thee-well and went down.

Battle Is a Cury One.

After the sixth round was reached last night many of the ringsiders looked for Farmer to take the aerial route, but he stuck to the ground.

In the seventh round and swung right smashes and jabbed his cork-agrew left into Walker's face time and again.

Joe Mandot, the New Orleans lightweight, who was one of the leading contenders for the world's lightweight championship several years ago, fought a give-and-take six-round draw with Muff Bronson of Portland.

The bout was a hummer and Mandot showed that he is far from through with the padded mitts.

Billy Mascot, Portland bantamweight, won a six-round decision over Danny Edwards, the Negro flash, in one of the hardest-fought battles ever staged here.

Edwards started off strong, but Mascot came to the fore in the later rounds of the bout and earned his shade, although the decision was mooted by the fans.

Referee Deverer Martin missed one by a mile in the first round of the evening when he gave Carl Martin a four-round decision over Freddie Lough, and his verdict was booed and hissed for five minutes.

Martin, who is a strong, husky lightweight, laid on Lough and did a lot of swinging, but Freddie landed on Martin at will and stowed a million, more or less, rights and lefts in Martin's jib.

The attendance was estimated at about 1500 fans and the gate nearly $10,000.

WANTING PICTURE REVIEWS

Scene from "The End of the Road," the sensational film produced by the United States government which will open tomorrow at the Star theater.

TODAY'S FILM FEATURES. Liberty—Norma Talmadge, "She Loves and She Lies." Rivoli—Rupert Hughes' "The Cup of Fury." Columbia—Marguerite Clark, "Easy to Get." Majestic—Henry Walthal, "The Confession." Peoples—Shirley Mason, "Molly and I." Star—Irene Fernwick, "The Sin Woman." Circle—Charlotte Walker, "Just a Woman." Globe—Mildred Harris (Mrs. Charlie Chaplin), "When a Girl Loves."

CLAIRE ADAMS is the pretty star of "The End of the Road," which will open at the Star theater for a week's run tomorrow. "The End of the Road" was produced by the United States government. It has been opposed by some persons because it tells the entire truth, unadorned and unadorned about social problems. Social problems have formed a subject which the so-called "nice" persons have for many generations avoided. Due to this very reticence, facts which young people should know, that they may protect themselves from the same, have been thrust into the background and unreasoning conventions have taken their course.

In "The End of the Road" the falseness of the old stand and the justness of the new scientific view which became the basis of the new era, the entire truth is known correctly as verified. A story of two mothers, one a saint and the other a sinner, modern and progressive, is told. These mothers handle their daughters differently and with vastly different success.

"Burnt Screens" will be the first picture to come before the new motion picture board of censorship. This is a Universal picture condemned by the regular viewers, and C. W. Koerner, chief manager of the Universal exchange yesterday, declared his intention to appeal the case. The final decision will rest with Mrs. Alexander, Dr. John B. Wise and C. S. Jensen. The board will see the picture the first of next week if Mr. Koerner is successful in making the arrangement he desires.

Frank Lacey, manager of the Majestic theater, received word last evening of the death of his sister, Mrs. Mae Engelm of Chicago, whom he has not seen in six years. The news came as a distinct shock, as Mr. Lacey had not even heard his sister's name for some time. He is expected to go east for the funeral.

It is equal suffrage at the Liberty theater. Balloons for the girls and toy horns for the boys was the plan of C. Jensen for the orphan's matinee which he will give on the morning of April 28 in honor of his son's birthday. That is rank discrimination," declared A. C. Raleigh, manager of the Columbia, called in for consultation. "Girls like to make lots of noise and boys like balloons." So each child, and about 750 are expected at the present time, will receive both a horn and a balloon regardless of sex.

Merte Davis of the Ansonia Amusement company of Butte, Mont., and known intimately by many of the Portland film men, has sent enthusiastic reports to the city of the "The Virgin of Stamboul," which showed recently in the Ansonia theater. The picture will be one of the Rivoli telegraphs Mischa Guterson that the picture broke house records.

It is said that at the end of a single day's instruction in skilting Miss Olive Thomas, whose forthcoming production is "The Flapper," was able to "shoot" the highest hill at Lake Placid, New York, without the heavyweight, won a decision tonight from Clem Johnson in the main event of the Oakland fight card. It was a case of two lumbering and floundering heavies with neither showing any class. Herman showed some speed for his bulk but that let him out. There were not three solid blows struck.

Bud Ridley defeated George Spencer. Larry Jones won from Joe Leopold. Al Grunman vs. Johnny Webber, draw. George Lee beat Al Walker. Ted Meredith vs. Joe Ketchell, a draw. Tom Morton knocked out Billy Vancouver TRAINS AT HOME

COUNCIL CONSIDERS TRACTION COMPANY'S PROPOSAL

Resubmission to State Commission Proposed.

LEGAL OPINIONS HAZY City Attorney Requested to Clear Up Situation as to Extent of Measures Possible.

Possibility of returning the Portland transportation problem to the public service commission together with announcement that the latest opinion of City Attorney La Roche on the legality of relieving the Portland Railway, Light & Power company of its special burdens was too hazy to understand yesterday caused another delay in consideration of the problem by the special transportation committee of the city council.

Members of the committee, composed of Commissioners Bigelow, Mann and Barbur, were unable to arrive at a clear understanding on the meaning of the latest opinion of the city attorney, they said, and Deputy City Attorneys Latourette and Tomlinson were directed to review the opinion on the subject of relief to the company.

Cue Is Found in Clause. The direction of the committee member's attention to a section of the decision of the state supreme court in the 6-cent car fare case, wherein the court held that the public service commission was empowered to change franchise provisions, even though the people had approved such franchises, because municipalities acted as agents of the state when franchises to public utility corporations were granted, was the cue.

Members of the committee, composed of Commissioners Bigelow, Mann and Barbur, were unable to arrive at a clear understanding on the meaning of the latest opinion of the city attorney, they said, and Deputy City Attorneys Latourette and Tomlinson were directed to review the opinion on the subject of relief to the company.

Suggestion Is Adopted. "Let the city attorney make a study of this phase of the subject and report to us," suggested Commissioner Mann, and the committee adopted the suggestion.

City Commissioner Bigelow called the committee's attention to the fact that the latest opinion of the city attorney, which places some doubt on the power of the voters to relieve the traction company of its special burdens, is in direct contravention to another opinion on the same subject signed by City Attorney La Roche in 1917.

Reginald Parker, who, with his company, spent a week at Truckee getting snow scenes for "The Branding Iron," has transferred his play-acting to Sonoma, where desert back-grounds will be secured for the same production.

Mr. Tourneur made a particularly happy choice when he selected Shirley Mason to play Jim Hawkins, the hero role in "Treasure Island." Lon Chaney gives a sterling performance in the dual parts of Pow and Merry. Charles Ogbe is Long John Silver, and others in the cast are Jodie Meville, Al Filson, Wilton Taylor, Harry Holden, Sydney Dean and Charles Malles.

There is a new town in Arizona called Fairbanks, it's the location of the camp recently occupied by Douglas Fairbanks and his company of actors when they were on location filming scenes in his next picture, "The Mollycoddle."

"Down on the Farm" will soon be released. The entire equipment of Mack Sennett's big farm covering nearly 30 acres was used to give realism to a picture destined to possibly offset in a measure the unpopularity of the farm as a national and necessary institution. Newspapers declare that farm life is ever becoming more and more unpopular and that since the war the path to the city has been worn to a highway.

The new Universal super-production, "The Virgin of Stamboul," has been purchased for exhibition in the Rivoli theater. Priscilla Dean stars in this feature. Its working title under which it receives much publicity was "The Beautiful Begonia." Constantinople is the locale of this story and the love theme centers about an Egyptian girl and an American officer.

Two future Liberty theater bookings are being eagerly looked for by Portland motion picture fans are "The Corsican Brothers" and "The River's End." Dustin Farnum stars in the first mentioned, which is the screen production of a famous novel and play. Marshall Neilan's first independent production is "The River's End," in which Margerie Daw has the leading woman's role.
