

KELLY BUTTE TO BE OPENED UP MONDAY

22 Prisoners Now at Rock-pile; 12 to Follow.

HOSPITAL WORK DELAYED

Contagious Structure Waits on Material to Be Furnished by Convicts.

Eighteen state and four federal prisoners took up their abode at the Kelly Butte rockpile yesterday and will be followed by 12 more. Actual crushing operations should begin Monday.

Instead of having a lot of little rock to begin breaking up with sledges, as was the case when the rockpile was turned over to the city for temporary use this winter, Sheriff Hurlburt finds that he must put the men to work blasting huge boulders before the breaking and crushing can begin. The city's operation of the plant cleaned up at least 1,000 yards of small rock awaiting crushing.

H. S. Leabo, deputy county jailer, has been placed in charge as superintendent of Kelly Butte. With him is a regular force of four guards and a cook.

Hospital Work Held Up.
Until operation of Kelly Butte is under way and crushed rock is supplied, work will be held up on the new contagious hospital being built by city and county on county land adjoining the quarry, reported Dr. George Barriah, city health officer, to the county commissioners yesterday. Work on the foundations has already begun. He presented plans to the commissioners for their approval. The plans call for a 2-story and basement structure, providing 54 beds. The cost is estimated at $45,000.

In response to the recent request of City Commissioner Mann for the $25,000 needed by the county toward the construction of this new hospital, should city funds run short, County Commissioner Holman introduced a resolution asking the city for a budget showing costs and proposed expenditures, before taking any action. The county did not ask the privilege of spending $25,000 on the project, but told the city that it would be willing to make good a deficit in city funds available, up to the maximum of $25,000. That the full amount will be required of the county seems certain.

Clash is Remembered.
With the memory of a clash of authority with the county toward the control of traffic over the bridges which span the Willamette and which are owned by the county, in which the county commissioners were shown that they had no authority in law to regulate the traffic, much though they wished to do so, the commissioners were able to answer a letter from Chief of Police Jenkins yesterday concerning regulation of traffic over the Morrison bridge with much decision.

Chief Jenkins called attention to the fact that it would be far safer during the redecking operations on that bridge if one-way—westward—traffic only were permitted. In reply the county commissioners told him to go ahead and stop eastward traffic, if he desired, that he had the authority if he thought it advisable. While the commissioners could close the bridge entirely to traffic, they declared that any regulation was up to the police power of the city.

MOVE ADMITTED RADICAL
Interchurch World Movement Speaker Answers Criticisms.
"Surely the churches and church workers of the United States are radical," said Dr. H. F. LaPlante yesterday, addressing a luncheon of Portland business men at the Multnomah hotel. He referred to published criticisms of the interchurch world movement.

"Because the churches of which the interchurch world movement is composed are so firmly aligned against entrenched selfishness, either by employer or employee, so the interchurch world movement must be. But the criticisms which have been directed against it prove that it is neither revolutionary nor reactionary. They have come from the extremists of both sides."

Mr. LaPlante explained the interchurch world movement as a co-operation of the large communions of America, one whose objects was to fund the church evangelism, missionary and welfare work.
