working out its logical consequences. It stifles production by removing the incentive of individual effort. Its fanatical volition try to cure the evils that it produces by applying more compulsion and more restriction, only aggravating the evils. The French revolution tried the same policy, but it broke down after a few months of free exchange the towns were supplied with enough food. The sovereign remedy for scarcity and high prices is free competition. Properly applied, it will not only increase production until prices fall to a reasonable level, while loss or fear of loss will prevent over-production. This is the very A B C of economic law, and central Europe is paying the penalty for violating it. Those who advocate price control in this country would have us violate the same law, though the rapacity of the profiteers would bring its own remedy by increasing larger production. Controlled prices, rationing and regulation are the essential features of communism, and their fruits are starvation.

CHANGES IN 38 YEARS.
Captain Manby, whose interesting reminiscences of Portland as a port in 1882 are published in another column, may feel reassured to know that the Columbia river bar is an obstruction to navigation is a thing of the past. The bar, which once ran the Imperial across it in confidence that she would not strike bottom. A special board of the navy department on naval bases late in 1919 reported:

It is the opinion of the board that the problem of the Columbia river bar has been satisfactorily solved, there now being a depth of 30 feet at low water. The depth of 30 feet will be obtained, thus making this a practicable port in any weather.

The width of the bar has also been reduced from 16,000 to 4,000 feet, and is being worn away so fast that it may soon disappear. The channel of the Columbia river, which is now a depth of 30 feet at low water and at a minimum width of 300 feet, and is to be widened to 500 feet this year. A great ship terminal and elevator have been constructed which are equal in facilities to any on the Pacific coast. The locks at the Cascades and the Celilo canal have been built, and river steamers can ascend the Columbia as far as Priest Rapids. The terminal at the mouth of the river has been built, and the river is now a great highway for commerce. The river is now a great highway for commerce. The river is now a great highway for commerce.

TRY THEM OFF THE PAYROLL.
In the shift and flurry of war thousands of new official positions were created—and filled. When the German armies were broken, at the hour of their signature of defeat, by far the greater portion of these emergency offices were constructed with non-effective and purposeless. They should be pried from the payroll, where a multitude yet remain. Mr. Mondell, in opposing a recent bill for the removal of 100,000 for $1,500,000 for additional clerks in the war department, enlightened his colleagues with astoundingly expensive statistics. Employees in Washington numbered 79,000 at the end of the war. Today they number 100,194. Less than $1,500 have lost their positions since the war ended.

In the struggle for national honor and ideals, when we went into war, these matters seemed small. Billions were sums to be talked of as ordinary necessities and raised as easily as an arm of the government. But now the government is a government of peace. The government is a government of peace. The government is a government of peace.

THE LATIN-AMERICAN LEAGUE.
Salvador's proposal to form a league of Latin-American states, which would have the Monroe doctrine as its basis, is a proposal to form a league of Latin-American states, which would have the Monroe doctrine as its basis. The league would have the Monroe doctrine as its basis. The league would have the Monroe doctrine as its basis.

WHY AUSTRIA STARVES.
An Austrian manufacturer is authorized for the statement that the cause of famine in Austria is not under-production or inability of the country to produce its food but government control to the point where it strangles production. Julius Meini, writing for the London Times, says that in Austria the government has taken control of the food supply. The government has taken control of the food supply. The government has taken control of the food supply.

Europe, for Canada's tie with England has been strengthened by the war and it has been irritated against us by the discussion of dominion votes in the league. The effect of the Latin-American league would be to fix the status of the Monroe doctrine as what it always has been, a cardinal principle of the foreign policy of the United States, which was adopted without the consent of the other American republics and to which we should have no right to go back. They were glad of its protection when it was announced, for they then were weak and feared conquest by European autocrats; only when it was announced that it was a "regional understanding" to which they are parties.

EMIGRATION AND IMMIGRATION.
Against the report that large numbers of Czechoslovaks are planning to return home to participate in the reconstruction of their native lands, now newly clemented into a republic, will be placed the news that 2000 immigrants from Italy arrived in New York on each of two succeeding days, and that the Italian consul in Milan reports that 10,000 immigrants from Italy arrived in New York on each of two succeeding days.

FISHING AND THE SPRING FEVER.
The season of the spring fever, a malady more subtle than any in the books of medicine, is upon the pleasant land of Oregon. There are few, if any, who are not afflicted with it. The spring fever is upon the pleasant land of Oregon. There are few, if any, who are not afflicted with it.

BY-PRODUCTS OF THE TIMES.
Thrilling Romance of Mary and Donald Told in Movie Style.
Ivanhoe Deerslayer Douglas, actor of an aristocratic New York family, was awakened one morning by the butler and his valet, relates a vivacious reporter, who is at the Perkins, before the Chicago Tribune. He bounded from bed and obtained himself 20 times on the very expensive chandeliers of his room in the costly mansion and joyfully slapped the butler on the back that the butler should have allowed his convenient and helpful store teeth. He, Mr. Miller, seated on the floor, with his head and shook his teeth back into place again with a snap, grinning delightedly at his own cheerfulness.

THOSE WHO COME AND GO.
It requires one and a half gallons of coal oil a night, at least, the Newport lighthouse working for mariners, according to Charles Miller, assistant keeper, who is at the Perkins, before the Chicago Tribune. He relates that the lighthouse is worked by four gallons of oil were required nightly. At present about 700 gallons of oil are used each night.
