SUMMARY OF STRIKE SITUATION SHOWS BREAK IN WALKOUT IS ON.

(By the Associated Press.)

William Z. Foster, radical leader of the United States Steel strike last fall, is directing genius behind the nation-wide strike of rebellious railroad workers, the department of justice announced in Washington last night.

In support of this assertion, Attorney-General Palmer made public evidence of plans prepared by Foster and his adherents to disrupt the four big railroad brotherhoods and to organize all rail workers into "one big union."

Reports from all sections indicated that the peak of the strike had been reached and that the return movement of the strikers had begun.

From the south, which has been but little affected by the strike, came reports of better passenger service and a resumption of normal conditions.

Coincident with their predictions that the "strike fever" was dying out, railway brotherhood chiefs took a firm stand against allowing their representatives to participate in any conferences with governmental or railroad officials at which representatives of the newly-formed yardmen's association were present.

There can be no compromise with insurgents, declared W. G. Lee, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, "and only one settlement can be hoped for, and that in accordance with laws and order methods through authorized committees for established organizations."

While many localities were beginning to feel the effects of food and coal shortages, railroad officials have been able to date to prevent famine conditions.

Railroad delivery of mail, while greatly delayed in some districts, is moving with increased regularity.

Freight embargoes have caused a few additional industries to close down, but there has been no appreciable change the past few days.

Let of telegraphic reports from their general chairman naming railways on which all railroad brotherhoods have returned to work.

More than 50 cities are named. The list includes all railroads in these cities: Washington, D. C.; Coffeyville, Kan.; Muskogee, Okla.; Omaha, Neb.; Memphis, Tenn.; Little Rock, Ark.; Parsons, Kan.; Seattle, Tacoma, Everett and Auburn, Wash.; Ogden, Utah; Bartow and San Bernardino, Calif.; Syracuse, N. Y.; Danville, Ill.; Roanoke, Va., and New Orleans, La.

Other cities include Minneapolis, 500 yardmen work; passenger men at work on all roads in Pittsburgh; all yardmen in Saginaw, Mich., and all yardmen on Cotton Belt road at Shreveport, La.

POLL SHOWS WOOD LEADS IN OREGON

Late Dispatch Indicates Hoover Strength Grows.

LOWDEN LEADS IN UTAH

Illinois Governor Has Large Following—Democrats Want ex-Food Administrator.

(Copyright by the San and New York Herald, Published by Arrangement.)

NEW YORK, April 14.—Reports from two western states in the poll of the republican chairmen on presidential preferences shows that in Oregon, which was the first choice as indicated in the poll is Major-General Wood.

In Utah, where the republicans will elect their delegates to the national convention at a state convention to be held in Price on May 3, the order is reversed.

In Oregon, Herbert Hoover has an even break with William G. McAdoo as the favorite of the democrats for president of the United States.

McAdoo provided the first place honors with President Wilson as the democratic choice in Utah, according to the republican reports.

Senator G. M. Hitchcock in these dispatches indicate that in both states a wave of popular sentiment for Herbert Hoover is running high at the moment.

It is reported that the republican enrolled members are talking about his availability, while in Utah the democratic leaders, including Governor Bamberger, are asserting that Hoover is the man to bring back their party from the losing edge.

They say they do not care whether he is a dyed in the wool democrat or not. They think he can win, and that suits them.

Canal Tolls Mentioned.

In Oregon no one issue stands out as paramount in a compilation of the reports of the chairmen with "canal tolls" is a brand new entry, not referred to by any leader in any other state so far.

The league of nations is the dominating issue in Utah, with Americanism work up in the list, varied in Oregon it is reported.

In this state only three candidates are named in the republican ticket have any strength, he declared, "namely, Wood, Lowden and Johnson, and it is very plain that Wood is strongly in the lead.

"As to the democratic candidates, there is no question that Herbert Hoover and McAdoo are under consideration. However, the drift is strongly away from the democratic party, and there is no doubt that the republican registration will be three to one for the democratic.

Hoover Sentiment Grows.

state of Utah are opposed to a military man for president, and although General Wood has many ardent admirers in Utah, as a lifelong republican I think a mistake would be made if he were nominated.

This is an extract for a special correspondent's dispatch. "Governor Bamberger and W. R. Wallace, chairman of the democratic state committee and former national committeeman, believe that delegates to the national convention from Utah will go to San Francisco instructed for Mr. Hoover, despite the fact that he had already told the Hoover Republican club of California that he would accept the republican nomination for president if it is felt that the issues necessitate it and it is demanded."

FOSTER GUIDING STRIKE

strike, Mr. Palmer said, "Foster, Pierson, Besse and the movement, their associates of the revolutionary parties engaged in the endeavor to promote the present strike."

"Lists of all railroad men who were members of the communist or communist labor parties were sought," he said.

The names of all railroad workers who were opposed to the present management of the department also were collected.

The basic agitation of these leaders was the destruction of the railroad brotherhoods and the removal of their leaders and the creation of the "one big union."

"At first it was planned that the I. W. W. should figure publicly in the strike, but John Grunau, leader in Chicago, deviated from the original plans and allowed the men to split the strikers into four separate organizations.

"This caused some dissension, which has resulted in the movement for the 'one big union.' Several conferences were held at the I. W. W. headquarters in Chicago and other cities.

"It was realized that the I. W. W. could not make headway because of the prejudice and fear of those three letters and the fact that the men would warm up to the organization. The 'one big union' idea was decided upon and Bidwell, a member of the newly-formed engine men's association in Chicago, replaced Grunau.

Leaders Are Radicals.

"Bidwell is confident he can swing the four brotherhoods behind the plan provided the shopmen follow out his plans."

Federal agents reported that a permanent committee had been named to manage the organization and that each of these were "members of the I. W. W. or would take orders from duly accredited representatives of the 'one big union.'"

Mr. Palmer believed that the nation-wide roundup of radicals, conducted recently by the department, had "halted at least, if not seriously hindered promulgation of the strike plans by its leaders."

He said that literature distributed among railroad workers described the raids as having "shaken 'the foundation, but not disrupted the organization.'"

In one of these documents the attorney-general was termed "America's head policeman."

Martens Told to Plot Revolt.

Mr. Palmer made public at the same time a letter from A. V. Hutgers, who presided at the third Communist International, to Ludwig C. A. K. Martens, self-styled envoy of the Russian Soviet government.

Martens then was instructed to omit attempts to establish commercial relations between the two countries and to devote his time to driving revolutionary plans forward.

chief communist for methods the agent had employed in "attempting to force recognition" of the Russian soviet. Hutgers characterized as "childish" Martens' contention, said to have been made to his government that he had any influence in the making of peace. Martens also was told that if he desired to force recognition by the United States he should do it through the power of the workers.

Gov. Calvin Coolidge Says: "WE need forever to remember that representative government does represent. A careless, indifferent representative is the result of a careless, indifferent electorate. The people who start to elect a man to get what he can for his district will probably find they have elected a man who will get what he can for himself."

Forty-three public addresses by Governor Coolidge have been gathered into a book under the title "Have Faith In Massachusetts"

It is a book of sound guidance for times like these—a book that will make you a little prouder of being an American. There is something almost Lincolnesque in the independence of Coolidge's thinking and the vigorous simplicity of his style.
