

BY THE WEATHER
Grain Season in Oregon Is Getting Late Start.

FALL WHEAT IN FINE SHAPE
Effect of December Freeze on Fruits Is Now Developing.

Potato Planting Delayed.

The first weekly crop report of the season was issued yesterday by Frank H. Meyer, meteorologist of the local weather bureau office.

While the weather has been generally in favor of the crop, owing to the mild, open weather of the previous two months, it was somewhat unfavorable during the latter part of the season.

Some wheat in Waco county was blown down yesterday by a strong wind. It is estimated that the loss will be about 100,000 bushels.
