JEFFERSON GETS PRAISE

Candidates Frank in Admitting Claims for Support and Wilson's Name Brings Cheers.

The Jefferson day dinner given at the Hotel Benson Tuesday night under the auspices of the Jackson club, rock-ribbed democratic organization of Portland, and attended by many of the faithful of both sexes, falled to bring forth cheers for Harbert Hoover, as was the custom not so long since. Instead his name was con-spicuous by its absence and there was none to do him reverence, while both Woodrow Wilson and William

There were to have been three set speeches, but B. Frank Irvine was ill with tonsilitis. This left Richard W. Montague to speak on "Thomas Jefferson" and Frederick V.
