

LEGION MAKES NEW DRIVE FOR BONUS

Veteran Thought to Be Chief Obstacle to Overcome.

PROFITS TAX IS SCORED

House Considers Measure to Tax Riches Wrung From War as Too Radical and Split.

OREGONIAN NEWS BUREAU, Washington, May 3.—A new drive for soldiers' bonus legislation was begun on congress by the American legion today. The telegram from legion sources which began in Washington ignored, however, the issue which so suddenly upset the plan of the house to pass a liberal measure to reward former soldiers, sailors and marines. This is the question over which the majority side of the house split, thereby ending at least temporarily all consideration of such legislation.

The legion finds itself somewhat embarrassed for the reason that the member of congress most responsible for failure of the house to act favorably on bonus legislation is Representative Royal C. Johnson of North Dakota, a former service man. Johnson's scheme of substituting a retroactive tax on war profits for the sales tax plan worked out by the house ways and means committee is all that prevented action today.

Johnson Plan Causes Trouble.
Several leading democrats have joined with Representative Johnson and a handful of republicans in supporting the war profits plan, which is generally referred to as "wild," and are extracting some pleasure from the perturbation which has resulted among republican chieftains in the house. It was declared today by several members of the house favorably to the bonus but opposed to the Johnson war profits tax proposal, that the American Legion will never accomplish anything by "bombarding" congress.

To get action, it was said, the legion must withdraw its proposal and join other republicans in something regarded as more practical and less radical. The Harding plan is mentioned in the strongest language. It is pointed out that the government already is collecting several forms of revenue under the present act which nets almost nothing to the treasury because of the heavy costs for collection, and the retroactive tax, it is asserted, would be another of the same kind, only more disappointing.

Difficulties Pointed Out.
First, there would be the question of what is a war profit, which the courts would have to define; second, there would be difficulty of locating the profits earned by war corporations dissolved during the armistice; third, there would be the trying operation of collecting money from the men whose war profits are invested in property that cannot be turned into cash over night.

Republican leaders in the house feel that they have done their best. They take the position that the American Legion has the power to remove the chief obstacle. Representative Johnson, who is a very prominent legionnaire. When he yields the bill will be passed, they say.

WOOD TAKES MARYLAND

dat wins more than a plurality at the primary tomorrow, the state convention will have the option either of sending the case to the supreme court or of instructing the aspirant who received the greater number of votes. In closing his campaign Johnson insisted that if he does not win a plurality he will not ask for a single vote from the delegates. He took the position that the 30 votes by right of open judgment, belong to the candidate who receives the popular vote. The Harding and Lowden backers have been insisting that the letter of the law should be lived up to and favor an unopposed Johnson. Johnson should not majority vote be cast for any one of the four candidates.

The managers of General Wood were confident tonight that a drift of Lowden and Harding support had come their way during the last 36 hours. They declared that the campaign had conclusively proved that the real fight at the polls tomorrow rests between Wood and Johnson and that many of the Lowden and Harding forces seeing a Johnson menace had elected to assist Wood in order to beat the Californian. However, in spite of the opinion of political writers and those who have been close students of the primary race, the effect that the fight has narrowed down to a "hoax race" which bids fair to emulate the New Jersey primary with the final precincts determining the winner between Johnson and Wood, the Lowden managers have not given up hope of winning a plurality and today made desperate attempts to check any drift of Lowden strength to Wood.

James S. Baldwin, Lowden's Indiana manager, charging an attempt on the part of other candidates to attract votes from Governor Lowden unfairly, made the following statement: "In the closing days of the campaign, it is apparent to all that strenuous efforts are being made by the managers of one candidate to gather votes on the theory that a certain other candidate is a menace, etc. This is a direct attempt to attract votes from Governor Lowden."

It is conceded by all who are familiar with the situation here that no candidate will obtain a majority in the primary and therefore, under the law the delegates from this state will

WASHINGTON, May 3.—The murder of two Americans in Mexico reported today to the state department, accentuated the concern with which officials are watching developments beyond the border. There was nothing, however, to indicate to what extent the attitude of the Washington government toward the Sonora revolutionary movement might be affected by the fact that the incidents occurred in Carranza-controlled territory.

fries, democratic candidate for district attorney; George D. Young, Dr. W. A. Turner and Mrs. Helen Gray Drollinger were among the speakers. Dr. Young spoke on the origin and source of vaccine and its ill effects. "Vaccination," he said, "is a menace which should be suppressed by law. There is no such thing as free vaccination. The taxpayer pays for it and pays heavily, annually." Mrs. Drollinger stated that the medical profession is compelled to find a market for anti-toxins, as millions have been invested in it. "Health," she said, "is the only immunity against disease."

The league has begun the circulation of its petitions for legislation on the laws regulating vaccination and another meeting will be held tonight at the Thompson school at Shaver and Albina streets.
