GASOLINE RELIEF

Conference Called in Portland This Afternoon.

SITUATION IS UNCHANGED

Low Supply Threatening-Bars May Be Let Down on Gravity Rule of State Law.

No new developments appeared in the gasoline shortage situation in Oregon yesterday other than announcement by State Treasurer Hoff that a conference would be held in Portland this afternoon to discuss re lief measures.

Just where the meeting will be held was not announced yesterday, but it will be attended by State Treasurer Hoff, Acting Mayor Bigelow, District Attorney Evans, Chief Deputy City Attorney Tomlinson, Julius L. Meier, representing the business men of Portland, and representatives of the ell companies operating in Oregon Industries Not to Suffer. Although State Treasurer Hoff has not yet made definite announcement of possible procedure to relieve the gasoline shortage, he was emphatic in the statement that he would not allow the industries of Oregon to suffer because of a lack of gasoline if it was within his power to prevent it. It is exceedingly probable that Mr. Hoff will instruct W. A. Dalziel, deputy state sealer of weights and measures, to allow the sale of several million gallons of gasoline averaging 54 de-grees gravity to tide over the emergency.

The present gasoline shortage brings attention to the necessity of conservation of gasoline. A general shortage is reported throughout the country, being aggravated in Oregon it is said, because of the necessity of special re-fining process through which Oregon gasoline must be run.

Conservation Is Necessary.

Even with the release of gasoline below the 56 gravity test, conserva-tion of the fluid will be essential to insure an amply supply of gasoline in June when three national conven-tions will meet in Portland. The drain on gasoline storage in Oregon will be heavy in June, not alone be-cause of the thousands of tourists who will roll into the state, but als bia river highway and to Astoria and made when Portland was awarded the
