

CLUB WOMEN OPEN 20TH ANNUAL MEET

Fun Is Keynote of Assemblage at Enterprise.

HOSPITALITY IS SUPERB

La Grande Welcomes Delegates With Breakfast—Trip on From Walla Walla Made by Automobiles.

ENTERPRISE, Or., June 1.—(Special.)—That they were here for the right from the start, was the sentiment expressed by the delegates to the 20th annual convention of the Oregon Federation of Women's Clubs, assembled tonight in Enterprise, as they sang in a jolly community song aboard the special. This sentiment seems to prevail, but of course there is dignity enough in the fine features of the programme planned for the four days' session.

The fun started when Mrs. Clyde Becker of Independence, backed by a valley delegation, stole the Portland Woman's club banner, which finally was rescued by Mrs. A. C. Jackson and Nettie Greer Taylor.

Walla Walla Club Entertains. Jack O'Neil, passenger agent for the convention special, deserves praise for the way he managed to pilot those two cars of women. He is a diplomat, G. W. Gaskins, the obliging Pullman man, straightened out reservations and buggings with patience and promptness, so the trip from Portland to La Grande was perfect. Hospitality in the watchword in eastern Oregon. The Neighborhood club of La Grande proved that by their cordial welcome and bounteous breakfast for the delegates. They met the early morning train and gave all delegates a splendid impression of their city attire and programme. They were welcomed by Mrs. J. W. Bledsoe, president. Mrs. Edward Holmes played solos. Mary Randall, Stewart Tulley and Hubert Mitchell sang and Winifred Brund danced cleverly. The convention of the Enterprise women with autos for the 20-mile ride. Enterprise motorists had saved their gasoline for the occasion, hoarding it jealously for weeks so that they could entertain their guests.

Mrs. George Holmes, president; Mrs. S. D. Kellner, hospitality chairman; Mrs. O. C. Turner, director auto transportation, and assistants, are doing wonders.

Mayor Gives Welcome. With its rugged Alpine background of snow-capped crags and peaks, Enterprise today put on a city attire and welcomed the delegates to the federated clubs convention. Homes of all the prominent citizens were open to the visitors. To begin to describe the beauties of the country would be impossible. Enterprise lies at the foot of steep mountains that are covered with snow. About her are rolling meadows and beyond them are broad fields, but best of all is the boundless generosity and thoughtful kindness of her citizens.

The convention opened with a welcome from A. M. Miller, mayor of Enterprise; greetings from F. W. Savage, president of the Oregon Federation of Women's Clubs; and from Mrs. J. H. Dobbin of the Enterprise club. Mrs. Collins Elkins, president of the Federation, responded. Excellent music was given by Miss Randall, Mrs. Gibson, Mrs. A. K. Parker and Stewart Tulley. Mrs. Callahan, president of the federation, in her address, laid stress on the importance of community service.

"Americanization has been the keynote of our endeavor in both the state and national organizations," said Mrs. Callahan. "This is a word of a hundred meanings, but it is always the language of ideals. Today we are mending a broken civilization and we must create a new one. Women must help in this by industry, patience and work."

The president repeated the creed of Americanization, urging "one loyalty, the loyalty of the American people." At the 1919 convention in Portland, the October it was decided to change the convention time from fall to spring. It is, therefore, eight months since the new administration began its duties, but in that time the president has visited 50 clubs and traveled 3800 miles. During the coming year she hopes to visit all the other clubs.

SEATTLE STREET CAR BU PROVES BURDEN

"Must We Keep and Operate It?" Mayor's Query.

MILLIONS DECLARED LOST

Sweeping Probe of Traction Deal Ordered to Determine City's Rights in Matter.

SEATTLE, Wash., June 1.—(Special.)—To determine, once and for all time, whether the city is irrevocably bound to keep and operate the municipal traction lines and pay the sum of $15,000,000 therefor, Mayor Caldwell requested the city council to pass an ordinance requiring Walter F. Meier, corporation counsel, to make a complete and sweeping investigation of the streetcar deal.

Besides probing the negotiations for the sale of the lines, the mayor also urged the investigation of statements that "persons connected with the city government obtained financial personal benefit from the sale of the lines to the city."

In his communication to the city council, Mayor Caldwell scored Corporation Counsel Meier for failure to act upon streetcar data prepared by Major Carl H. Reeves, superintendent of public utilities, and for Meier's statement that the city "offered" the Stone-Webster interests $15,000,000 for the lines.

Millions Lost, Says Mayor. That the city lost several millions in the streetcar transaction was reiterated by the mayor.

"I am referring," said the mayor, "to the quite general impression, shared by me, that the city of Seattle paid an exorbitant price for the railway and equipment. It being estimated by those having some knowledge of the matter that the price paid was some five or six million dollars in excess of the real value of the lines and in excess of the price at which the owners were willing to sell the lines through eastern brokers."

It was suggested by the mayor that the entire deal might be voided if a true disclosure of the transaction was unearthed. He said:

"It occurs to me that if there is any basis for the prevalent belief that some persons connected with the city government financially benefited by the transaction, this would invalidate the entire proceedings and the vendor would be compelled to take the lines off the city's hands, unless a new contract is made upon a reasonable basis."

Probe Held Imperative. Full supervisory control of all litigation of the city is given to the corporation counsel by the charter, according to Mr. Caldwell, in requesting that Meier be authorized to make a searching probe of the railway deal.

"I am firmly convinced that an investigation of the sale to the city should be made," the mayor concluded, "and the city advised, once and for all, whether any legal relief can be obtained. I am convinced that a very large number of the citizens of this city desire to have an investigation made that will determine this matter."

A great many statements and circumstances have been related that in my opinion should be investigated and the truth ascertained. Upon all these facts, when obtained, the city should be advised as to whether it has any legal basis for relief."

PICTURE IS PROHIBITED

"DANGEROUS HOURS" BARRED BY BOARD OF CENSORS.

Belief Expressed That Film Would Not Leave Wholesome Impression on Public Mind.

First condemnation of a motion picture by the board of censors.

viewing "Dangerous Hours," a negative decision for its showing in the city of Portland was announced. No argument over the picture took place and the decision showed two votes against it and one for the affirmative being that of C. S. Jensen, representing the film interests. He considered the picture, with certain eliminations, all right. Those voting negatively were Mrs. Alexander Thompson and Dr. Jonah B. Wise.

The screen version of Robert Louis Stevenson's "Treasure Island," produced by the same company, also was viewed. This was passed with the agreement that certain scenes thought by members of the board to be too gruesome should be eliminated.

"Dangerous Hours," said Dr. Wise, "was a clumsy attempt to combat present radical tendencies. It seemed to us to be offensive to the requirements of good taste, but of course the motion picture board has not been established to regulate standards of taste. It was condemned by Mrs. Thompson and myself because we felt it would leave a wholesome impression on the public mind."

The board has also viewed on previous occasions three other motion pictures condemned by viewers. With the exception of one case where the former board had condemned a production and the new board felt itself without power to reverse the original decision, all productions have been passed. "Treasure Island" is the first film in which eliminations have been ordered by the new board.

Building Active at Centralia.

CENTRALIA, Wash., June 1.—(Special.)—Seventeen building permits were issued by the city during May. H. Saultz.

Ten Years Younger Than His Years

Doesn't it make you feel good—cause you to straighten up and feel "chesty"—when someone guesses your age at ten years or so younger than you really are? You look into your mirror, smile with satisfaction and say to yourself: "Well, he didn't make such a bad guess, at that."

The point is: You're no older than your vitality.

If a man is strong, vigorous, mentally alert, fine and fit at 50 he has a better chance of living up to 80 than a man of 30 who is weak and run-down has of living up to 60. While none of us can stay the years nor stop time, we should all make an heroic effort to successfully resist the effects of time by ever keeping our vitality at par.

When you sense a feeling of slowing down of your physical forces—when your stomach, liver, kidneys and other organs show signs of weakness—when you notice a lack of your old time "pep" and "punch"—in other words, when you feel your vitality is on the wane, you should com-

ence at once to restore your energy, strength and endurance by taking
