

OUTSTATE POINTS CALL FOR GASOLINE

Hardships Suffered From
Lack of Fuel.

MOLLALA IS IN TROUBLE

Chautauqua Schedule Backed by
Farmers but Shortage of Oil
Keeps Farmers Away.

Outstate points are calling upon the gasoline conservation committee for the outstate sections for help in meeting unusual conditions under which they suffer hardship because of the shortage of fuel for motor cars. George Quayle, who is serving as chairman of this committee, was in receipt of two urgent appeals for aid yesterday.

Citizens of Mollala are in a dilemma over the preparations for their chautauqua, which opens next Monday, with the farmers of the locality who comprise the greater part of the population that holds tickets and were behind the plans for the gathering, unable to participate unless they can obtain gasoline to operate their cars. Dealers at Mollala are selling gasoline only for the operation of trucks. Another protest came from the Maupin commercial club saying that the allowance for that town is 152 gallons a day, but only about one-fourth of the amount is being supplied. The club appeals to the committee to see that its allocation is furnished.

FARMERS ALONE SUPPLIED

Gasoline Situation in Walla Walla Grows Worse.

WALLA WALLA, Wash., June 8.—(Special.)—The gasoline outlook here became decidedly more gloomy today. Commercial club officials, oil company representatives and service station men now are working to find some way of handling the situation. Deliveries to garages have stopped in most instances and the oil companies are selling only to farmers, and then only on proof that the gasoline is needed. Shortage of gasoline has stopped practically all pleasure riding. The business of the street-car company has taken a big jump, as most of the business men have quit using their machines to drive to and from work. Less than half the number of machines usually standing on downtown streets were to be seen today. A rationing system probably will be worked out. Assurances have been given that the farmers will be taken care of. Commercial cars will be kept running, and if there is any gasoline left the pleasure cars will get it.

FARM OPERATIONS HAMPERED

Gasoline Shortage at Kelso Is Injuring Industry.

KELSO, Wash., June 8.—(Special.)—Farm operations on scores of farms in the vicinity of Kelso are being seriously interrupted by the gasoline shortage and production of grain, potatoes and other crops on the diked lands will be seriously curtailed unless additional supplies of gasoline are made immediately available. Likewise road construction operations, diking work, rapping of the dikes along the Cowlick and Columbia rivers and similar work, which requires trucks and gasoline engines, is badly hampered by the shortage. The Standard Oil company station at Kalama, which supplies most of Cowlitz county, has been allotted only 15,000 gallons for June. This will not supply the fishing industry alone, which is now at its busiest period.

Auto License Applications Fewer.

SALEM, Or., June 8.—(Special.)—The shortage of gasoline and eliminating of half of the annual license fee after July 1 have combined to reduce materially the demand for motor vehicle licenses during the past few days. Records of the secretary of state show that there were 125 applications for these licenses on June 8, 1919, while today's applications aggregate 65.

RATE RISE PROTESTED

State Highway Department Fathers
Complaint.

SALEM, Or., June 8.—(Special.)—Formal protest against the proposed increase in freight rates on the railroads operating in what is known as the western territory today was sent to Thomas H. Macdonald, director of the bureau of public roads, by the state highway department. The protest will be turned over to the interstate commerce commission for consideration.

The proposed increase of 25 per cent in freight rates would cost the state approximately $150,000 annually, it is estimated. In order to get action, the Oregon public service commission today sent a telegram to Fred Williams, a member of the legislature, now in Washington attending the rate hearings, advising him to take a personal interest in the complaint of the highway department.

The annual report of President Riley to the board of trustees at its annual meeting showed the past year to have been one of the best in the history of the college. The annual alumni banquet was held Saturday night at the college commons.

REHEARING IS DENIED

SUPREME COURT RULES ON TAGGART CASE.

Justice Bennett Refuses Petition of
Former Teacher of Portland
Schools.

SALEM, Or., June 8.—(Special.)—The Oregon supreme court, in an opinion written by Justice Bennett, today denied a rehearing in the case brought by Mrs. Eugenia H. Taggart, formerly employed as a substitute instructor in the Portland schools, to retain her position under the teachers' tenure of office act. The directors of the Portland school district were named defendants in the action. The case originally was filed in the circuit court for Multnomah county and, upon being tried before Judge Tucker, a favorable verdict was given the plaintiff. The directors of the school district then appealed the action to the supreme court, and on April 4 Justice Bennett originally refused a rehearing. The motion for a rehearing followed. Records on file in the supreme court show that Mrs. Taggart originally was appointed as a substitute to serve in place of Miss Heath, who, after three years' illness, died. Although Mrs. Taggart continued to teach during all of that period, she was refused employment in the schools after Miss Heath's death. Other opinions handed down today follow:

Removing callouses by taking off the pressure

Callouses on the sole are caused by pressure from one or more of the bones, which form the ball of the foot, getting out of normal position and becoming lower than those on either side.

In this exposed position, the bone receives the full weight of the body, and is forced to carry more weight than nature intended. To prevent it from forcing through, nature thickens the flesh beneath the bone by forming a callous. To further protect you, nature makes these callouses sensitive so that you will step on the lowered bone more carefully.

Complete relief from your callouses comes when you support the lower bone in normal position with a Wizard Lightfoot Adjustable Arch Builder.

Beneath these all-leather Arch Builders and Callous Relievers are overlapping pockets, so located that inserts of any desired thickness can be placed in exactly the right spot to support the dislocated bones in normal position. Adjustments are simply made by shifting inserts or changing their thickness.

Being all leather, Wizard Lightfoot Adjustable Arch Builders and Callous Relievers are flexible, and are worn without one being conscious of them.

Wizard Lightfoot Arch Builders and Callous Relievers are sold by leading dealers everywhere. Usually where they are sold there is an expert who has made a study of fitting them. If there is no such dealer near you, write the Wizard Foot Appliance Company, 1705 Locust Street, St. Louis, Mo., or 936 Marbridge Bldg., New York City. Ask for "Orthopraxy of the Foot"—a simple treatise on foot troubles. No Charge.
